Orange Sorghum Vs. Co. ton Seed Huffe.

Orange sorghum should be planted in three foot rows from June 20th to July 10th, and inured to eight or ten inches in the drill that the stalk may have time to grow at least an inch as corn is often done for shredding will retain the sap until the following spring and thus furnish sufficient food during the winter months when other feeds are not available.

I prepared four acres as follows: one, and planted about a peck of seed per acre on July the 15th, and of eleven head of a grown cat. From these four acres, grown in October until Feb. 15th, the loss in milk had cotton seed meal in addition to sorghum, run through a roller, and the dry cut in received nothing but orange sorghum, and kept in good feed all the time.

Many farmers who constantly use chaff-hulls, and had them many miles can easily plant part of their grain lands to orange sorghum, and some other large growing variety, and thus save their feed bill during the winter, dependent on course on the yield of the crop. Two thirds of an acre of good sorghum will feed a cow for four to five months. Later that will produce a bale of cotton seed with two hundred pounds cotton seed meal, or thirty to one hundred pounds of bran or soda produce at least ten tons of sorghum. The price of a ton of two or three hundred is paid for a few months length, say from one quarter to a half inch lengths.

When the crop is planted in June, July or early July will mature in October, and should be shocked before killing frost, and be stored around the top with binder wire. Tighten the binds in about two weeks or as soon as the leaves have thoroughly dried then the rate can remain in the field and harvested as needed. After standing a few weeks in the field enough can be hauled at a time for several weeks, feeding and piled on the barn floor.

If house room is abundant the cane can be housed on end and kept perfectly safe, but will heat if piled green. Cane housed will dry out faster than if left standing in the field.

Cut out the feed bits of hulls and grow sorghum, don't be afraid that sorghum will ruin your land, as cotton will produce better after sorghum than if followed after cotton.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.
Lesson II.—Third Quarter, For July 11, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, 1 Kings 1, 28-40; Memory Verses, 28, 40—Golden Text, 1 Chron. xxvii, 9.—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

To get the connection let us look at the important events since last lesson. After David's return to his throne there was a rebellion under a wicked man named Shimei, the son of Heli, but he was overthrown and slain and a city was saved through the influence of a wise woman who may be ranked with the wise woman of Tekoa and with her the wife of Heber (1 Sam. xv, 1, 16, 22). In 11 Sam. xxii we have one of David's most famous songs of praise, which is repeated in full in 118 Ps. xliii. In 11 Sam. xxiii we have some of David's last words, which we may perhaps find space to consider in connection with the record of his death in today's lesson.

But there are some things which we must notice in 11 Sam. xxvi, such as the story of the rescued floor of Abimath, the Jesuit, over which the Lord saved the hand of the destroying angel, saying, "It is enough," and which David bought for thirty shekels of silver and the whole plave or bill for 600 shekels of gold (11 Sam. xxv, 24; 1 Chron. xvi, 22-25). This bill was the identical mount Moriah on which Abraham offered up Isaac, and received him back from the dead in a figure, and on this hill Solomon built the temple which David desired to build, but was not permitted to, but God gave him the plans of it and allowed him to prepare abundantly for the same carefully these passages, 1 Chron. xxviii, 11, 12, 19, 11 Chron. iii, 1, 1 Kings ii, 1, 4. We have some of the last things of David, with a few of the words to Solomon, but much more fully in 1 Chron. xxviii and xxxi, with his wonderful prayer, 1 Chron. xxix, 10-19, which we found pleasure in memorizing in the Bible classes for long ago; for, for a lesson on some of these portions dealing with the riches of His grace and glory instead of the loss thereof, portions such as the lesson of today.

But let us notice before looking at the lesson that Moriah and the threshing floor of Abimath or Ornan, the same hill are strongly suggestive of the atonement of the Lord Jesus, so that the foundation of the temple was really the atonement. So also in the tabernacle of Moses every board stood on the silver which was paid as a ransom for their souls. The only foundation for an individual or for the church is the finished work of the Lord Jesus. In our lesson today David is said to be old, though he was only seventy (1 Kings ii, 4, 1 Kings ii, 13). He is said to have died in a good old age, full of days, riches and honor (1 Chron. xix, 28). Trouble seems to have followed him all the way, and now, at the very end, Adonijah, his fourth son, whom he had before dispossessed by even Solomon, had then done so? (1 Sam. iii, 25; 1 Kings i, 9), seeks the throne and has himself proclaimed king. This stirred Nathan the prophet, and he, the prophet of the Lord, the mother of Solomon, appealed to David, with the result that Solomon was caused to ride upon King David's mule and was anointed king in the stead of him. This caused great rejoicing, so that the earth rent with sound thereof and David himself said, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, who hath given us one to sit on my throne this day, mine eyes even seeing it" (verses 28-30).

