A CONFESSION OF GUILT.

The intense desire of the newspaper manufacturers to have the Federal Trade Commission fix a "reasonable price" for their output is a confession that they are guilty not only of extortion but of unlawful restraint of trade.

For several months the Federal Trade Commission has been investigating the newspaper paper industry but it was not until the Department of Justice took action that the manufacturers came across.

Several paper manufacturers were threatened with criminal prosecution under the Anti-Trust Act and when they began to see a prison sentence in the future they were willing to come to an agreement. Just what the Federal Trade Commission will consider a "reasonable price" we are unable to say but newspaper paper is still costing one and one-half times the amount it sold for eighteen months ago and it is up to the Commission to fix this "reasonable price" at the earliest possible moment.

As a matter of fact the paper manufacturers are millions of dollars ahead on the so-called paper famine during the past few months and if justice were done to the publishers the paper manufacturers would be forced to return the money they have unlawfully extracted from the newspapers of the country.

GOOD-BYE "BOOZE"

After wrangling over the prohibition bill for the past forty days the South Carolina legislature finally decided to limit the amount to one quart-a-month for medicinal purposes and only a few hours on this decision was reached along come Congress and hits South Carolina prohibition a "happy natural." Yes Congress has put it to the gallon-a-month, the quart-a-month and even the teaspoonful-a-month.

The Reed amendment passed by the House in Washington Wednesday will cut off entirely liquor importations into the large number of States which have forbidden manufacture or sale but have permitted importation for personal use. The Washington vote stood 319 to 72 and it is stated that President Wilson will sign the bill within one week. The Federal law will become effective July 1st, this year and whether or not Governor Manning signs the quart-a-month bill passed by the legislature after June 30th South Carolinians will be deprived of "booze" even to the quantity of a teaspoonful a month, or a year for that matter.

The Reed Amendment will make Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi "bone dry." Arkansas and Tennessee have already voted "bone dry."

PROGRESS.

Over in Woodruff the progressive citizens determined some time ago to get rid of the old wooden awnings in front of stores and make the town look a little more modern. Their undertaking was successful but they met with bitter opposition. In all towns there are men—usually men who have made an absolute failure of their own lives—who are opposed to anything and everything in the way of progress.

Because they are accustomed to candles and kerosene lamps, they cannot understand why anyone should desire electric lights. Because they were "fetched up" in spring or branch water, they refuse to believe in the virtue of deep-well water. They resent these new fangled notions about germs and say, "I never saw a germ!" they say (grandpa never did).

Because they spent their youth where military closets were unknown, they fail to see any necessity for sewage disposal. Because they are accustomed to riding behind a mule, they resist the coming of the automobile. Or because necessity compels them to walk they favor the most stringent laws to curb the pleasure of auto owners.

The secret of remaining young is to keep one's mind abreast of the times. A man may know that he is growing old when he first makes a resenting invention and improvements.

Many men of many years keep their minds young and active, spirit sweet. They are a blessing to any community. But the men who are out of tune with the times encumber the earth. Progress tries to sound them, or, if they have influence, wait on their death. And those of us who are young, and sweet at the mouth, are probably best just like that when we reach that age—Fountain Ink Tribune.

SOUTHERN VIEW OF SOUTH

One might almost imagine, from some of the things appearing in Southern newspapers nowadays, that their part of the country was not the terror of the masses. It has often been called by its sons and daughters when gathered here for their annual dinners. And the same might be well-informed, paper men, too, are not always hoping up, as formerly, all Southern people as exemplars of all the virtues. Take The Houston Post, for instance.

It makes some really astonishing statements about Southern and the South—statements that no Northern paper could make without having a first-class row on its hands indeed. "The Southern cities," it mournfully declares, "are still the abjects of a vast throng of ignorant men and women who have nothing to do, and largely because they know how to do nothing." To a suggestion that the South should be thronging the streets of Southern cities and villages might at least find opportunities in the army. The Post replies: "Hardly. The South certainly never be accepted except in the very last extremity of the nation's life itself."

