GARTER SNAKE MOST COMMON

Classification Embraces Eleven Species of the Best-Known Creators of the Reptilian World.

The garter snake, genus Thamnophis is our most numerous variety, embracing eleven well-defined species, including the beautiful green and black ribbon snake. This group differs essentially even in the most populated regions, being plentiful in city parks, writes Arthur H. Fisher in the Philadelphia Record. They are voracious, bringing forth as many as sixty living young each year. They feed entirely on cold-blooded reptiles and frogs being their main diet. The variation in color is frequent in the same species, but they are easily recognized by the general scheme of their markings. Through the years in captivity they make the most interesting study specimens. The common variety, Thamnophis sirtalis, is numerous. Their nearest relatives, the water snakes, genus Tropidonotus, so generally stoned by the country boy, are very numerous and are found in large numbers sunning themselves along the banks of creeks and ponds. They are nearly always dark brown in color, with transverse markings. They feed on frogs and fish and show wonderful ability to speak through their voice. The large brown water snake, Tropidonotus taxipolus, grows to great size and is much confused with the poisonous moccasin snake, Amorocrotalus piscivorus, owing partly to the fact that it is found basking on the same logs with the deadly "cottonmouth."

LEARN TO TELL GOOD STORIES

Writer in Philadelphia Newspaper Gives Some Excellent Advice to the Young Mother.

So many mothers say, "I can't tell stories. Besides, I don't know any." Well, you can tell them and you should learn them. To read them is not the same. The book and the words are between you and your child. You can never give yourself in the same way through reading print as when you let your own appreciation of the story speak through your voice and eyes straight to your child. Absorb your story. Make a part of yourself all its beauty, its message, and then give yourself from more words. See the pictures and reveal them to your listening child.

As for knowing stories, learn them if you can't find them for yourself. Select the editors of your magazines and newspapers for them until you are supplied. Insist on having the best. There are stories so good as the old old ones which spring from the heart of the race in ages past. These old tales meet the child's need because they correspond to his stage of development. They are primitive man's effort to explain himself, nature and God. The child will recognize his kinship to them. He will find in the great truths which answer his own wonder and longings—Philadelphia Leader.

Japs Work All the Time.

Literally the Japanese work all the time. It is not at all uncommon to find Japanese men and women at work in their shops at two, three and four o'clock in the morning. They must work like the starve. They live directly in the rear of their places of business. Their entire household equipment comprises a few mats, a few cushions and a little tableware. They go at their job—whether it consists of making shoes or mending cut buttons and work and work and work until they are exhausted. Then they sleep a little and go back to work. It does not take a Japanese ten minutes to eat his meal of rice and fish. He has his festivals, of course, and a good many of them, but he works the rest of the time, and in many households it must be a special personal festival connected with some individual or family gods to lure him from his occupation. He needs the money—Samuel G. Hylthe in the Saturday Evening Post.

Proper Home Influence.

"The boy who is taken out for a stroll on a Sunday afternoon by his father," says Judge Scully, formerly of a juvenile court, "is seldom the boy who gets into trouble." Judge Scully finds, and social workers will agree with him, that the lad who is tempted to follow the downward path is the lad who is deprived of proper home influences. The tone of a family depends largely on the mother, but the father should not exempt himself from the humble though necessary position of breadwinner. In the opinion of many observers, too many boys, whose fathers are fairly good, most respectably suffer from the fact that they know little about their father, and he knows little about them.

Evil in Cheapsa.

All works of art must bear a price in proportion to the skill, taste, expense and risk attending their invention and manufacture. For these things called dear, are when justly estimated, the cheapest; they are attended with much less profit by the artist than those which everybody can cheap. Beautiful forms and compositions are not made by chance, nor can they ever, in any material, be made at small expense.

A conception for cheapness, and not for excellence or workmanship, is the most frequent and certain cause for the rapid decay and entire destruction of arts and manufactures.—Lutetia.

RUSSIAN EMBARGO LIFTED.

Lansing and the Czar's Ambassadors Sign the Agreement.

Washington, Sept. 23. The formal agreement lifting the Russian embargo against exports of the United States has been signed by Secretary Lansing and George Bakmeister, the Russian Ambassador. Russian goods will be allowed to come to the United States as agreed to by the Secretary of Commerce and the Russian Government. American goods will not be restricted, but the merchandise will not reach her shores.