Then Solomon on the throne of the Lord as king instead of his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him" (1 Chron. xxix, 28). No throne on earth was ever so desired as the throne of the Lord except the throne at Jerusalem, and we are fast approaching the time when Jerusalem shall again be the throne of the Lord, and all nations shall be gathered into it, to the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem (Jer. iii, 17). The Lord had told David before Solomon was born that he should be his successor and sit on his throne (1 Chron. xii, 7-9, and so it came to pass, for in some way or other every purpose of the Lord shall be performed (Jer. ii, 29). I have in mind always in this connection Ps. xxxiii, 10, 11; Isa. xiv, 24, and find great rest in such assurances. If the affections of all true believers were as fully set upon the building of the church and the bringing back of the king to set up His kingdom and we were as ready to prepare with all our might, as was David, for the temple (1 Chron. xxix, 2, 3), how the mission treasures would overflow with funds to help give the gospel to every creature, and what a great company would be "heard saying, 'Here am I; send me'" (Mat. vi, 8). We need to remember that God tries the heart and has pleasure in uprightness and that in His hand are power and might and that all things come of Him (1 Chron. xxix, 12, 14, 17).

In the last words of David in 118 Ps. xxiii, 1-6, he was filled with thoughts of all the God had done for him in taking him from his sheeps to be king over Israel, and how all that he had written had been given to him by the Holy Spirit. He was conscious of his failures, but rejoiced in the faithfulness of God, and in the everlasting covenant ordered to set all things in order. He looked onward to the Christ who would sit upon His throne and rule righteously and to the morning when He would come for Israel's redemption.

TUESDAY, JULY 6

THE FOURTH.

Yesterday was the one hundred and thirty ninth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

The citizens of this country have reason to be very grateful in the thought that after 139 years this nation is still true to the original principles, that it is the end of free government and equal opportunity.

We should be thankful that we are at peace with the rest of mankind, and have the good-will of all nations. This was, indeed, a glorious Fourth. The stars and stripes never signaled to a troubled world a more hopeful message of sympathy and promise than was yesterday done. It is to be hoped that all succeeding anniversaries will be marked by the same measure. The Fourth must ever be our greatest festival day.

REVOLVERS.

A revolver is a nickel plated substitute for bravery, which has practically driven the original article out of the market.

The revolver gives a jury man with a 5.8 inch barrel and the bluck of a grasshopper a 190-grain reach and makes him moe deadly than a Sioux Indian. There was a time when this country had no dangerous animals, except bears and wolves and life was safe except on the frontiers, but now vast herds of 16-year old boys who use their skulls for a dime novel bookcase, roam the street with cigarettes in their face and variable cannon in their hip pockets, producing epidemics with the skill and enthusiasm of a cholera microbe while it is at all times possible to meet a personal enemy who has been chasing you for a week, and who is reluctantly compelled to defend himself when he catches you by filling you so full of lead that your remains will require eight palubarrers. Revolvers are now so generally used in debate, in domestic quarrels and in the article of all sorts that 8,000 Americans die of them each year. It is said.—Exchange.

CLASSIFIED INDEX.

Special attention is called to the Classified Index and special write-up accompanying it which appears in this issue of the Semi-Weekly News. Mr. O. H. Martin, the author and compiler has succeeded in producing a very unique and pleasing work which will be both useful and ornamental upon the walls of business and professional offices. It is a boost for Chester from start to finish.

COTTON FIGURES.

A few days ago the Government issued a report which gave the cotton acreage as 31,535,000 and, according to the average yield per acre, which is 188 pounds of lint cotton, it is presumed that the yield this year will amount to 12,622,887 bales.

The report, so far as we have been able to locate, does not mention the decrease in use of fertilizer, which in South Carolina is approximately 40 percent.

A Model Highway.