Of agriculture in the South The Post can only say "a dormant country-side and untilled acres go hand in hand with food scarcity and soaring prices in the cities." The Post's lugubrious remarks, according to The Post, are applicable, not to the negroes alone, but to the whites as well. In its article concluding the two questions, obviously not merely rhetorical, though it is left unanswered: "Why is it that in one part of the country men are working two shifts a day to meet the demands for physical energy, whereas in the South there are thousands who have nothing to do, and who apparently want nothing to do, even when we are told that the destiny of the nation is in the balance?"—New York Times.

ANCESTORS LIVED IN CHESTER.

Major Geo A. McCalla, of Chicago, was in the city for several days last week. He came South to a race and to learn something of his South Carolina kin. Major McCalla is a descendant of Samuel McCalla, of Chester county, who married Jennette Hemphill. His ancestors resided on the Hazelwood plantation in Chester county, now owned by J. McCalla Caldwell. His grandfather moved to the West many years ago. A brother of his great-grandfather, John McCalla, by name, moved to Abbeville county about 1800 and settled in the western part of the county. He married Susan V. Tennant of this county and had two sons, I. H. McCalla and George R. McCalla, was the father of John W. McCalla, lately of Elbert county, Georgia, and of Hon. I. H. McCalla, who was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1895, and at one time Senator from this county.

Major McCalla's great-grandmother, Jennette Hemphill, was a daughter of Rev. John Hemphill, who was pastor of Hopewell church in Chester county many years ago, and she was a sister of Dr. William Bannister Hemphill, at one time a professor in Erskine College, and who was for many years pastor of Long Care and Cedar Springs churches in this county. Dr. William Bannister Hemphill was the father of General Robert R. Hemphill, the founder of the Abbeville Medium.

Major McCalla holds a commission as Major in the Cavalry officers' Reserve Corps of the United States Army. He is not in active service except in case of war. He is engaged in the business of manufacturing machinery in his home city and is a man of standing there. He is greatly enjoying his stay in the South and is meeting with many of his kindred and making new friends. —Abbeville Press & Banner.

ILLITERACY.

The stigma of illiteracy is being rapidly removed from the South. The bureau of the interior has just issued a report by Winthrop Talbot, which is calculated to draw the eyes of the critics from the South to the North, for, while it is proved that illiteracy is on the decrease in this section it is on the increase in the North and New England, the latter the boasted center of civilization. The number of illiterates, says the report, is increasing, not in the South, but—and it displays the guilty States in paragraphs, the more strikingly to emphasize the fact—in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Colorado, North Dakota, Nebraska, Montana, Wyoming, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Washington and California. In short, illiteracy is on the increase almost everywhere except in the South! "It has long been a matter of critical comment," says Mr. Talbot, "that nearly one-fourth of the population of the Southern States is illiterate. It gives the different aspect to the statistics which show that each Southern State cut its percentage of illiterates more than 25 per cent. between 1906 and 1910, and that in the South Atlantic States, South Central, and west South Central divisions, which include all the Southern States, the number of illiterates was nearly a million (928,767) less in 1910 than in 1906." It is further in evidence from Mr. Talbot's report that while illiteracy may be a persistency, it is not a hereditary quality which are so active through public school endeavor and otherwise that they are steadily effecting wholesale reductions each decade not only in percentage but in number of illiterates. Illiteracy is chiefly a disgrace in those manufacturing States of the Middle Atlantic division which for 10 years—eign 20 years in the State of New York—have failed to reduce their numbers of illiterates, or, as in the case of Connecticut, have actually retrograded and increased not only in numbers of illiterates, but in percentage of illiteracy as well.

In New York State alone there are more than 406,000 illiterates. In other words, the number of illiterates alone in that State very nearly equals the entire colored population of North Carolina. The same comparison holds good in the case of Pennsylvania. Of course most of the illiteracy is confined to the foreign born. But for one, give us an educated negro population in preference to a foreign educated population.—New York Times.