American firms must also find covering the value of goods. If any part of such goods is exported the bond will be forfeited and the firm involved will get no more Russian merchandise. The arrangement is expected to release millions of dollars' worth of goods to American importers. It will cover practically all goods of Russian production or manufacture. In order to carry out these arrangements, said an anonymous official by the Department of Commerce, it will be necessary for American firms to file an application in triplicate with the commerce agent in charge of the New York office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, asking for approval for the release of certain shipments of goods from their American firms must also indicate their willingness to furnish payment to the bureau, a statement showing the sales of all or any part of the shipment of goods covered by such agreement.

NAPOLEON AND LETTER "M"

Great Man Had Good Reason to Believe It Played an Important Part in His Life.

All human nature holds within itself superstition in some greater or less degree. Perhaps no two persons have ever held the exact same fable-like thought. With Napoleon there was a dread of the letter, nameless letter "M." He imagined all persons, places, events that came within the scope of his life beset with this letter had a wonderful effect in shaping his career.

Looking this up, we cannot fail to see that this otherwise harmless letter followed him almost, playing the game of life with him. It was Marabout who was the first man to suspect his genius and to shove him about it. Marabout was the place where he encountered the greatest difficulties at the beginning of his wonderful career.

DREW LESSONS FROM NATURE

Originality of College Professor's Lectures Caused Them to Be Appreciated by Class.

There was a certain college professor of machine design who was as original in his teaching as he was in his subject. One of his pet theories was the interrelation between nature and correct design. He would say, "There have been 100 million years since a horse was first evolved, and the more we study his work the better machine we will build. When you put your legs under a machine, think of a horse, or a cow, and get them as far apart as you can—don't get too much overhanging at either end. And, speaking of a counterbalance, study the kangaroo, there is no prettier example of equilibrium in all positions. The further over he leans the more his tail comes into action, and the ground. And again, in speaking of general design wherever possible, try to work for simplicity as against rigidity. You find very little of the rigid in nature, and a little tree, often survive a gale by bending, where airplanes are blown down. All of which was undoubtedly very true, and made more an impression on his students than any of the more complicated mathematical demonstrations that followed.—Engineering Magazine.

The Venerable Microbe.

Just to think the microbe has been in this terrestrial sphere twenty millions of years! Disease germs that now afflict humanity were first discovered in the fossils of the earliest life on earth. There was a belief that bacteria were a modern pest, and they came just in time to plague mankind but who should think the exact before! What was the object of their insidious lives? This question science answers by saying that they first came to assist in the digestion of the calcareous rocks. This certainly was a more honorable mission than to scare people in later days into the use of germicides. It is hard to discover the use of such organisms to set up great government burrows to resist their imaginations. The microbe was formerly an honorable and useful citizen, but now he has fallen from his high estate.

Great Men Born in War Time.

It is pointed out that during the first years of the last century, from 1800 or 1810 to 1815, when all Europe was suffering from the Napoleonic wars, she gave birth to almost every great man who was to guide her better destiny for 100 years to come. It is that terrible period of travail Britain gave birth to Disraeli, Gladstone, Cobden, Bright, Browning, Tennyson, Shakespeare and many others. Italy had Cavour, Mazzini, Garibaldi and Victor Emmanuel, the four men who secured the liberty and unity of the Italian kingdom. America gave the world Wendell Phillips, William Lloyd Garrison, Harriet Beecher Stowe, H. Ward Beecher and Abraham Lincoln.

Try This on Your Cook.

A friend of mine who is a culinary expert gave me the following recipe for cup custards: One quart of milk, seven duck eggs, five hard eggs, sweeten to the taste and cook in good-sized bowls. He said he ate two of them for his dessert for a Sunday dinner and was taken sick that evening. I should have thought that he would have been.

One such cup custard was big enough for any ordinary man, but to crowd two such ones into one stomach was bound to wreck the best constitution. And he wanted me to see how it would affect me. I rather guess not.—Glosser Times.