Irredeemable portion of the Federal-aided Statesville-Chester-Winston-Salem highway is nearing completion. The five county road forces at work on the highway are making good progress and are expected to complete the job by the end of the month. In York and Davie counties completed their portions of the highway some time ago and the Irredell section also had been finished months ago but for the two road forces over the route in the vicinity of the South Yadkin river, which resulted in a new route being adopted in that section as a compromise between the two.

The three counties traversed by the new highway were fortunate not only in securing the appropriation from the government to aid in the construction of the road, but also in securing the services of government engineers to superintend the work, in cooperation with the county engineers and road authorities. It is the verdict of those who have been over the road that it is the best in the State, one which will be as a model for future road improvement.

Innocent Victims of Warfare.

While others commiserate are able devoting space and large sums to the sinking of the steamer Armenian as a matter involving international relations and the loss of human lives, it is this number some feeling remarks about 1,422 miles that also perished when the ship went down, dumb and helpless victims in a quarrel for the origin of which they had no responsibility, the outcome of which they had no interest.

The male, it must be confessed, is not what could be called a sympathetic beast. His abilities and his attitudes are widely recognized, but his recognition is always cool, and, if it, naturally enough, he shows a gleam of gratitude. Never an object of affection, he never gives it. He remains to the end of his hopeless days a stolid creature, his dull endurance of inevitable tolls only by a rare, but always to be apprehended, demonstration of efficiency as a kicker.

The male, however, is as little to blame for his faults as for his proeity. Men made him what he is, and they are therefore under a special obligation to treat him with a special gentleness. That obligation they have never met. The hardest and least honorable services have always been his, and to him have been ascribed bad qualities, like stupidity and obstinacy, out of mere prejudice, apparently for he surpasses the horse in both intelligence and docility.

It is not surprising to find, perhaps, the anthropomorphizing tendency as strong in us all to endow the 1,422 miles on the Armenian with a sense of bitter wrong as they perished so miserably—to imagine them as thinking with hot scorn of the human beings into whose merciless conflict they had never been dragged. "Can raband of war" in the English Channel, the poor miles are tormented by the Germans; used as a living screen on the shore of the Dardanelles, they are shot by Turks. Always the male suffers, and nobody seems to care.—New York Times.

WHATSOEVER IS, IS BEST.

I know as my life grows older,
And my eyes have cleared sight,
That under each apparent wrong
somewhere
There lurks the root of right.
I shall say as I look back earthward,
Whatever is, is Best.—Anonymous.

By the sorrowing oft' unexpressed,
But to grow is often to suffer
And whatever is, is Best.

Headline—Harry Trust spent a fine Fourth of July, saying:
WE NOTE FROM THE INDEX THAT GREENWOOD HAS STARTED A STREET TAVING CAMPAIGN AND WE ARE CONFIDENT THAT WORK WILL BE PASSED ON TO UNTIL EVERY CLASS OF GREENWOOD WILL BE PROUD OF THEIR CITY.

GERMANS USING BIG GUNS AGAIN IN WESTERN ZONE

Quiet Sweep of Tautonic Hosts in East' Continues Unchecked.

London, July 2.—The sudden resumption of the heavy artillery fire by the Germans in France is a marked feature of the fighting on the western front, while the Austro-German advance in Galicia and Poland is unchecked and the Tautonic have shown no disposition to diminish the intensity of their offensive.

"There has been during the week no official news from the British front in Flanders, but Gen. Sir Ian Hamilton, commanding the allied land forces at the Dardanelles, in his second official dispatch of the week, records the repulse of a German counter-attack by the Turks, who were bent on recouping lost ground south of the fortified hill of Achil Baba and the strong position at Krithia which the British for some time have been attempting to develop.

"The British forged forward last Monday and the following day, and the Turks after sapping and mining, launched a counter-stroke with bayonets. This was repulsed, while the French forces operating on the right in Keresovo Valley, toward the east coast of Gallipoli, advanced and consolidated ground over the last of June.

"Despite hard fighting ever since landing on April 27, the Franco-British expedition on Itey has achieved anything notable toward strengthening its hold on top of the Gallipoli peninsula. Achil Baba is a small Gibraltar, but its machine guns surrounded by barbed wire and terraced with trenches.

"It is interesting to note the tributes to the Turks' bravery and even gallantry paid in almost every dispatch from British respondents at the Dardanelles. At no time during the peninsula fighting have the Turks been accused of atrocities.

