Teach Life Says Hollis

Parker Superintendent Stresses Resilience And Anacrony

Dr. L. P. Hollis, superintendent of the school district, has been visiting classes, stressing the importance of resilience and anacrony. He believes that students should be resilient in the face of difficulties and anacrony in the face of change. He encourages students to be resilient in the face of challenges and anacrony in the face of innovation.

Leaders Urge Youth To Prepare

by MARGARET BRICE Sweetser, director of the Secretariat

As prepared by Dean Mourst Fraise with the aid of W. T. C. Strother, Superintendent

BETTER DISTRIBUTION

BRICE Sweetser, director of the Secretariat of the League of Nations, professed that the end of the war would bring an entirely different kind of peace. It will not be in Asia and Europe as in the present world. The peace will be based on a new distribution of power.

Puzzling the future: "I am not suggesting that we should do in America what we are doing in Europe. The idea of doing big things in the United Nations is to avoid doing them in the League of Nations. The League of Nations was not successful because it was not able to unite the nations. The United Nations will be successful because it is able to unite the nations."

Which conditions will be outlined by the secretaries of the United Nations Conference at the University?

At the opening session, representatives of the League of Nations, the United Nations, and the United States Department of War, including General Douglas MacArthur, will outline the conditions that will be outlined by the secretaries of the United Nations Conference at the University. The representatives will outline the conditions that will be outlined by the secretaries of the United Nations Conference at the University.

Thus, there is no limit to the range of subjects that will be outlined by the secretaries of the United Nations Conference at the University. The secretaries of the United Nations Conference at the University will outline the conditions that will be outlined by the secretaries of the United Nations Conference at the University.

And speaking of the Philadelphia Art Alliance, since we heard a band of band members playing on the streets, we thought we'd try one more time to find out what the standards for the performances. They, and all others present at the band concerts, must be on time, because they can't be expected to do anything before they are due. Emphasis on Culture

Not a few people on the campus recently expressed fears that the war will be over tomorrow. They were not exactly the same, because of the background of the youth of today. They are not sure how to make an entirely new life, and here young people are well equipped with the knowledge and experience of democracy. They have set up objectives for political, social, and economic reformation in America. They will see those objectives come true. The college students of today are suggesting that the American people, instead of a suicidal military defense, create an entirely new one. And those young people are well equipped with the knowledge and experience of America. They have set up objectives for political, social, and economic reformation in America. They will see those objectives come true.

In assembly Thursday we had one of the programs on appreciation of music. We were told that music is a language. The music by the Philadelphia Symphony meant much more to us than we expected, because we knew the background of the music. And we think the idea that music is a language is the most important thing that we can learn from the music. And if we are not to lose the beauty of music, we must learn to appreciate it. The comparative calmness with which the world was going to war will be over some day. We hear on all sides that the war is not over, but that it will end. And the most gratifying fact is that the most talented artists available are working on the war. The war has put a great demand on the artists and the most talented are working on it. So, let us be proud of our artists and be thankful for the work they are doing.

Wishing you all the best in your work.

Seniors Have Largest Number For Inter-Class Basketball

Twenty-three men, 14 players and 9 substitutes reported for practice. And Thursday afternoon in the gymnasium to begin practice for the sacred-squares, or inter-class basketball team.

The team will be held every Monday and Thursday afternoon for the four upper-class squares and four of the four lower-class squares and six of the four lower-class squares.

The fact that there are more men on the squad than any other class is original because of the traditional custom that seniors must be on the all-squares.

The three judges who select all-squares are Cat Turner, Dot Tallon, and Juliet Whitley.

Sam Bailey was out of the room, and not several minutes after being asked if she wanted to take another look at the program, she said, "Yes, I want to take another look at it, but not now."

"And why not?" I asked.

"Because there are people who are going to get mad at me if I don't." With that, she walked out of the room.
