WAR'S MAIMED GIVE NEW LOOK TO PARIS

American Surgeons Amaze the French by Their Work—Dull Times for Jewry Dealers.

There is no distress in Paris because of poverty due to the war, according to Ralph Dewey, a merchant of this city and Paris, who has just returned from a six weeks stay in the French capital. Mr. Dewey, whose home was in Paris for fifteen years, reports that while naturally, the city is in gloom and sorrow because almost every family has lost a member in the war, and the streets are filled with the maimed and the wounded, the French Government and private persons have looked after the families of soldiers so well that there is no lack of food, although the price of food has gone up tremendously.

"In the jewelry line, and especially in the diamond trade," it is said to be impossible to get anything," said Mr. Dewey yesterday. "There is no trade in diamonds at all. Some of the biggest people in Paris do not even show their goods. One man whom I have known for twenty years was living at the hotel where I stayed. He had closed his own home and taken his family to the hospital because it was next to impossible to get servants. He is doing no business. He told me everything he had was put away in vaults."

"He said he had received word from his partner, who is at the front, not to try to sell anything. Lots of small jewelry manufacturers with whom I deal before the war have closed their doors. In the Rue de la Paix you will find some of the more important shops open, but in each the atmosphere is funereal."

"Lots of people over here have got the idea that, owing to the casualties imposed by the present crisis, lots of French people would be wanting to part with their family jewels. This is absolutely untrue. It is a fact that everybody is economizing; but they are sanguine as to the outcome of the war. One wonders where the money is coming from that they live on. There have been absolutely no forced sales, and nobody has anything to sell. Nobody is selling at any such sale. Nobody is selling his antique furniture. One curious thing I got on the best authority, and that is that the Mont de Piété, the Government pawnshop, is actually doing less business than it handles when France is peaceful and prosperous."

"Of course Paris looks different. You see the maimed on every side. One day I was interested in watching three men in uniform get off a train car. One had lost his leg at the hip, another below the knee, while the third had lost an arm. Every Frenchman in military uniform that you see in Paris just now except the soldiers on their four days' furloughs, is wounded or maimed. You see men with plasters over their noses. Many of them are those who have been fitted with new noses at the American Ambulance Hospital, the work of which surgeons I am informed of all France. I am informed by surgeons in the hospital 'who have known for many years that many cases have been successful where a new nose is actually being built on a patient's face by the use of cartilage from sheep. And now that has been given up. The American Ambulance is giving two performances a week now. The lightest show in Paris, is a sort of revue at the Palais Royal, which pictures conditions at the beginning of the war. About the only funny part of it is a scene portraying the difficulties the new chauffeurs are having to learn how to drive taxicabs when the regular drivers were called into service."

"One of the most astonishing things I found in Paris was the work of the Blue Cross Hospital, under Colonel Gardiner, a Scotchman, which is doing the same 'for horses that the regular hospitals are doing for men who are wounded. It is no longer necessary to be brought in through his head. He is put

CAROLINA RAISED HORSES LEAD

Fine Lot of Horses Pass the High Chester—Many Criers Look Them Over.

Mr. H. W. Davis, of the Steele Creek section of Mecklenburg county, North Carolina, stopped over Wednesday night in Cheser with twenty head of stock on his way to the State Fair, in Columbia, next week. Many Chester people called at the Fraser Live Stock Co's stables to see the excellent lot of stock the most of which were raised by Mr. Davis on his farm, eight miles from Charlotte.

Mr. Davis has 64 head of stock consisting of 13 mule mares, a jack and jack, many muscular mules and trotting fillies. He has a stallion that is a beauty, Chevalier, a magnificent French horse of the Percheron variety, 17 hands high and weighs 1850 pounds. Five years ago Mr. Davis paid $2400 for him. Klondyke, a Jack, was purchased at Junction City, Ky., and never fails to take away the prize at every fair. Among the horses brought through Chester is two, ponies Mr. Davis calls them, which weigh over 1300 pounds each, and only three years old.

Mr. Davis clearly demonstrates the fact that there is no need for the Southern grower to go West for live stock and he believes in raising feed enough on the farm to feed the stock.