"The munitions men sure give glad Lloyd George minister of nations wide power to ship munitions' supply passes the House of Lords today and will be a statute when the King affixes his signature.

"There are manifold indications throughout the United Kingdom that the people only too anxious to cooperate, fully sense the seriousness of the war. Only a few months ago the boast was 'business is as usual.' Theatre patronage was undiminished and the restaurant trade normal. The cabinet ministers now are urging the necessity of the most rigid economy by individuals, and school children are being exhorted to invest in the war loan. The newspapers daily are carrying a full page advertisement of the war loan.

"Tautonic successes in Galicia, the slow progress of the Dardanelles operations and the failure of the allies to inaugurate the much discussed offensive in the west are responsible for this change in public demeanor.

Followed Friend's Advice

After trying Fruito's and Traxo, Mrs. L. C. Clark, 840 Mehta St., Dallas, Texas, wrote to the Pinus laboratories as follows:

"I have been a sufferer from gall-stones, and Fruito and Traxo were recommended and I am glad to say I took advantage of your best wonderful medicine, with wonderful results. Fruito and Traxo are two remedies that are used in combination. Fruito acts on the intestinal organs as a powerful lubricant, softening the congested waste and breaking up the hardened particles so that easy elimination follows quickly, is the great relief of the patient. Traxo is a compound of splendid tonic properties of special value in strengthening and repairing the system that has been weakened by constant suffering.

"The Pinus laboratories have many letters on file testifying to the merit of Fruito and Traxo; letters from people who have used the remedy and know from actual experience what it has done for them. For the convenience of the public arrangements have been made to supply Fruito and Traxo through leading drug stores in Chester. They can be obtained at Middlebrook Drug Co.

Work for the best and the best will rise up and reward you.

NEGRO SHOT BY MR. FRANK VARNADORE.

Arthur Coleman, a negro employ on the construction work at Fishing Creek, near Great Falls, was brought to Chester Saturday in a serious condition, having been shot by Mr. Frank Varnadore, supervisor of the works.

From information obtainable it seems that the negro was in some way interfering with the duties of the water boy and when ordered to desist by Mr. Varnadore began to hault trouble. It is understood that he struck Mr. Varnadore with something breaking several ribs, upon which Mr. Varnadore drew his pistol and fired striking the negro just above the heart. Although wounded he advanced and Mr. Varnadore in his weakened condition was unable to hold him off and throwing his pistol to the ground possibly escaped being killed as the negro was making every effort to secure the gun.

Death of a Child.
 Edna Mabel, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott H. Hall, died yesterday morning at four o'clock, in Spartanburg from whooping cough and colitis and was buried this morning in Evergreen cemetery after funeral services at the residence on Saluda street.

This lovely child was striking in her personality and so sweet in its disposition that all who knew it loved it. The bereaved parents have the heartfelt sympathy of hosts of friends in their sore affliction.

WINSTON-SALEM MAN SAVED FROM DEATH
 J. E. Erwin Says Wonderful Remedy Brought Him Astonishing Relief.
 J. E. Erwin of Winston-Salem, N. C. was for a long time the victim of serious disorders of the stomach. He tried all kinds of treatment and had many doctors.
 One day he took a dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and was astonished at the result. The help he sought had come. His wife:
 "I am satisfied through personal use of the life-saving powers of your Wonderful Remedy. You have saved my life. I could have lived but a few weeks more had it not been for your remedy. I am inclosing a list of friend sufferers who I want to have some of your remedy."
 Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal troubles. It cures nausea and whatever you like. No more distress after your pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your drug and now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfied your money will be returned.

Corn on the Cob
 ---the Roasting Ear
 is not more delicious than
Post Toasties
 ---the toasted sweet of the corn fields!
 In the growth of corn there is a period when the kernels are plumped out with a vegetable milk, most nutritious. As it slowly ripens this hardens and finally becomes almost flinty.
 Only this part of the corn is used in making Post Toasties, the husk, germ and all waste being rejected.
 This nutritious part is cooked, seasoned "just right," rolled and toasted to a crackling golden-brown crispness—
Post Toasties—
Superior Corn Flakes
 And they cost no more than the ordinary "corn flakes."
 Insist upon having Post Toasties.

PARAGRAPHS WITH POINTS TO THEM

From a Reporter's Note Book While in Chester, S. C. Together With Index of Some of The Representative Business Interests of the City.