WHAT THEY SAY.

"If some of the women of Chester could hear the line of talk their husbands are hauling out on the streets, there 'could probably be some 'wool pulling' around this section."

Says hubby, about the new liquor law, "Well, so far as I am concerned it won't effect me but, you know, my wife is not very strong and I have to keep a little whiskey around the house for her. I guess I had better order a gallon before the new law becomes effective—that will last her a long time."

Yes they are putting it off on the women and when that gallon comes the little wife won't even see the cartoon to say nothing of the contents.

"If everybody in this town spends his money in town the town will boom. You are free to admit that if the town booms you will get your share of the prosperity."

Mrs. W. P. Rostdyer, of Great Falls, is at the Fenell Hospital in Rock Hill, where she underwent an operation this morning.

The Southern Railway will operate an Inaugural Special to Washington.

When The Liquor Gives Out.

The topic of conversation for the past few days has been prohibition. On the heels of the South Carolina quarter-month law comes the Federal law which passed the House in Washington Wednesday and these two pieces of new legislation has given the men something to talk about.

Many have advanced ideas as to what will happen in the next few months and some have even made predictions five years hence.

We are satisfied that this recent legislation by the Washington body is going to put some people to work who have not done a "respectable" day's work in many a year, and when we say people we do not refer to any one color or race.

When the Federal law becomes effective the home of the "blind tiger" will resemble an airship—it will be all up in the air. The farm hand that has been working two days in the week and selling liquor four will now consider seriously the cook that cooked part of the time will now cook all of the time. The man who sold liquor on the side and made the road of an honest competitor hard will now have to get busy or get out.

If every man and woman in this town makes up his or her mind today to spend their dollars with the local merchants this town will boom as it never did before. Out of town bargains often prove a delusion or a snare.

THEY ARE HERE

Our veteran buyer, Mr. John Frazer, arrived Wednesday with a car load of the very best Mules ever seen in this section of the country.
If you went to the market yourself and carried a buyer of years of experience to assist you in making a selection of Mules especially suited for your farm, you couldn't be suited any better than we can suit you with this car of mules.
We have handled mules for a great number of years and know just the kind of mule this section needs and wants, and we have that kind. Big, heavy-built mules, averaging 1200 pounds, free from blemishes, well broke and ready for work. You must see them to appreciate their real worth.
If you think that you are well fixed for the coming season, call at our stables and look over the lot we now have. You will change your mind and see your need of real mules.
Better call early. Mules like these will not stay at our stables very long at the prices we will ask for them.

The New GOSSARD CORSETS for Spring

WHILE retaining all those qualities that have characterized and famed Gossard corsets in past seasons, they strike a new note in corsetry—a subtle change that is reflected in a more delicately beautiful outline and in an even more graceful flat back. Youth is the keynote in the style of these new Gossard models.

Without any undue pressure you are assured absolute comfort and freedom of movement because the Gossard secret of scientific boning assures the most perfect support where it is needed; proper breathing is induced and the whole body thrown into the healthful pulse advocated by your physicians.

This is the Thirty-second Announcement and Proclamation of Gossard Corset Styles for Spring and Summer, 1917

The new models vary in height of bust and length of skirt—as they should—to meet the individual requirements of the various figure types, but the general tendency is toward less corset, lower bust and shorter skirts with a small waistline indicated by skillful designing rather than actually expressed.

Be fitted today by one of the many models designed for your figure type at $2.75, $3.50, $4.50, $5.00 and up. An expert corsetier who understands your corset will do it a pleasure to fit you without obligation.

A FEW FACTS ABOUT OUR NEW CONGRESSMAN.

Mr. W. F. Stevenson, the newly elected congressman from the Fifth District has long been prominent in the affairs of the State. He has served in the general assembly and was speaker of the house of representatives from 1900 to 1902. He was president of the Democratic State convention in 1900 and has long served as a member of the State Democratic executive committee from Chesterfield. He has been chairman of more than one investigating committee to inquire into affairs of South Carolina.

