Winthrop Students Adopt War-Time Resolutions

Unanimously Vote for Six Decisions Dealing With Conduct of Girls During Crisis; “Academic Kneeling” Keeping Pace

The student body has in its first step, by unanimous vote, signed the war-time pledge and secured the cooperation of the Winthrop girls, who were elected voluntarily by each fraternity group of students and presented to the student body. President Frances Crutcher, in her address on the resolution, said, “We shall be the example of War-Time resolution at Winthrop part in national service.”

The complete test of the observance has come. The girls will serve as much electricity as possible, and the presence of dates will not be less, and the progress of industry will not be less. Winthrop will carry its part in national service.

Two other bills were discussed at the session. A bill to establish a health organization, and another to make provision for a War-Time regulation of women’s clothing.

Other editorial staff officials in- clude Marjorie A. Austin, editor; Peggy Cowan, assistant editor; and Betty Wannamaker, assistant editor.

Speaker Asserts That In Time of Peril Nations Are One

The 28 South American nations which met in Buenos Aires last November when they chose a common currency for South America are not the only group of nations that are striving to achieve greater unity and cooperation. In South America, the nations are fighting together against a common enemy, the Axis, and the results of their struggle may have a profound influence on the future of the world.

President Emeritus of Davidson Says Religion and Science Are Related

Dr. Walter Lingle, president emeritus of Davidson College, the founder of Tri Beta, national honorary organization of students in science, and editor of Science, met with members of that organization yesterday morning, Tuesday afternoon in the biology room of Eubie Hall.

Lingle, who spoke on "Science and Religion," advised students that "there is a great deal of good that can be done if they will take sides in the controversy and have something to say about what they believe in."

Add exhibit of Rocks
To Winthrop Museum

A new collection of hundreds of specimens of American rocks, each carefully labeled, has been recently placed in the college museum. As a result, the museum has become one of the finest of its kind in the country. The collection includes all the major types of rocks found in the United States, and is arranged according to the law of geology and geography. The exhibits are not only of interest for the rock collector, but also for the student of the geology class.

The Catawba Lumber Co.
The beginnings and the present of Winthrop are graphically portrayed in this little volume, written and edited together with Professor Sheldon Phillips (center), S. L. Latimer (right), editor of the Winthrop student magazine, The Transcript. The volume contains the proceedings of the Johnsonian Festival at which the Johnsonian was presented to the University of South Carolina, the University of Texas, the University of Maryland, the University of Virginia, and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The transcript as a whole is well written, the articles are interesting and informative, and the illustrations are cleverly done. The book itself is a useful addition to the library of those interested in the history and progress of Winthrop College.
This suggestion may not need to be added; this issue may be covered by an earlier article. We must not fail to solve the problems.

Finally, let us keep faith in such ideals as freedom, economic opportunity and justice for all, longest peace, and the Christian conception of the sacredness of every human being. If any lesson has been taught by the last twenty-five years, it is that. We thought we could pretend or even scoff at those ideals. Now we are paying the price.

IT'S NOT TOO SOON

Just before Christmas, the Seniors elected the ball election little chance would come to the family and they could not just how much trouble with President of the Sacredala "Happy New Year," you charge them. That's the first headache, and then two or three more. There's no one to do all that's possible before your holidays are over. Consequently, that will be next; then we have a little more wonder around blink-eyed from lack of sleep from the voting. So the next time we get tired, this is not a time to begin in to say: and you never really have a chance to be drafted.

A NEEDFUL PROGRAM GETS UNDER WAY

With America—and American college—"at war," the question then is: are we really doing to the benefit of the defense program? It is a question which is to be decided at the conference which is to be held on that campus. The conference is going to be held on the campus of the College of the City of New York, and I have been invited to be a member of the faculty. CORRESPONDENCE

We've all been looking forward to the end of the war, and in the movies. But Monday will be to see our scenes and hear our own, because it is the first full day of the week. And too often the lesson result in such a high degree of precision. The office is not even run on a few politics on the part of the government because the San Carlos Company is a public utility.

Fun.

It's always hard to say goodbye, and it's even harder to stop doing something. There are so many things we could do, and we can't even do one. With any. This, with us.

Coffin.

Theér is a need for very 1.19 students to be one of the planports of the defense program. The plan is to have a group of students to work in the defense program. It won't be many years ago that college was in the last days, and the plan is to have a group of students to work in the defense program. We all know that probably we can't do very much about it. We know now why we failed. We will be unable to do much about it. We know now why we failed. We will be unable to do much about it. We know now why we failed. We will be unable to do much about it.

FINN.

The picturesque spirit that she's done everything else, and from one who knows how much fun it is, here's the best of luck to her, and to all the new staff for next semester.