Mr. Davis also states that there is nothing like good roads. In his section lands have advanced from $20 to $90 and $100 per acre in the last fifteen years and he believes good roads have done the work.

SHORN OF HER PANTALLETTE

Girl's Ruffled Finery Arouses Hilarity in Amiah's Butlog.

New Rochelle, N. Y. Oct. 18.—A young woman whose high-crowned Puritan hat, Copenhagen blue velvet dress, and cream-colored silk ruffled pantallettes were the first word in fashion stepped out of the North Avenue station of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway this afternoon and started to cross the sidewalk to a waiting automobile. She stopped to speak to a young man who was leading a bulldog by a leash.

As they were talking, the dog, after wagging his tail in greeting to the young woman, suddenly saw the pantallettes. He backed off, growled, and with a spring attacked the ruffles. The young man tried to pull him away, but he did not let go until one pantalette was wrecked, disclosing a Copenhagen blue silk stocking underneath. The young woman retreated to the waiting automobile, and the young man, after hugging the dog's ears, made the animal apologize.

Mr. Luther Ellison, Secretary of the Lancaster Chamber of Commerce, is in the city today attending the Fair.

One of these horse hospitals, which are maintained by funds raised by English women, and they try to get the animal back into service again. There are three such hospitals, and their headquarters is in the Elvase Palace Hotel.

"Colonel Gardiner told me that more than 50 per cent of the wounded horses brought to these hospitals are sent back into service, sound again. He spoke particularly of a big black charger that had been brought in several times, and each time sent back to do his bit. The first time this animal was sent in from the field he had sixteen pieces of shrapnel in him. The French pooled the idea of these hospitals at first, when they see one horse being made to count as several different animals, that is, increased, and are now getting ready to start such hospitals themselves. It is costing $12,000 a month to maintain these hospitals, but the value of the horses saved many times multiplies that sum."

Mr. Dewey who shut up his Paris office early in the war, resented it during this visit.

EMBARGO ON ARMS FOR VILLA PARTY

Order Will Shut Off Unrecognized Claims to Power From Supplies of Munitions.

Washington, Oct. 20.—President Wilson issued simultaneously today a proclamation establishing an embargo on the shipment of arms and ammunition to Mexico and an order excepting from the prohibition the recognized de facto government of which Gen. Carranza is chief executive. The proclamation makes it clear that the United States intends that no forces opposed to the recognized government in Mexico, particularly those of Gen. Villa, shall long or obtain American munitions.

In enforcing the embargo the treasury will have the cooperation of the departments of state, war and justice.

With the announcement that the Villa agency here would be closed, it became known today that the consulates established by the other Villa faction in New York and other cities probably will be discontinued. The state department is now in the process of revoking consular office and de facto government, upon presentation of proper credentials.

A cablegram to the Carranza agency today describing scenes of the Jews in Mexico City over the closing of Carranza's consular office.

"Rousing cheers for Carranza and Woodrow Wilson resounded throughout the city. This indication of good feeling was gratifying to the foreign residents of the city."

ITALIAN SHIPS SAIL EAST

Squadron Probably Will Aid in Blockade Against Bulgaria.

Paris, October 19.—An Italian squadron has left for the East under sealed orders, supposedly to participate in the blockade of the Bulgarian coast, according to a British dispatch received here this evening, but which had been delayed in transmission.

Acting under a resolution of the last general assembly of the State's finance board yesterday borrowed $2,400 for Clemson college. The fertilizer tax revenue was materially reduced this year as a result of the war and it was necessary to borrow this money for the college. The money was secured at a rate of 2.44 per cent from the Palmetto National bank of Columbia.

REPULSE GERMAN DRIVE NEAR RHEIMS

Belgium Take the Offensive in French Line East of Rheims was Made by German Forces Today on a Wide Front and in Great Numbers. Prodigal and Violent Bombardment and the Use of Gas Shells and Clouds of Chlorine Gas Preceded the Attack Which Penetrated Part of the French Trenches.

A sharp counterattack by Joffre's soldiers followed, and, according to the official bulletin issued in Paris tonight, a large part of the lost ground was regained. With another French onslaught, it is said, the Germans were driven back to their own lines.