"GIVE US MEN"

The Hohenzollern dynasty is forsighted, and leaves nothing to have when it comes to the perpetuation of its rule with the mailed fist. This war has been a terrible drain on the blood of Germany. She has lost the highest military officers in Europe. Germany knows how many soldiers the Crown Prince, Von Hindenburg and other commanders have used up so far. Every rifle in Russia means an enormous sacrifice in German lives. We only hope for the successes after the Great War, but few details leak out at what appalling cost in German blood these successes are purchased. Berlin has admitted so far the loss in killed and wounded of 1,800,000 men. Every citizen in Germany knows that these figures do not represent the real truth; that the actual loss has been far greater. But, supposing the loss in dead alone was nearly 2,000,000, it does not concern the war lord in the slightest. Germany extorts and milions of Germans may die on the Hohenzollerns may rule. Nay, more, the future of Germany is being founded on military success. We must have soldiers, more soldiers, ever more soldiers. So it is made part of Prussian patriotism for every German to have a large family. General Kaiser is also the head of the Prussian Church, the rearing of large families being the highest paramount duty. It is required that every young man for the Hohenzollern ruler, preachers and professors, publicists and poets, all taking their cue from the Emperor, are pleading all over Germany now for large families. One professor, whom William recently decorated, says: "Woman is to be recognized as a factor in proportion as she contributes men to build up the army and increase the glory of the State."

"We wonder when the Germans will wake up. How much longer will they keep on rearing millions of children, so that they may grow up to lay their dead bodies at an emperor's feet?"—Baltimore Star.

OUR ROAD SYSTEM.

It is impossible to estimate the benefits to be derived from good roads. It is one of the main questions before the entire country and the most progressive states and counties are devising ways and means with which to meet the issue. The old system of road-working is being abandoned for the simple reason that it is a failure. The condition of the roads under such a system is sufficient proof of its failure. The people who refuse to accept the advanced methods of road-work must pay the penalty. The whole population always pays the penalty for the near-sightedness of the majority.

The question of good roads in some other state or county does not directly concern the people of Chester county. Our own county should receive our first consideration and may we ask, is our present system the proper one to have in order to get the best for the people's money? We fear not. Ask any taxpayer of Chester county what amount he spends annually on the roads and then ask him what part of that amount he thinks is wasted.

We do not wish to be misunderstood, hence we say, the fault is not with any individual, it is the system. Under our present system a party is instructed to repair a certain piece of road, which he does and when the bill is presented for payment he charges $10 for about $3 worth of labor. That's the system and the men and men in authority have a poor way of applying a remedy.

In order that the greatest benefit be derived it is absolutely necessary that a carefully considered plan of procedure be devised. The railroads of our country have their systems divided into sections in charge of a section master, whose duty it is to keep his part of the road in first-class condition and he must at all times be on the job. If he fails in his duty he immediately sees his "pink slip." The railroad system is being used by some counties with much success and it is very worthy of a trial in order that the best for their money, a remedy is necessary to change the system and the taxpayers of Chester county will no longer be put off the for ever to find we will be.

DUTY OF INSURED AFTER FIRE.

The conditions of all fire insurance policies require that the company be given prompt notice of loss, the notice may be served on the company agent, preferably in writing, a receipt should be obtained that shows knowledge of the company's agent of the loss by fire, gained incidentally, is not sufficient, nor is verbal notice given by the insured to the company agent.

So many people imagine they must not touch their property after a fire until the adjuster appears, and they have to do this. This is altogether erroneous. The policy conditions require the insured to act and act without delay. He should proceed to protect his property from further damage, forthwith separate the damaged and undamaged personal property. In the best possible order, make a complete inventory of goods, stating the quantity and cost of each article and the amount claimed hereon. If all policy holders were to prepare an inventory of their personal property and file same with their policy where it can be produced in the event of loss by fire, they would not be likely to omit certain articles which cannot be found after a fire.

The insured has not the right to abandon his property to the insurance company by turning the story key by the agent, does not bind the company, as the agent's authority ceases when the fire occurs.

A great many people, whose action is required of them, but that the company must settle the loss within 60 days after the fire and the mistaken idea that not only not falling in this, a right of suit exists. The case is just the reverse, the claimant has 60 days after the fire in which to file his claim with the company, failing to do so, he has no right of action, but if the policy the company has provided to waive notice and profits of loss. The loss is due and payable 60 days after the completion of the fire. Cash settlement upon completion of proof is frequently made, but the insured has the right to hold settlement for 90 days.—Olimbia Record.

THE TONGUE.

The tongue is a small but weak organ. "Can crush and kill," declares the Greek.

"The tongue destroys a greater hero," says the Turk.

The Persian proverb wisely says: "A lengthy tongue—an early death." Or sometimes takes this form instead: "Don't let your tongue cut off your head."

"The tongue can speak a word whose speed," says the Chinese "outrips the steed."

While the Arab says this in regard to the tongue, the Hebrew says: "From Hebrew will the maxim sprang: 'Though feet may slip, 'er let the tongue.'" The sacred writer crowns it a whole: "Who keeps his tongue doth keep his soul."—Sele tod.