In addition to his profession of the law Mr. Stevenson has been active in banking and railway development. He is president of a Chewaw bank and a director in other banks and railway companies. He is also district counsel for the Seaboard Air Line Railway company and was attorney for the State in 1907 to wind up the affairs of the State dispensary.

Mr. Stevenson has been an elder in the Presbyterian church since 1888 and was moderator of the synod of South Carolina in 1900, the first lay moderator ever appointed. South Carolina's latest representative is a native of North Carolina having been born in Iredeell county on November 23, 1861. He was graduated at Davidson College and began the practice of law at Chesterfield in July 1887. He married Miss Mary E. Prince on November 13, 1888. He has made his home at Chewaw for many years.

One item which is figuring in the high cost of living at present is the price of leather. Local shoe repair shop proprietors state that they are compelled to pay from $1.05 to $1.20 per pound for the best grade of white-tanned sole leather, while lighter grades can be procured for 90 cents a pound. Shoemakers have advanced 200 per cent while sewing twine cost more than twice what it did two years ago. Good sole leather could be bought there for 40 cents a pound, yet the cost of repairing shoes, while it has advanced, has not kept pace with the price of the leather used in repairing, according to local shoe repair men.

According to Attorney General Peoples' construction of the new automobile law it will not be necessary hereafter to pay city licenses or registration fees on automobiles. Such fees are now to be paid to the State only.

Mr. Coleman Gladden has been sick during the past week with Grippe.

NEWS OF RUPTURE ENRAGED KAISER

Paris Hears He Blamed Bernstorff to Forecast Wilson's Plans.

Paris, Feb. 17.—Hear from a very good source that the news of the rupture with the United States aroused like a bombshell in the imperial circles at Potsdam.

New tension with Washington after the submarine note was expected but nothing as drastic as a rupture. On the same morning (Feb. 3) a cablegram from Count von Bernstorff announced that the next note from President Wilson might be expected, but nothing else.

The Emperor received news of the rupture while sitting down at the table and flew into a violent rage, those who were in touch with Potsdam circles affirmed.

Remarks made by the Emperor to her intimates gave the latter to understand that the imperial wrath was directed principally against von Bernstorff.

Count von Bernstorff's representatives at Washington invariably created misunderstandings and had always been more lacking in tact, especially in handling "the hypocritical English" at Washington, meaning President Wilson.

Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg finally managed to appease the Kaiser, taking up von Bernstorff's defense.

The Emperor ordered the Chancellor to resign. He was obliged to avoid making matters worse. This would explain the memorandum transmitted by the Swiss Minister, which was more lacking in tact, especially following a message from the Chancellor.

Bernstorff's Prediction Forecasts.
London, Feb. 17.—In connection with reports of Germany's surprise at America's attitude toward unrestricted submarine warfare, a surprise which was not in fact, especially standing the plain intimation conveyed in the Sussex note; President Wilson would not go to the length of breaking off diplomatic relations.

The New York Times correspondent is now in a position of public faith which developed during the President's recent visit to London.

A neutral diplomat who came on a visit to London from the Continent brought detailed information about Germany's plans for extending submarine warfare. All preparations were being made, and, in a sense, all eyes were fixed upon America, for the Emperor in Berlin, that the possibility of waging a ruthless submarine war without getting embroiled with America depended upon the result of the Presidential election.

Count von Bernstorff's advice to Berlin were that if President Wilson was elected to serious opposition to the extension of the U-boat campaign need be apprehended from the United States.

These facts were made known to the correspondent under pledge that they would not be made public for reasons into which it is unnecessary to enter.

It is thought possible that after President Wilson's reelection Count von Bernstorff renewed his assurances to his Government that it could go ahead with the submarine campaign without apprehension that a serious break with the United States. Hence came the surprise, which the President's action caused in German official circles.