The Germans have also taken the offensive along the Yser-Ypres Canal in Belgium, and last night, according to Belgian official advices, gained a foothold on the east bank from this point they have since been dislodged.

The French night bulletin says: "To the east of Rheims the enemy attempted an attack with great force this morning on a front of ten kilometers, (approximately 6.2 miles, between La Pompeille and Prosmes, which ended in a complete check. This attack had been most carefully prepared, it being preceded by a prolonged bombardment by the artillery, with the employment of suffocating shells and banks of chlorine gas."

The enemy infantry succeeded at first in penetrating some parts of our trench of the first line, but was almost completely driven out by immediate counterattacks.

In the afternoon an energetic counteroffensive resulted in the repulsion of the last enemy troops back into the trenches which they had left. The German infantry expended in the course of that fruitless attempt heavy losses.

In the rest of the front there were artillery engagements. These were particularly violent in Artois, in the sector of Loos, to the north of the Aisne, on the plateau of Novour, between the Meuse and the Moselle, in the forest of Apremont and in Lorraine, to the south of Leclercy.

In the Vosges we exploded two canonicuffs (small mines) which shattered enemy mine works.

German forces last night delivered three serious attacks, making use of hand grenades, in the Bois-en-Hache to the northeast of Sochez. Our infantry, firmly entrenched in the complex recently conquered by us, completely repulsed their assaults. In this they were helped by our batteries.

To the south of the River Somme, in the sector of Libens, there were spirited rifle exchanges in which both sides took part.

In the Champagne district there have been some fighting with losses to the east of the neighborhood of Reims. The concentrated fire of our artillery against the batteries of the enemy put a stop to a severe bombardment directed by them against our position at Les Eparges. There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front.

The concentration of French aviators during the night of Oct. 17 and 18 bombardment of the German aviation field at Burelourt, to the northeast of Chateau Salins. It was apparent that certain hangars were demolished.

A Belgian official communication says:

After having taken last evening, as the result of a violent bombardment, a post established on the east bank of the Yser-Ypres Canal, the Germans were driven out that night by our troops.

There has been an intermittent fighting in the supreme points along our front, in the neighborhood of Oostkerke, Noordkerke, and "Ferryman's House."

The German Army Headquarters Staff statement said:

"In the Western theater there were no important incidents."

Mr. James Flischel, who for several years has been with the Shofar Drug Co. in this city, leaves the first of November for Columbia, where he has accepted a position with one of the Abbott stores.

WITNESS SAYS HE SAW COHEN SHOT.

Jeremiah Dunn Declares That When E. R. McDonnell Fired Pistol Cohen Fell.

Charleston, S. C. Oct. 19.—The coroner's inquest into the death of Sidney J. Cohen a newspaper reporter killed at a meeting here last Friday of the City Democratic Executive Committee, was continued tonight in an effort to complete a hearing. Several witnesses tonight told of the attempt from the room on the outbreak of the shooting which resulted in the death of Cohen and the wounding of four others.

Several of those called to the stand, it was said, admitted that they carried pistols to the meeting because of the "high tension due to the primary."

The first testimony in which any of the witnesses said they saw any of the victims fall when certain men fired came today from Jeremiah Dunn. Dunn quoted as testifying that E. R. McDonnell, Commissioner Hancock and Policeman Lato Reese had fought over the possession of a fired McManald obtained it a day before in a window trying to get out of the building at that moment, Dunn is accredited with saying McDonnell is in jail on a charge of "conspiracy to commit murder, assault and battery with intent to kill."

Dunn also is quoted as saying he saw Henry J. Brown, held on a charge of murder fire on W. E. Wiggate, who was wounded.

STUCKEY HAS EYE ON GOVERNORSHIP

Several New Enterprise Charted—Appointments by the Governor.

Columbia, October 17.—"Will not at this time make a positive statement, but there is every probability that I will be in the race for Governor next summer," was the answer made by Hon. W. A. Stuckey, of Bishopville, to a query from a newspaper man.