The old refrain "Go west young man and grow up with the country" has long since given way to the more Modern call of the South the West is already crowded beyond its resources by those who accepted the advice without knowing what growing up with the country meant; they didn't stop to think that right here in the South they were growing up all the time, and in a country where the means for such growth was already established. The South is a land of milk and honey and is only waiting to yield up a portion to every intelligent worker. Progress is the watchword, and a drone is trampled under foot, the thought occurred to the writer—while stopping over for a few days in Chester, S. C. and he takes pride in the fact that he is permitted to make mention of those upon whom called while there, the names of whom appear up on this page. For they are all men who believe that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well and this principle is followed in all of their daily transactions. The stores of various kinds in Chester are filled to repletion with every thing of the best that the market affords and it is no longer necessary to go elsewhere at the expense of time and money to purchase goods, you can do equally as well right here and deal with men who not only appreciate your patronage but who will treat you courteously. Now a word as to what Chester has:

First, a desire to grow
Solid Banking Institutions.
Free Mail Delivery.
Churches of all Denominations.
Three good hotels.
A fine fire department.
Over 8000 inhabitants.
Competent professional men.
Every needed retail business.
Hundreds of beautiful homes.
Electric light system.
Good roads to all nearby towns.
An unequalled record for enterprise.

Excellent Sewerage system,
A rich and populous tributary territory.
A superb climate and perfect health conditions.
Ample telephone, telegraph, and express facilities.
And prospects of growth to a much larger city.

Last but not least 2 Semi-weekly papers; one the News and the other the Reporter. The News in which this page appears is a Booster for Chester saying to each and every one "The halt has never been told" so if you are not already a Subscriber become one at once and become a City Builder.
Chester extends a welcome to all new and desirable citizens.
To conclude glance over this page of cards and give them your patronage and support; everything is represented and desired to show you how much they appreciate your patronage, and the success of every business means the building up of a larger and more prosperous City, larger and more prosperous City. I detains for travelers to Chester are excellent; 2 good hotels and several private boarding houses a card of each of the houses appear in this paper. The Carolina Inn, the Myers, and the Kirkpatrick.

...the inspector sighed. His face had grown long and the bunyony had passed from his manner. They found the others waiting for them at the end of the great wooden shed. Quest turned to French.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT

CHAPTER XXV.

"NEATH IRON WHEELS."

Side by side they leaned over the rail of the steamer and gazed shoreward at the professor's servant, who before them. For some time they had all preserved an almost ecstatic silence. "Say, but it's good to see home again!" Laura sighed at last.

"I'm with you," Quest agreed emphatically. "It's the wrong side of the continent, perhaps, but I'm achin' to set my foot on American soil again. "This the wrong side of the continent? I should say no!" Laura exclaimed, pointing to the west. In the distance the buildings of the exposition gleamed almost snow white in the dazzling sunshine. "Why, I have never seen anything so beautiful in my life!"

"You guess there's one of us here," Quest observed, "who is none too pleased to see America again." Laura shivered a little. "They were all grave. "I moved slowly down the deck towards Craig's side, and touched him on the arm.

"Give me your left wrist, Craig," she said softly. The man blinked away. There was a sudden look of horror in his white face. He started back, but Quest was too quick for him. He caught the wrist before the click of a handcuff, the mate of which was concealed under the criminologist's cuff.

"They stepped along the deck towards the rest of the party. Laura handed her glasses to Quest. "Do look, Mr. Quest?" she begged. "There is Inspector French standing in the front row on the deck. Two enormous bunches of flowers—carnations for me, I expect, and pansies for Laura. They're the larger bunch."

"That do you want to go to New York for?" Laura demanded. "Oh, come on, Miss Laura, you know what I mean," French replied. "We'll slip off and get married here and then take this man Craig to New York. Once get him safely in the Tombs and we'll go off on a honeymoon anywhere."

"He's been unconscious all the time," Quest reminded her. "What have you expected to find us there when he came to, anyway?" Laura insisted.

"Laura smiled faintly as she caught a glance from Quest. "You're right," she muttered, "only it takes an awful lot of getting at."

"You can remember anything about the wreck, French?" Quest inquired.

"The inspector sighed. His face had grown long and the bunyony had passed from his manner. They found the others waiting for them at the end of the great wooden shed.

