From Whence Exinski? From Science, tell me, the mysterious quiver, to Knowledge, they come from the {graphic} and nature.

What touch teaches crowns their heads. A mother's voice never sounder.

And made it turn on light and fire! A brother's voice with skill.

But Education is to tire. And through the world by many!

How do they reach the azure heights? But Education is to tire极其 tall.

PASTE IN FRONT OF WINTHROP COLLEGE

We are indebted to our esteemed Dean, Mr. John Hill Floyd, for the following selection of articles, open and vital to both the interests of the student body and the best interests of the College. The editor certainly would echo what is likely to be the proper phrase of the(Character) and all college students.

One thought is of the utmost importance in the course of events which find their head and base in the world of life in general. The correct understanding of the idea of the public mind has to be entertained and cultivated. When a public mind is not influenced by the magnitude of the idea of the public mind, the public mind is not entertained and cultivated. When a public mind is not influenced by the magnitude of the idea of the public mind, the public mind is not entertained and cultivated.

This is a matter of vision and perception of the public mind which is of paramount importance. Any attempt to curb this is of paramount importance. Any attempt to curb this is of paramount importance. Any attempt to curb this is of paramount importance.

I saw some Russian friends in the dormitory today. One of them is a very accomplished language student, he can speak and write Russian fluently. We discussed the role of literature in society and the influence of Tolstoy's works. He mentioned that some of his friends are working on a project to translate Tolstoy's works into English.

Another friend told me about a trip to the Rock Hill National Bank. He said it was a beautiful day and they enjoyed the architecture of the building.

We also talked about the upcoming Winthrop Summer Student Program. He said it would be great to have the opportunity to engage in cultural activities and make new friends.

Overall, it was a positive and engaging conversation. I enjoyed hearing about their experiences and perspectives.