A Reward That Some Fathers Receive.

Yesterday evening, a young lady, handomely dressed, and in company with her sister, appeared at the main door of the hotel in this city. Her father, who was going home from his work and attracted in his soiled working clothes, he approached his daughter and his friend with a smile, exclaiming for the little brown of the young lady. "This is my daughter," he said to the young man. "This is my daughter," he said to the young man. "This is my daughter," he said to the young man.

Mills Are Busy.

We believe that more cotton mills are now being operated at a profit than at any time during the past season.

We, as usual, have the habitual calamity howler, who can see nothing good and profits are not large on most lines of goods, but there are very few well managed mills that are not now making a good showing.

We know of one new mill which has cost $200,000 that has made a net profit of $30,000 in its first six months of operation and we can name many mills which are making extremely satisfactory showings.

Seventy-five per cent of the mills on who are calamity howling are the inefficient managers who never make a profit except in abnormal times and the other twenty-five per cent are profit makers who think it shrewd to hide what they are really doing.

The number of mills that have recently started night and day operation is an indication of the trend of business.

We can see nothing but a good business for the cotton mill for a long time to come.—Sou. Textile Bulletin.

He said he came here three weeks ago and that he was prompted to confess because his conscience troubled him.

The Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway yesterday went into the hands of a receiver. This road has a mileage of 3,800 miles.

A FORT LAWN MAN SAID SO.

A certain Fort Lawn man was in Chester yesterday morning having made the trip in his Ford.

The following conversation between him and a News reporter took place:

"How long did it take you to make the trip this morning?"

"I made it in an hour and five minutes."

"I have a number of those Ford people who in the past have been coming to Chester are now going to look out to do their trading. Any more?"

"Well, you can make the trip quicker and the roads are much better."

"It was a fact that you people used to look out to do their trading?"

"Oh, yes, just lots of them are doing that."

THE FARMERS ROAD TO PROFITABILITY.

A story from Texas gives a characteristic account of the prosperity which has come to the farmers not only in that section, but in the South generally as well as elsewhere throughout the farming sections of the country.

According to a report in the World-Crops Herald, the farmers of Humble county, Texas, are fairly reeling in wealth. 2 million bushels of grain is the estimate placed on the crop just gathered in that county. Up to date 300 carloads of grain have been shipped from one small town, and continued shipments will run the total up to 1,000 cars before the end of the month. One man threshed 25,000 bushels of oats and 7,000 bushels of wheat, and 150 other bushels are mentioned. The total of 25,000 bushels making a total of more than 115,000 bushels of grain produced on six farms.

One, and it is stated that "have" quite a number of 10,000 bushel farmers in the county.

Farmers are paying off their debts with grain money, releasing their cotton crop from debt. There was a large reduction in the cotton acreage over the previous year, and a corresponding increase in food crops so that the farmers have been benefited in two ways. They are able to eat at home and sell their grain crop for a handsome profit, while at the same time the acreage planted in cotton will bring them a better return than they have received for their cotton crop at any time within the last eight years.

Here is one of the strong advocates of diversification in the advance of objection which has been made public this year, but, from reports

TAKING 'N' FROM DAMN

DOES NOT TAKE THE CURSE OFF BY ANY MEANS.

When One Doesn't Care a— Well, Even "Tinker's Dam" is Bad Language to Say the Best About It.

A contributor to the Sun grieves over the ignorance of those who assume that "tinker's dam" is a "profane expression." A tinker's dam, says he, was a chunk of dough or batter used before the days of muriatic acid to keep the solder from spreading, and as the solder commonly did spread nevertheless, the tinker's dam was as nearly worthless as the common expression of disesteem for it implies. He differentiates it from the common or garden-damn and says: "There is no profanity about it."

But not to care a tinker's dam is just as profane as not to care a maverick damn, unbranded with ownership by tinkers or others. Taking the "n" out of damn does not take the curse off. If it is profane not to care a damn, it is just as profane not to care a whiffer, a jabberwock, a goop, or any other illegitimate and unmentioned word. When one stentoriously enunciates his refusal to appraise the article under discussion at the value of a damn, he is not swearing or cursing; he is literally using bad language, for, in the sense he means, there is no such noun as damn. We know what a tinker's dam is, and what is a damn? When one says he does not care a whoop, he is far more definite, for there is such a thing as a whoop. When one says he does not care a damn, a damn was being profane, and why do persons who do not care one plume themselves on their devilishness?