"You know I don't want to be yoked off by you, but I don't know what we're going to do with this fellow about the San Francisco case. We don't want to lodge two charges, and we should have to put him in jail tonight. Why don't you try him on right away?" There's a limited gow by the southern route in an hour's time.

French hesitated gloomily. "That suits me," he asserted. "You'll be glad to get rid of the fellow, too," he added.

"They drove straight to the depot, found two vacant seats in the train. Quest, with a slight sigh of relief, handed over his charge. "Now for a little holiday," Quest declared, passing Laura's arm through French's.

Quest and Laura turned away from the railway to the hotel, where they had been gazing for the last quarter of an hour. "It's too beautiful," Laura sighed. "This is the best of the hotel, only a strip of his head was between them as they had been gazing for the last quarter of an hour.

"It's too beautiful," Laura sighed. "This is the best of the hotel, only a strip of his head was between them as they had been gazing for the last quarter of an hour.

"I am beginning to suspect her," Laura muttered. "To be sure, but he's a puzzle. "Say, what can that be?" addressed to me all right, but there isn't a soul knows I'm here except you folks. Will you open it, Miss Laura? "She took it from him and untied the strings. A little breathless cry escaped from her lips as she tore open the paper. A small black box was disclosed. She opened the lid with trembling fingers and drew out a scrap of paper. They all leaned over and read together.

"You have all lost again. Why not give up? You can never win." "THE HANDS." Laura was perhaps the calmest. She simply nodded, with the motion of a man of satisfaction of one who finds no preconceived ideas confirmed.

"I know it!" she exclaimed softly. "I know it!" the depot. Craig's time has not come yet. He may be somewhere near us, even now. She glanced uneasily around the ward. Quest, who had been examin-

CHAPTER XXVI.

Quest took the dispatch which the hotel clerk handed to him one afternoon a fortnight later, and read it through without change of expression. Laura, who had been sitting on his side, knew at once that it contained something startling.

"What is it?" she asked. "There's nothing in the letter here and led her down the hall to where the professor and Laura were just waiting for the lift. He beckoned them to follow him to a corner of the lounge.

"There's one thing I quite forgot to mention," he said, slowly, "when I suggested that we should none of us look at a newspaper until the time we are in California. Have you kept to our bargain, professor?" "Absolutely!"

"I never even seen one," Laura declared. "Not I," Laura echoed. "I made a mistake," Quest confessed. "Something has happened which we ought to have known about long ago. You might have been told, or wait, I'll read it aloud:

To Sanford Quest, Garfield Hotel, San Diego. Injured in wreck of Jim Long Jim's steamer, but far back at the time. Craig reported as killed, but you think you had better come on to San Francisco."

"I'm recovering," Quest reported. "I'm recovering," Quest reported. "I'm recovering," Quest reported. "I'm recovering," Quest reported.

"I'm recovering," Quest reported. "I'm recovering," Quest reported. "I'm recovering," Quest reported. "I'm recovering," Quest reported.

"We Ain't Powerful Civilized at this Camp, but You Don't Get Our Cook Till You Show a Warrant."

There was no one in sight. Softly, almost stealthily, he crept up to the wagon. He leaped out from its wooden case a small violin set down with his back to the wheel and began to play. Suddenly the low growl of a mountain lion's look of fear came into his face. He sprang up. The cowboys were all staring from the other side of the wagon. They had arrived and dismounted without his hearing them. He sprang to his feet and began to stammer apologies. Long Jim's hand was laid firmly upon his shoulder.

FAMOUS CRIMINOLOGIST IN ALL GUEZ.

Sanford Quest and his assistants, accompanied by Prof. Lord Ashleigh, arrived in Alameda a few days ago to look for some more evidence. He was in the charge of Inspector French, and was on his way to New York to stand his trial for homicide. He was in the charge of Inspector French, and was on his way to New York to stand his trial for homicide.

"It would indeed," the professor remarked, "be an interesting circumstance—an interesting psychological circumstance. If I might put it that way—if Craig, the arch-murderer, had been seized by me, so to speak, and he had just smashed the last bit of timber away, and again I saw his face and that time I was sure that it was Craig. Anyway, he finished the job. I suddenly felt I could move my limbs. The man stood up as though exhausted, looked at me, called to the doctor, and then he seemed to fade away. It might have been because I was unconscious myself, for I don't remember anything else until I found myself in bed."

