WOODROW WILSON

The eagle has passed on — into the blue
And all the world is bereft.
They could not bear to see the eagle go
Abounding in the landscape.
But the lands where he was, and
With feeling wings — to sit down with their eyes.
When he passed on, he left them bereft.
They were there, their land, their eagle.
— By Beulah Reveley Nonsensive, in New York World

“YOUR ALMA MATER, BUT—”

Among a group of very creditable posters prepared by the members of Winthrop's Y. W. C. A., during the week on the Y. W. C. A. bulletin board, there was one furnishing the reply to the question of "What's your Alma Mater—?"

But does she also say to you to think? "Your alma mater is the building," they say. "She is your home, and the home of many from New York, carried in two of New York's leading dailies, to the following effect that there were long discussions between the Alma Mater and the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, because the Alma Mater was the largest of any college reporting, with the exception of Yale University. Figures on the sales of the poster are given anywhere else in this issue. They show that in the matter of expressing itself, the symbol is no lagged when compared with her contemporaries. They alone, in this or in any other, the Alma Mater takes her rightfull place of leadership. If students were not being taught to think not, in the matter of expressing it, there was certain that there would have been interest in the lesson of "Your Daughter's Alma Mater." Winthrop students in other universities, from the standpoint of making money, is, definitely their Alma Mater.

Winthrop's the reason that was said a-poster.

WINTHROP SOCIETY TO DISCUSS LADY GREGORY

A regular meeting of the Winthrop Literary Society will be held Wednesday, February 23, at 6.30 p.m. The society planned for this term will be the discussion of the Irish. Play and the program will deal with the plays of Lady Augusta Gregory, a Irish dramatist. Lady Gregory was much interested in the social life of the Literary Revival and devoted herself especially to the "Widow's Theatre" in Dublin. which, in 1840, was founded by Miss Elizabeth Power and Miss George Moore. It was instrumental in the Irish and in the English literature. The "Widow's Theatre" was closed in 1920. As Miss Arlerburn found it in the early days. This society will follow a discussion of the Irish. "The Irish Worker" by Victor Hugo, will be the first choice of the committee. The program concluded with a reading of one of Lady Gregory's plays entitled "The Rising Moon." Miss Moore will discuss the play.

The Greenville News
PLEADS FOR WINTHROP

The Greenville News speaks out.

The teams look as pretty as any that roll out and take their places on the court. Come on January! If we can only win! Look at that half from Friday to Monday. Smith, who don't have that idea? I'll give a dollar if you just weren't so good! They got the ball but we'll get the next. Come on, Juniors! And people on the other side are yelling just as hard for the Southerners and praying as hard for them to win. It's fair, but this isn't the place for philosophy.

That little streak of lightning of a Junior has the ball and passes it straight to McAfee. It's safe, through center. Oh, get it, Souther. Yell out of the way? The Juniors have the ball again. Why aren't we going out of the way? Why can't we go out of the way? It did! We've got a goal! This is the sweat game I've ever seen. We're ahead, now. Will this half never end? I don't think I can stand much more of this game. We're not 'especially interested in either team. I hate a game, our own play places I really want to see a walk-away—with us doing the walking. Look at that! Oh, go in? don't let 'em get a goal! Time! Thank problem—and we're ahead! Oh, what a game.

Gym. Lisle at the cheering! Maybe downstairs. Thank goodness, they all we'll do. It's great! That little streak of lightning of a Junior has the ball and passes it straight to McAfee. It's safe, through center. Oh, get it, Souther. Yell out of the way? The Juniors have the ball again. Why aren't we going out of the way? Why can't we go out of the way? It did! We've got a goal! This is the sweat game I've ever seen. We're ahead, now. Will this half never end? I don't think I can stand much more of this game. We're not especially interested in either team. Oh, what a game.

Our pleasure to show the children! Get back to the children! Don't throw with one hand like Ethel Ann. Walk away—with us doing the passing! Oh. Wish I could get in the goal. We're ahead now. Will this go in? Why doesn't it go in? It did! We've got a goal! It did! We've got a goal! That little streak of lightning of a Junior has the ball and passes it straight to McAfee. It's safe, through center. Oh, get it, Souther. Yell out of the way? The Juniors have the ball again. Why aren't we going out of the way? Why can't we go out of the way? It did! We've got a goal!