THE GIFT OF HOPE.

What would we do without the gift of hope? No matter how bitterly we feel the pang of failure, no matter how discouraged we become because our plans have gone astray, no matter how different life proves from what we thought it would be, hope the healer is ever at hand to encourage and sustain us. We worry ourselves into nervous wrecks sometimes simply because we have not permitted hope to spread its healing wings; it is enough that disappointment instead of success crowns our efforts for us to give way beneath the bitterness of defeat and through this weak surrender of will-power and nerve-power degenerate into factors that count for nothing in life's practical problems.

There are two ways by which to accept the inevitable; one is by worrying endlessly over conditions and doing nothing to remedy them, the other is by facing the facts however hard, and with hope to sustain us, reshape our lives. The choice lies with you. It is only by being a sincere creature who will hesitate as to which is best. We are living in stirring times; the past few years have witnessed rapidly changing conditions and rapidly developing problems. It may be that these conditions and problems will be brought closer to us than before, and we shall be called upon to make our individual readjustments as so many thousands of men and women have done in the recent past.

Even in our ordinary intercourse with the inevitable and immediately concerns our individual lives as we go to work. Worry ourselves into nerve-racked beings by being unable to assist even in a small way in the solution of our domestic problems, or with that spirit of optimism which has ever characterized courageous men and women tirelessly and adjusting ourselves to their necessities. We can do nothing but give our best, and our disappointment with what life brings or that is, nothing that is good or praiseworthy but much that produces had to be left behind.

On the other hand, however, if we refuse to bear the blight of our disappointment and continue hopefully our efforts for the future, we shall clash with each new effort far more than we anticipate because exerting moral influence for good.

FIVE DAYS LATER WAS ABLE TO GO TO CHURCH

Was Sick in Bed Three Weeks Before She Started Taking Tanlac.

IMPROVEMENT WONDERFUL.

Could Not Keep Even Cold Water in Her Stomach at One Time—Strong and Healthy Now.

Though she declared her condition at one time was so bad that she could not keep even cold water on her stomach, Mrs. J. G. Johnson of 587 North Church St., Spartanburg, declared Tanlac made such a rapid improvement in her condition that she felt her "out-of-bed" condition was to do its best work in three days.

Mrs. Johnson's remarkable statement and endorsement of Tanlac follows:
"I had catarrhal fever and what I think was a slight case of the grippe. I was very much sick at the stomach, much less my food. I had many days when I could not eat, and I became so weak and sick that I had to stay in bed. I stayed in bed three weeks and could not even sit up, and I was not feeling any better. I did not seem to be getting any relief, except that nausea was helped. I did not gain any strength at all, though, and I finally felt heart in that way of trying to regain my health, and I threw away all medicines and began taking Tanlac.

"I had not used much medicine in three days, and I felt much better. I had been helped over so much by it, kept after me until I began taking this medicine, and the certainly did me a great kindness by doing so. I had been helped over so much by it, kept after me until I began taking this medicine, and the certainly did me a great kindness by doing so. I had been helped over so much by it, kept after me until I began taking this medicine, and the certainly did me a great kindness by doing so.

"My relief by using Tanlac was as follows: I was able to be up and going to the table and eating a regular meal and doing light housework in three days, and in a week I discharged the cook and began doing my housework myself. I was able to go to church five days after I started taking Tanlac. The Tanlac gave me back my appetite right at the start, and soon drove away that nausea which I then had at times, and I could just feel myself getting stronger right along.

"I never have known any medicine that would make a sick person get well so quickly, especially one that was as sick as I was. I just took two bottles and I am feeling fine now and am still getting stronger and heavier. If I had been a month sicker I took the last dose of Tanlac. I am a great deal stronger now than I was before I got sick, and I am in better health than I have been in a year or so. The Tanlac sure did make me well quickly. It was just wonderful.

"Tanlac is due all the praise for getting me well, too, and I certainly do praise Tanlac.