"Say, what can that be?" addressed to me all right, but there isn't a soul knows I'm here except you folks. Will you open it, Miss Laura? "She took it from him and untied the strings. Quest turned his head slowly toward the door, and saw the professor dismounting from his horse. By his side was the professor, just behind. Laura and Long Jim greeted them with rough cordiality.

"Say what are you folks looking for?" he demanded. "Quest pointed to Craig. "We've got some news," he announced. "This Inspector French from New York. I am, Sanford Quest."

"There was a tense silence. Craig covered his face with his hands, then suddenly he looked up and said, "I won't come, he cried fiercely. "You've hounded me all around the world. I am innocent. I won't come."

"That's where the bridge is. That other cross is the camp."

"That's the line," she continued. "Laura, where's the professor?" "I don't know," Laura replied. "He rode off some time ago, and he was going to meet Mr. Quest."

"If only he were here!" Laura muttered. "I feel sure that he means to do it. I feel sure that he means to do it. I feel sure that he means to do it."

"They said his ride into the darkness. Laura ran to where her horse was tethered.

"She gazed after him, she announced. "Laura, Laura! If he arrives soon, send them after me." She galloped off while Laura was still staring after him. At that moment she heard from behind her the wild sound of horses' feet in the opposite direction, and Quest galloped up. Laura said her hand on her arm.

"I was afraid though I try something of the sort, he muttered. "Tell the other things I've got to do." He galloped into the darkness.

"He galloped into the darkness. The other things I've got to do. He galloped into the darkness. The other things I've got to do. He galloped into the darkness. The other things I've got to do."

THE NEWSPAPER.

We would like to see the following editorial, which was clipped from the Spartanburg Herald, criticized by some Editor. So far as we are concerned there is no criticism to be made but we would just like to know if such a thing could honestly be done.

One of the most common errors running through the public mind finds expression, ever and anon, in this saying, peculiar to no provincial town in particular: "I believe in supporting the home paper and to it," as the case may be. Occasion there and I advertise, or subscribe also we hear this expression even in towns that have reached considerable population and come many progressive things, but it is more often heard in the small country town, where some worthy fellow, with a desire and ambition to be of service, has undertaken the pro arduous duty of launching and maintaining a newspaper that will reflect what he believes are the possibilities of the place and the aspirations he believes its people should have.

There was introduced a more foolish idea than that a community should support a newspaper from patriotic motives or that they ever do support one from such motives. The paper that relies upon the patriotism of the people to give it a circulation and the support of all those that have been but are no more. Instead of a community supporting a newspaper the newspaper really supports the community, sustaining it in every cause, holding it up to the right ideas for its inspiration and its aid in gaining out opportunities, encouraging enterprise, defending the good that is in the place and fighting the evil that threatens the good name and even the very character of the people. Every small semi-weekly or daily that has a circulation in the state, is benefited in every relation of life by it and owes to its influence not only many of its material blessings, such as the increase in the value of his land, the development of better conditions surrounding his schools and improvements in the character of the highways, but to the voice of the press this very nation owes that intelligent conscience that has given it liberty and strength to pass securely to this day of its greatness.

It is impossible to conceive of the conditions that would exist in this country should its press be suddenly suspended. That time will never come, of course, this side the final day of judgment, but the idea is one that might with good results creep into the brains of those individuals who think that they are holding up and supporting the newspapers as to a favor to the newspapers themselves. The newspapers of this country are the water-tight compartments that keep the ship afloat. They carry the crew, weight and on top of that the whole structure of a community or a nation's material and moral progress.

Ogden Farmer Dead.
 John James Dunlap, who lived in the Ogden section, died suddenly at the home of his son, Mr. S. L. Dunlap, about 11 o'clock yesterday morning of heart failure. Early yesterday morning he was up and about the farm and had not complained of feeling badly. His death came as a surprise to his family. Mr. Dunlap was born and reared in the Ogden section, was about 74 years of age and all his life he had been engaged in farming in that community, where he enjoyed the respect and esteem of a large circle of friends and acquaintances. Deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. W. C. Pearson of Ogden, and six sons, as follows: J. J. Dunlap, Rock Hill; S. L. M. C. M. D. W. D. and W. H. Dunlap of Ogden. The funeral was held at the late residence of the deceased today and the interment followed at the cemetery at Rock Hill—Yorkville Enquirer—July 2nd

WOMEN TO MARCH IN LONDON AGAIN

Mrs. Pankhurst to Lead Demonstration for Women Workers in War Industries.
 London, July 1.—The first woman's street parade since the outbreak of the war will be held on the afternoon of July 17 under the direction of the Women's Social and Political Union, of which Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst is the leader. This parade will be held in celebration of the promise of David Lloyd George, the minister of Munitions, to receive a delegation of women anxious to serve the country as shoemakers and in other capacities.