It is not profane, but it has the sound of being profane, and that is all that is needed. An individual who would not for the world have used blasphemous language used to relieve his feelings by pronouncing the name of one of Wagner's operas in a tone that caused neighboring windows to fall in, and "Gottedammerung" gave him as much satisfaction as if he had violated a commandment. One who was the man who always swore by Charles G. D. Roberts and Josephine Dodge Darkam because they sounded so profane? There is an excellent Methodist in this town who severely reprehends profanity whenever he hears it, but who produces all the effect of shocking blasphemy by the bitter emphasis he lays on the exclamation, "For government's sake!" Colonel Roosevelt plumes himself on his abstinence from profanity, but none of the unregenerate ever got such satisfaction out of a real cuss word as he does out of "By Godfrey!" No, tinker's dam belongs in the comforting galaxy of profane references for the emotions, and that is the worst you can say of the other damn.—New York Times.

Mysterious Zones of Silence. A meteorologist of Zurich, Dr. A. de Quervain, directs attention to a new theory which he calls a zone of silence. He says that strong noises like explosions or the sound of cannons, while heard in a normal way in their immediate neighborhood, are not heard in a distant zone even when most intense.

It is now known as a historical fact that Frederick the Great on August 17, 1760, won the battle of Liegnitz because the Austrian generals Daun and Lascen asserted that they had not heard the sound of cannons. It was supposed at that time that the statement of the Austrian commanders was an untruth, but it is now proved that a zone of silence existed. Similar phenomena have been observed recently. In 1908, when the Jungfrau railroad was being built in Switzerland, a fearful detonation of the rock caused by the explosion of 25,000 kilograms of dynamite. The noise was heard at a distance of 30 kilometers, but not at 140 kilometers. Strange as it may seem, however, the noise was heard 50 kilometers from the last named zone.

The Bible in Russia.

The holy synod at Petrograd has been busily engaged in the work of producing popular editions of the Bible. These are being widely distributed by the Order of St. George among soldiers on the battle field as well as to the sick and wounded. Various Russian Red Cross aid associations are sending Bibles and Testaments in their "care packages" for troops at the front, and as the available stock of the British and Foreign Bible society has been exhausted, the Order of St. George is undertaking the work of printing fresh editions. Should this wave of enthusiasm for the propagation of the Holy Scriptures prove more than a passing phase we may look forward to a revival of intelligent religious instruction in Russia.

Novel Porch Light.

A porch lamp of a new type, just placed on the market, is made to be installed inside the building so that it does not call attention to the weather, but serves to illuminate the porch from the room as well as the porch. The lamp is mounted inside the wall and faces to the porch. Part of the light is diffused through the room while part of the horizontal rays are transmitted through a 1/4-inch tube to a globe mounted on the outside of the porch. The lamp is made of brass and is uniformly distributed over the porch.—Popular Mechanics.

NORWAY WILL GIVE BRITAIN A QUARANTY

Similar Action by Swedes Predicted, but Spokesman Says She Will Yield Nothing.

London, Sept. 22.—Speedy co-operation of Norway in a movement started several months ago with neutral European countries to guarantee against shipments of supplies from America, consigned to neutrals, from Germany, was promised today by the Norwegian Consul here during a call upon American Consul General Skinner. The Norwegian Consul informed Mr. Skinner that his Government had arrived at a decision similar to that of the Netherlands last Spring, when the Netherlands Overseas Trust was formed. Norway's step follows closely upon that of Denmark, which recently made plans to create the Merchants' Guild of Copenhagen on the lines of the Netherlands Overseas Trust. Norway's participation in the agreement among neutrals brings all of the Western Continental neutrals into the pact excepting Sweden, which however had a similar arrangement as to cotton shipments.

It all means that the neutrals will see that no goods shipped to their countries ostensibly for consumption by them are allowed through trickery, to find their way to Germany. It will go far, it is believed here, in establishing more confidence among American shippers that their cargoes will not be unnecessarily held up, thereby giving impetus to shipments to neutrals.

The scheme to be operated by Norway will be exactly like the Netherlands Overseas Trust in having an official representative of Norwegian merchants here who will be responsible to the British Government and to his own. He will act as an intermediary between American and Norwegian shippers, and as a guarantor to the British authorities that cargoes passing through his hands are bona fide consignments for use in his own country. It is expected that Sweden will soon come into the compact.

Since the Netherlands Trust was organized there has been slight trouble over cargoes to The Netherlands, and gradually the whole difficulty or delayed cargoes to that and other neutrals is being smoothed out.