Mr. Stuckey is a prominent farmer of Lee County. He is highly educated, being a graduate of the University of South Carolina and a post-graduate of Vanderbilt University.

Interest attaches to the probable candidacy of Mr. Stuckey for Governor because of his hold on the so-called Bleasie faction. He was a political supporter of the former Governor and wielded a big influence in the Pe-Dee section of the State among that faction.

"I am not prepared to make a definite announcement just now," said Mr. Stuckey. "Public sentiment is in the process of formation and there is a constantly increasing demand for a direct representative of the farmer to run for Governor. If I am the man to fight, I am not this sentiment will crystallize and find a way to express itself. I am doing nothing to promote it and do not intend to in any way seek it personally. Let the people have a chance. If I do run my party will be glad to do so. I believe I am the best man for the State to have for its Governor."

MCCORMICK COUNTY LOSES

Fight for New Political Division Falls by Court Decision.

Columbia, Oct. 15.—The fight for McCormick County was lost today when an adverse decision was rendered by the supreme court. The county board of canvassers decided that the election had not been legally held. This decision was reversed by the State board of canvassers. The case was thrown into the court and the State board was overruled. The circuit court is affirmed by the decision today. The county was to be divided out of parts of Edgefield, Greenwood and Abbeville counties.

GERMANS PUT BAN ON GREED

Provision and Disgrace the Price of Speculation in Food.

To cope with the desperate shortage of food in the German Empire, the high prices of foodstuffs and ruthless exploitation of speculators in the necessities of everyday life, the German Federal Council has enacted an ordinance which embodies the greatest step toward state control of business yet undertaken in Germany. The ordinance was passed on Sept. 23 and is described in the Berliner Tageblatt of Sept. 25 just received here.

It provides for the possible prohibition of trade throughout the Empire for "unreliable persons" and further provides that persons violating the laws of maximum prices set by the State or persons who boost prices unduly, shall be punished not only with imprisonment, but also with the annulment of all their civil rights and civic honor. In addition, commiserate in articles of everyday use, including not only foodstuffs and feed, but also heating and lighting material and materials needed for war, can be made dependent upon permits on granted by the Imperial Chancery and the central authorities of the various German countries.

The Tageblatt further announces that even since the passage of this measure another resolution has been framed by the Imperial Office of the Interior, which is to be taken up shortly by the Federal Council. This measure provides for the establishment of central offices where the prices of various commodities are to be examined into and passed on to their reasonableness by the authorities, on the basis of bills of lading, accounts, and trade books, all of which are to be put at their disposal, together with other necessary books.

Commenting on this, the Berliner Tageblatt says:

"These are gigantic steps into the realm of State Socialism, but the war may not halt either before individualism in business. Just as the individual citizen must play even his individual life at the disposal of the popular community, just so there rests upon the individual business the patriotic duty of becoming a member of the internal fighting community. Whether the regulation has in all respects traveled along the proper line can be learned only from the future. But the Empire has here created a scope for itself affecting wide sections of the population."

"At all events, the new economic measures of the Federal Council concern the German people more than with mighty problems of organization. In the solution thereof, the individual citizen has the individual interests must be subordinated to the interests of the community. The individual parts should not feel the compulsion, but rather must be filled with the correct endeavor to contribute their utmost in the service of the economic battle. It is only by executing the new arrangement, then the goal of an improved provisioning of our populace should also be attained."

ALLIES CONTINUE TO LAND

Numbers Too Great for Balkan Railroads to Handle.

Athens, October 19.—British and French troops continue to disembark at Saloniki. The number of these troops is so large that it is impossible to forward them all promptly by rail to Serbia. Some of the troops are making forced marches across Greek territory in the direction of Serbia.

WOULD LET KING COMMAND

Former English Officer Says Let His Majesty Take Field.

London, October 19.—Sergeant Robert Boreford a former army officer, addressing a street meeting today, suggested that King George dissolve Parliament forthwith and as a coronation of the war in the field. If a suggestion was put in the form of a resolution, which was adopted. Thus far it has not been ascertained under what auspices the gathering was held or what its purpose was.