Mrs. Pankhurst expressed at a mass meeting held today that the parade was planned to impress the Government and the nation with the desire of women to be of service, and she urged all women, whether suffragists or not, particularly the teachers and non-producing classes, to participate. "We want the vote," cried several women in the back of the speech to which she replied: "I am glad that those ladies are in the very small minority."

Queen or Dairy Maid Ambition the Same

In the expectant mother's mind there is no limit to what the future has in store, and yet during the period of expectancy, most of the physical comfort of the mother and the best aid is a remedy for the mother's "Mother's Friend." Applied over the muscles, it penetrates to the nerve work of nerves, relieves the stretching of cords and ligaments, makes the patient, induces daily comfort and a calm mind and pleasant anticipation. You use it with your own hand, supply it as needed, and at once feel a sense of relief. Mothers who have learned all from experience tell of the blessed relief from morning sickness, the absence of strain and the undisturbed healthful influence imparted to the coming baby. Get a bottle of this splendid help today. Phone your nearest druggist or send for it. Write Mrs. R. B. Barron, 1111 Broadway, New York, N. Y., or Mrs. Big, Atlanta, Ga., for a valuable book for expectant mothers. "Mother's Friend" is recommended everywhere by women who have used it and you can read some very interesting letters if you write for this book.

No. Six-Sixty-Six
 This is a prescription prepared especially for MALARIA or CHILLS & FEVER. Five or six doses will break any case, and if taken then as a tonic the Fever will not return. It acts on the liver better than Colocid and does not gripe or sicken. 25c

Unusual Opportunity

LOOK TO YOUR EYES

A. D. Suhler, the Eminent Eye Sight Specialist and Assistant, will be in our city for a few days. All suffering with headache, eye strain, nervousness, or those in need of glasses, should avail themselves of this opportunity. Thousands of eye sufferers have been relieved by their new and original methods, even after others have failed, so do not give up hope but wait until they come.

There is no hot-house method of developing a good sized Bank Account

Time alone will do the work. There's no rapid transit — its growth is accumulation. Happy indeed is the man who can say he owes no man anything. Happier still is the man who can proudly say "I have money in The Bank."

Operation Not Needed

Mrs. W. A. Barnes who lives in Ballard, Calif., has sent to the Pinus laboratories a very strong endorsement of Fruitoia and Traxo. In her letter, Mrs. Barnes says:

"Doctors say gall-stones cannot be cured without operation costing much money as well as making me very suffering. I am cured. I know and this is proof positive, and my friends know that such is the case."

Fruitoia is a powerful lubricant for the intestinal organs, softening the hardened particles that cause much suffering, and expelling the congested waste in a easy, natural manner. A single dose is usually sufficient to clearly indicate its efficacy. Traxo is a splendid tonic alternative that acts on the liver and kidneys, stimulates the flow of general circulation, and removes bile from the gastric circulation. Traxo should be taken three or four times a day following a dose of Fruitoia to strengthen and restore the weakened, run-down system.

For the convenience of the public, arrangements have been made to supply Fruitoia and Traxo through leading drug stores. In Chester they can be obtained at Chester Drug Co.

Saved Girl's Life

"I want to tell you what wonderful benefit I have received from the use of Thedford's Black-Draught," writes Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky.

"It certainly has no equal for la grippe, bad colds, liver and stomach troubles. I firmly believe Black-Draught saved my little girl's life. When she had the measles, they went in on her, but one good dose of Thedford's Black-Draught made them break out, and she has had no more trouble. I shall never be without in my home." For constipation, indigestion, headache, dizziness, malaria, chills and fever, biliousness, and all similar ailments, Thedford's Black-Draught has proved itself a safe, reliable, gentle and valuable remedy.

If you suffer from any of these complaints, try Black-Draught. It is a medicine of known merit. Seventy-five years of splendid success proves its value. Good for young and old. For sale everywhere. Price 25 cents.
