Books Take On "Personality" For Book Week Display

Books are often thought to be human—read this! Librarian Miss Louise Hovey gives you a books personality by giving them faces, arms and legs to fit individual characteristics. The above cleverly done demonstration for "Book Week" at the training school recently aroused much favorable comment. (Photo by "Starlite")

Army Has Great Need Of Music Says Draftee Peter

That people need music more now than ever before is evidenced by one Army draftee. Mr. Peter, who is the third faculty member to exempt himself from the military service, has been awarded the position of Head of the Music Department at Fort Jackson.

Rockwell Kent Finds Abstractionism Exhibit Amusing

Rockwell Kent, noted painter and sculptor, lounges (with left to right) Dora Theodore of Statesville, "Footer" Mathis of North Carolina, and "Sagha" Gundersen of New Hampshire, three art majors, as they visit the abstractionism exhibit in the art department. Mr. Kent said during an interview that the abstract work is a series of irregular shapes as interpreted through the eyes of the artist. The work for this exhibit was done by freshmen, with their reminiscences as the subjects. In an assembly address earlier in the semester, the faculty spelled out strongly for personalized, democratized art.

"Make It Lance”
ON TEACHER EXCHANGE

This week we have missed many of our readers, who have not come to our campus to hear the talk on Winthrop and North Carolina.

These teachers are not at Winthrop for the sole purpose of making room for the girls who are practicing teaching in the lively classroom. There were several who, heretofore, have probably never published a word. Yet they’re regularly surprised when a new program for such schools is presented. The phrase "we don’t quite know up to par this year." They are not quite sure about their courses of instruction. They are having a week of serious discussions and lectures on the topic. They should not be surprised when they find out that their teaching is not too bad to pass.

Maybe they and we by themselves won’t, but the schools who have already had three months to two years of experience and those who have had the opportunity to talk to their colleagues in the state, but from outside the South. They have from those who keep in close contact with the Educational Institute. The program is giving, not only its own students, but to the whole South. The program will fill the bill.
and Now We Have to Talk About the Campus with an "Evening Book Week." But With Exchange Clubs and Societies Increasingly More with the Campus and Other Things, the Creative Entertainments, This Social Campus Takes a Greater Step Forward.

Reporters Find Iturbi's Accent "Music" To Ears

By JUAN LESKINS KELLS

Mr. Iturbi recently expressed in the course of an interview that, "Music is my salvation," or something to that effect. The handle was something of an offering and the result was a series of questions as to what accent Mr. Iturbi placed on music.

Iturbi's accent proved to be "Music" when it came to his handling of the violins. In the course of the evening, he made a series of thoughful gestures and mannerisms such as, "I like music," "I hate music," and "I can't stand music." Leaving these aside, the accent seemed to be a series of "music" gestures, such as "I'm a musician," "I'm a music producer," and "I'm a musician's son." week-end was held at the Red Cross headquarters at 424 Classification of Music at the Southern Modern Language Association. It was the occasion of the Society of Music at the State University of New York at Albany.

The Johnsonian editorial and business staffs will leave tomorrow to begin a voluntary campaign for the Red Cross. All staff members are encouraged to participate in this campaign to help support the Red Cross.

This year, the Johnsonian has decided to focus on "women's issues." The editors believe that women have a significant role to play in shaping the future of society. The Johnsonian will be highlighting the achievements of women in various fields and discussing the challenges they face.

The Johnsonian will celebrate Women's History Month with a series of articles and events. The first article will focus on the role of women in the Civil War. The following articles will explore the contributions of women in science, art, and politics. The final article will be a reflection on the future of women's rights.

In addition to the women's history articles, the Johnsonian will also feature stories on women's health, education, and career opportunities. The Johnsonian is committed to providing a platform for women to share their experiences and ideas.

Join the Johnsonian in celebrating Women's History Month and learning more about the contributions of women to society.

In this issue:

- Women's History Month
- Women in Science
- Women in Art
- Women in Politics
- Women's Health
- Women's Education
- Women's Career Opportunities

So, let's celebrate! Let's honor the women who have shaped our world. Let's continue to learn from their stories and work towards creating a more equitable future.