OUR RAILROAD CROSSINGS

The Southern Railway last year killed twelve times as many people on crossings as they did passengers on trains. This would indicate that the public does not give the road crossing the consideration they should, and as a matter of fact, they do not.

Thousands of people cross the tracks every day without even looking to see whether or not there is a train approaching. The railroads are deeply concerned, so it appears, in the number of people who are killed on the crossings, nevertheless it is true that they are negligent, to a certain extent, in the manner in which their crossings are kept. Hundreds of crossings in Chester county are in bad condition, some of which are within the corporate limits of Chester, and the railroads should of their own accord put these crossings in first-class condition. If they will not the proper authorities should force them to do so.

To be specific, we refer to the several crossings near the Caro Cotton Mills which are in very bad condition. The County Supervisor has been handling these with the railroad officials and also with the Railroad Commissioners but so far, has been unable to get anything done. If the railroads will not repair these crossings by request we believe the matter should be placed in the hands of the Supervisors of the County and the City and see what they can do.

YOUR NEWSPAPER AS A PARTNER.

Are you doing business by yourself like that great American merchant, John Wamamaker, or have you active or silent partners to share in your exploits and to push business and get business? Mr. Wamamaker started business with a partner, but just as soon as it got big enough to take in a partner that he could rely on, he admitted the newspapers as silent partners upon whom he could rely implicitly to work one end of the business while he worked the other. He says he owes his tremendous success to advertising, and yet his newspaper partners get but a fractional part of his income from the business that printer's inks gets for him.

Other great American establishments have had the same experience. The biggest concerns in this country are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico by reason of their silent partners—the newspapers. Women's Wear is a great New York publication that is devoted to a specialty of immediate concern in every American home, and it referred a few days ago to the tremendous success of the Kaufman hat stores, set on foot in New York by Ben. H. Kaufman. Women's Wear notes the fact that in a recent newspaper interview S. H. Kaufman, brother of the hat man, attributed his brother's phenomenal success solely to extensive newspaper advertising.

Let us see how phenomenal the success of the Kaufman hat stores has been. The business was started in New York only 12 years ago with a capital of $5,000. Today it consists of 50 stores doing a year's business of $1,500,000. When asked to what he attributed this remarkable growth of his brother's enterprise, Mr. Kaufmann said:

"We did the only sensible and effective thing to do in poor seasons—advertise more in the newspapers. It is barely 12 years since my brother opened that first store in New York and his only partner has been the newspapers."

That is a matter of practical and general interest that shows how a man can succeed when he knows what kind of partners to use, and besides that it shows that in the great city of New York there are fine opportunities for the right sort of men with small capital. One might balk at the idea of trying to go into business in such a city as New York unless he had a barrel of money, but Mr. Kaufman turned the trick on his $5,000 by a bit of wisdom—knowledge of the power and value of advertising, which he made a tremendous portion of his capital. He capitalized printer's ink. That is all there is to it, except a success that has astonished even New York—Wilmington Star.

A CHANGE IN TACTICS.

Even the young man who has not as yet reached his thirtieth year can recall the days when it appeared to be necessary for a lawyer to "bully" witnesses and prisoners in order to be known as a "sure-enough lawyer."

Today things are entirely different along this line. The "sure-enough lawyer" must be a gentleman in the court room in order to be respected as a man should be.

When a lawyer today begins to "bully" a witness who is timid or nervous you can see a look of disgust pass over the court. It is perfectly good form to "trap" a witness but the smoother it is done the more effective.

THE FRUITFUL DAYS.

Now comes the season of accomplishment. Summer's light and heat have long ago sufficed these buildings with which we wrap ourselves against the influences of the rural world and have laid up even in the darkest of us some store of energy, some additional gift of life. Whether we see it or not we are ready now, if ever, against the darkness of winter when the tides of being are low and its wheels turn slowly. We have before us the autumn and inspiration of the earth's mighty harvest, the warning of those shortened days, and "spur of cooler weather. Those who teach, know that the success of their year's work depends on the drive of the next four months. Those who direct the enterprises of trade and manufacture know that this is the time to realize what has long been planned. If you propose to learn anything of the past, now is the hour for your beginning; the beneficent strength of things is on your side and the course of the world runs with yours. The past is a help, not a hindrance, and the way is clear toward whatever good may be your goal.—Collier's.

