THE SUN IS SHINING

Just about this time of the year the pessimist usually goes on double duty with his wall of woe that times are hard and business is dead. Whether we believe it or not, there is a whole lot in mental suggestion and the fact that we are looking expectantly forward to dull times has a tremendous influence in bringing such conditions about. The tightening of credit end of purse strings when there really no necessity for it, brings about a depression that could easily be avoided. Compared with the last year, that have prevailed for months there would seem to be no reason to sell this year for a reduction in retail trading than as any time for several years past. The low price of cotton last fall added to which were the disturbed and unequipped financial conditions due to the European war, demoralized business all over the country. The return has been distressingly slow, and nothing approaching normal has been reached. But with all this tight year's business, the farmers as a rule will be in better shape to meet the conditions as they exist. More grain had produced than for years past has been raised, and the money which the farmer spends will be for a different line of goods than heretofore.

But however it turns out, it doesn't pay to run after trouble, and unreasonable predictions of trouble or disaster of whatever nature is conducive to creating such conditions.

Let's all look hope and work for the best with good spirits and light hearts remembering always that if the clouds do come as clouds they must, the sun still shines.

SAVE THE HOME FOR THE GIRLS

At the foot of East 23rd street, in New York City, is a boat which is known as the Deep Sea Hotel boat for working girls. About fifty working girls have received some very sad news. This, their home, has been ordered dismantled by August 28th, by the owners, who are the heirs of the Arbuckle Deep Sea Hotel Co.

The cost of maintaining this home for working girls is about $1500 per year. The girls pay $2.80 per week for their board, which does not cover the cost of maintenance. We would guess that the average salary received by these girls is about six dollars per week, and the existence of this old boat has been a part of their living and it does seem a pity that a city the size of New York, with the money there is in it, should let this home be vanished. The girls have appealed to Miss Anne Morgan for help and it is hoped that she will come to their aid.

If New York stands idly by with folded arms and allows this home for the girls be dismantled, we say, Shame on New York.

ORGANIZATION.

The following story forcibly illustrates the effectiveness of organized action in securing needed reforms in a municipality—no matter how trivial the nature of such reform. "Fretted because they could not pass under tree branch hanging low over many of the sidewalks of the town without having their hats knocked off or their slips and faces scratched, seven citizens of Shan-don, Iowa, who range in age from six feet four inches to six feet seven inches, organized themselves into a militia and called the walking stick staffs and applied to the city government to enforce the tree-trimming law. There was plenty of physical strength as well as plot to behind the protest of the seven, and the authorities did not hesi-

Our Responsibility in the Prohibition Movement

Our responsibility to God only limited by our ability and our opportunity. The Latin and Greek terms no christian citizen can escape.

Liquor has always worked the ruin of individuals, communities, and nations. Physically, the insurance risks prove his death rate about fifty to seventy per cent above the normal. Even where he drank five to ten years before the risk, his every weight pound of it, and while this condition confronts us, western cattle production continues to shrink as the big ranches undergo further process to farm subdivision and prices continue to creep upward.

The time has come when the country is compelled to look to the south for more meat, and the south must furnish it or the country will have to do without it, paying exorbitant prices for what little is to be had.

There is no need to go into the matter of advantages which Georgia possesses in the matter of meat production. There is not a county in the state but can grow beef cattle almost without an effort, and with the splendid facilities offered by state and federal governments any county that wants to do it can get rid of the cattle taint in a comparatively short time.

No Georgia farmer should make the mistake of selling his calves for slaughter. The consumption of real is a flagrant extravagance that we can well afford to dispense with. It is like throwing money away, when not only those at home, but many as those of the world are waiting for the full grown beef and will pay the price for it.

The important thing to impress upon the minds of the farmers is the opportunity. It is here now and it is going to stay. The producer of beef can make no mistake; he cannot lose. The market is "bullied" by a demand that is incessant, peremptory; there is nothing that can shake it. It remains but to do its work, to obtain and take the inevitable profit.

Atlanta Constitution

RUSSIAN ARMIES HAVE BEEN DIVIDED

Headquarters of the Austrian Army, in Poland, via London, Aug. 9.—The defeat of the Russians on Sunday between Lubartow and Mieschow resulting in the Russian troops apart, leaving a large gap between them. Russian troops north of Lubartow fled northeast across the Veporz at Lesekowice, about 12 miles north of Lubartow, while those around Mieschow fled northwest to reach the Veporz by way of Barasow.

It is impossible at this moment to determine how serious a danger for the Russians this breach may prove, but probably they are amply protected against dangerous incursions upon their line of retreat by troops withdrawing from Imagorod along the highway running parallel with the north bank of the Veporz to Radzyn.

"In retreating the Austrian advance the Russians made a desperate attack at Mieschow. The retreat of their left wing over the Veporz at Lesekowice was a rout of pronounced character. It is known that the number of prisoners considered exceeds 6,000 officially reported."

FORD MAKING 15,000 ATOTOS FOR BRITISH

Manchester Plant Pays 50 Per cent Higher Wages Than Other English Auto Factories.

Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer of Detroit, went to the American Line pier, foot of West Twenty-second Street, yesterday afternoon to meet J. L. D. Perry, the managing director of the English branch of the Ford Motor Co., who arrived on the St. Paul for his annual business visit to Detroit. Mr. Ford was accompanied by his son, Edsel B. Ford, Frank Klingensmith, the director of the factory, and Frank Mayo, chief engineer of the plant.

"You see," the automobile manufacturer said, "we are just like one big family and always come down from Detroit to meet Perry, so that he does not feel that he is a stranger or in a strange land."

"With regard to the rumors of the large war contracts that Mr. Ford was bringing over from the British Government," Mr. Ford said, "There is no truth in those reports. We could not accept a 'big contract' from any one because to carry it out others would have to get short of their supply and that would not be fair play. If I had 10,000 cars ready finished today I could sell them all tomorrow without any difficulty."

"Although we are making about 15,000 cars for the British Government for use as motor ambulances. The war has not affected our business in any way and we do not expect a boom after peace is declared because of factories are running at full pressure all the year round. The reason for shutting down a part of the plant for two weeks was to enlarge it. As there were several hundred applications for cars, we decided that the best way would be for it all to take a vacation and get it over which was done."

Mr. Perry said that the Ford factory at Manchester, Scotland, employed 1,600 hands and paid 10 per cent higher wages, grade for grade, than any other automobile concern over there.

"Up to Aug. 15 this year," he continued, "we had sold 12,500 cars and had 8,500 on order, which included 600 ambulances that were sold to the Government. The engines and axles are made at Detroit and the other parts including the bodies, are made at Manchester.

"The British Government sends 100 soldiers from the Army Transport Service to the Ford works for two weeks at a time to learn how to repair machines in the field and how to put them together. Ours was the only automobile concern in England that had a contract from the Government for cars and delivered them on time. The $490 car sold in America costs $575 in England, the extra charge being made to cover the cost of packing, insurance, and transportation."

Mr. Perry will stay two or three days in New York with Mr. Ford and his son at the Hotel Biltmore and then go to Detroit, where he will be in England in two weeks.