State Department Considers Communication to Germany on Flight of Intergo Officers.

Washington, Oct. 21.—State department officials are considering the form of a communication that may go to the German government concerning the escape of two commanding officers and six warrant officers from the intowed German commerce raiders at the Norfolk navy yard.

Acting Secretary Roosevelt sent Secretary Lansing tonight a formal report on the escape of the men, his letter following a conference with the secretary of state. If it is determined that the general parole covering all officers and men of their crews, given by the commanders of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm and the Prinz Eitel Friedrich, can be construed as a personal obligation on the two commanding officers missing from the Eitel, the German government probably will be asked to return Lieut. Koch and Dr. Kronmuck to the custody of the United States if they reach German soil. There are precedents for such a request. In the meantime strict guard is being maintained on the two raiders.

No trace of any of the missing Germans had been reported tonight.

W. R. Davenport of Parker, N. C., long suffered from a peculiar malady of the stomach. He sought treatment with but little relief. At times it seemed that he would have to give up hope.

He took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and found immediate benefit. He wrote: "For years I have suffered from a disease which puzzled doctors. They termed it catarrh of the stomach, saying the only hope would be a change of climate, and that in all probability I would never get well. Then I heard of your remedy. One bottle gave me instant relief. It made me feel like a new man. Your full course of treatment has also cured me. Several of my friends have also been cured."

TRAINING AND PRUNING THE GRAPE WILL BRING PROFITABLE RESULTS

Grapes is One of Hardest and Surest Fruits, But Will Not Develop Well Without Proper Care—Very Important to Train Vines to Some Definite Form.

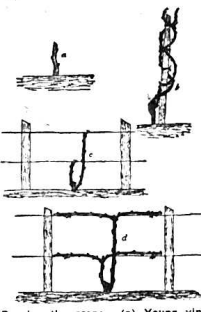

Unquestionably, the grape is one of the surest fruits that can be grown in South Carolina. Practically all the standard varieties will succeed. It is the fruit often injured by late frost. In general, it is safe to say that when vines are properly cared for there is almost a certainty of a crop every year.

But although the grape will produce some fruit under almost any treatment, yet results that are really worth having cannot be obtained without proper care of the vine. The old practice of planting a vine just anywhere and letting it grow at will is entirely wrong. Under such conditions, vines become thick and fast, and at about the time the grapes begin to color up, they begin to rot. As a result when the fruit should be ready for use, one-half or two thirds of it is worthless. Besides, vines handled thus are weak and last only a few seasons.

Perhaps the worst mistake in grape culture is failure to prune properly. It is very important that the vines be trained to some definite form. The standard method of training the grape is as follows:

First year: Plant one-year-old vines. As soon as they have been put out, cut them to the buds on the main stem (as in illustration). Should all three of these grow, rub one off, leaving the strongest two to grow and form the frame of the vine. During the first year, the young shoots should be trained to a stake, as shown at (a) in illustration. This is to produce a strong main stem. Should they be allowed to grow freely, they will be weak and liable to injury.

Second year: A trellis must now be prepared. Set posts 20 feet apart along one row of vines. They will give space for a vine between each two posts. The posts, when set, should show four feet of free above the ground. The ends of the posts should be at least three feet in the ground and will be used to present stakes when the vines are stretched. The main stems should be set back two feet and the young vines should be taken off the stakes, one cut off at the point of the first wire and the other allowed to extend to the top wire, as shown at (c).

Pruning the grape. (a) Young vine transplanted and headed back to three buds. (b) First year's growth, two canes allowed to grow. (c) Third season's pruning. (d) Second and all subsequent seasons' pruning.

Third year: Numerous canes will be thrown out from the two that were left the preceding season. The pruning necessary this year will consist of leaving the main stem of the previous year, one cane from each of the two vines, and one cane from each of the two vines, one being such way from an old vine on both sides. These four canes are commonly called "arms." They form the frame on which the fruiting canes will be produced.

After the year the pruning will consist of leaving the four "arms" each four feet long, and one cane from each of the two vines, one being such way from an old vine on both sides. This cannot be done all the canes should be cut off in two or three hours. The buds will throw out shoots the next season on which the fruit will be borne. It is a way best to follow the method of two-purged parents of the vine which will produce from 75 to 100 bunches of grapes each year, which is enough. The vines are also kept thinned out, so that the vines strike all portions and that spraying can be done successfully.

For further information on the grape, farmers should write the State Experiment Station, Clemson College, and ask for Bulletin No. 15, "Fruit Culture for South Carolina."

J. P. NIVEN, Assistant in Horticulture, Clemson Agricultural College.

WHY CROSS BREEDING IS NOT ADVISABLE

Farmers sometimes get the mistaken idea that cross breeding will improve their stock. On the contrary, cross breeding has many disadvantages and farmers are strongly advised not to attempt it. It has not been used with success in the hands of breeders of long experience, but for the inexperienced breeder it is a most dangerous practice.

Cross breeding is the mating of two purebred animals of different breeds. For example, a purebred Hereford bull with a purebred Angus cow, or a purebred Berkshire boar with a purebred Duroc Jersey sow. It should be clearly distinguished from grading, which means the mating of a purebred with a scrub or an animal of very little pure blood, and which can be done with perfect safety and is agreed upon by farmers.

One of the principles upon which livestock breeding is based is that like tends to breed like. When two purebreds of the same breed are mated, we expect the offspring to be like the parents, because there is, behind each parent, a long line of pure blood. When two purebreds of different breeds are mated (crossbreeding), there at once takes place a battle of breeds and the offspring will be like that parent whose blood is strongest. When, therefore, two old breeds, as Tamworth and Berkshire, or Jersey and Holstein, are mated, there is a better combat between bloods and influences that have prevailed centuries to reach their present state.

In cross breeding the first cross is sometimes good, but after that such breeding is very uncertain, because the nature of the offspring will depend upon whichever of its bloods gets the mastery. Moreover, there is a danger that sometimes the good blood of each parent will balance that in the other, which will cause an outcropping of some bad characters that had been held in check ever since the breeds began.

Because of this uncertainty of results, a crossbred sire should never be used nor any crossbred female kept for breeding, except where a purebred is at the head of the herd. Because breeders understand this, a crossbred can never bring more on the market than it is worth for meat and milk, and farmers who breed such animals lose his chance of selling his best product at purebred prices.

If for no other reason than this, a farmer should hesitate to cross breed. Keep in mind clearly the difference between the purebred and the crossbred. The purebred is the offspring of two purebred parents of the same breed. The crossbred is the offspring of two purebred parents of different breeds. A crossbred can never be registered, for if each of its parents was a breed champion.

If cross breeding is inadvisable, however, grading is advisable and is recognized as the quickest economical way of building up a herd. Grading is the mating of a purebred with a scrub or with a grade. Generally the purebred used is the sire and the scrub or grade is the dam. Grading is perfectly safe because all the power is on one side and the results can be predicted. A purebred Angus bull mated with scrub cows will produce a grade of which more than eighty per cent are pure black and hornless, such is the power of pure blood over mixed blood. There is no better way for the young breeder to begin than with a grade herd and a purebred sire. In a few years he can make his herd as profitable as purebreds and will have learned how to take care of a purebred. But let him avoid cross breeding. J. M. BURGESS, Associate Professor of Dairying, Clemson Agricultural College.

Last year the extension division of Clemson College put forth its greatest efforts in a campaign for increasing the acreage of wheat and oats. This year it is again urging the sowing of wheat and oats, but has added livestock to its propaganda. "Take the second step—livestock!"

Manure is subject to heavy losses from several sources. For instance, many farmers lose practically all their liquid manure, yet this contains more valuable plant food than the solid. There are a number of ways to save stable manure and every farmer should exert himself to get the most possible out of his manure.

The most serious limiting factor in Southern agriculture is lack of humus in the soil. The easiest and most economical way to get humus in the soil is by growing and turning winter crops. This also enables the farmer to get nitrogen from the air and cut his fertilizer bill.
