WILMINGTON.

JEHOVAH'S DAUGHTER.

Was She Offered in Sacrifice?—The passage over the translation of a Hebrew word.

...The foregoing was intended for the Quarterly's Drawer, but we deem it of sufficient importance to merit a fuller account than we could give in that department. The passage which presents the gist of the matter reads as follows: And Jehovah vowed a vow unto Abraham, and said: I will not deliver thee from the children of Ammon; for my hand thou shalt be tied; whomever cometh forth from the doors of my house to meet me, when I return in peace from the children of Ammon, it shall be Jehovah's, and I will offer it for a burnt offering. The pivot upon which the meaning of this passage turns, is the Hebrew conjunction, 'and'. If it is to be translated 'and', in this passage, then the meaning is, that Jehovah vowed to offer to Jehovah as a burnt offering whomever might come from the doors of his house to meet him on his successful campaign against the children of Ammon. And of course, he would imply that, in carrying out this vow, Jehovah did lay his daughter and herself as a burnt offering.

Value of Right Living.

The value of right living and that the people of the United States really think about it commands attention in a case that is at the moment stirring Missouri. John William January, serving a term of five years in the Federal prison at Leavenworth, reported before the expiration of his term. He had robbed a small post-office in Oklahoma when he was twenty-one years of age. That was his only crime, and he would have been released in another eight months. However, the chance came to escape, and he took it. After moving about a short time January settled in Kansas City, changed his name, labored until he had accumulated a little money and then engaged in business. He prospered, married and was in every way a good citizen. Then an ex-convict, who had known him in prison, brought about his arrest for a small standing reward promised for by the law. The circumstances of the case were quickly made public through the columns of a newspaper. It is one of the advantages of American journalism—and the public sense of justice was instantly aroused. Bankers, doctors, lawyers, and other prominent men and professional men of Kansas City put their names to a petition for the man's pardon. Over thirty signed petitions, and the lower house of the legislature informed them by resolution. Congress and United States Senator Blair, who was then the president, January will get his pardon, and he can go on living an honest life, better off than he was before he was betrayed by a criminal, who, though released, will always be a convict. There will be no more hunting for, for there is no chasing the man of the brief. The Missouri is characteristic of this nation. As a people we are honest and we applaud it. Honestly right living. The story of John William January—New York Commercial.

The Immigrant Question.

In December some negro working on a farm asked if the white people would come over here and run all the negroes from their farms. They had read about the Wiltshire and heard "white men" would come over here and do three times as much work as any negro and make twice as much corn and cotton as now made. They were informed that they need have no fear but go ahead with their work. They never saw any foreign labor on the farm. Mr. Shelton of this state has returned from Europe and reports and gives it as his opinion that laborers will not come unless the same wages are paid to them that they get in their native land. We would like to see farmers over here in the cotton and tobacco belt of this state paying $10 to $15 a man, and the negroes and white men coming to men to work on farms. In that event the filling and landwork would be done. This immigration scheme is a very bad one for the farm hands are concerned. The Spartan.

SALE OF COCAINE IS FORBIDDEN.

Some Alleged Eradicators Being Tried.

At the last session of the legislative body of this State the sale of cocaine and such like drugs, the fight for the enactment of such a law was made last winter when it was shown in these columns that a hold the drug has on certain classes in Columbia.

It was pointed out at that time that many people become addicted to the use of cocaine because of the patent medicines with cocaine as the base. The use of these drugs affords a means of relief which is very deceptive and a cure for nasal catarrh and it is not long before they are regular cocaine smokers.

The act passed by the legislature says that any person "who shall sell cocaine upon the written prescription of a prescribing physician to be used for the personal use of such physician, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished for the first offense by a fine not exceeding $100 or by imprisonment, not exceeding 30 days." For subsequent offenses the fine to be $500.

Even with such a plain law as that on the statute books, the sale of cocaine has not been stopped. The State is informed that patent medicines containing a large per cent of cocaine are on sale in Columbia.

An empty package has been handed to the State. The label says: "Red Star Catarrh Powder, a valuable remedy for the treatment of catarrh. Directions inside. Price 25 cents. Prepared only by Red Star Chemical Company, Baltimore, Md." On the reverse of the box, the label says: "Each ounce contains hydrochlorate of cocaine 10 grains."

The freedom on a printed slip inside of the box says: "Red Star Catarrh Powder."

"A valuable remedy in the treatment of nasal catarrh. The nasal cavity being exposed to the changes of the weather, is more liable to be affected than other parts."

"Directions: 'Divulge the contents of this package a pint of water, and use as a douche three times a day.'

Prepared only by Red Star Chemical Company, Baltimore, Md."

Dr. O. Y. Owings, who as chairman of the legislative committee of the State Pharmaceutical Association, has made a careful investigation of the case, making the following written report through the columns of The State:

"I wish to call the attention of the druggists of South Carolina to a certain fact, that there is now being introduced into this State and sold here a preparation for catarrh with the label 'Red Star Catarrh Powder.'"

"It is manufactured by the Red Star Chemical Company, Baltimore, Md., and bears the serial No. 699 of the national pure food and drug act of Jan. 20, 1906, which act provides that powder contains 86 per cent of cocaine in each ounce."

"I reply to inquiry, dated July 21, to the attorney-general of South Carolina I have the following:

Columbia, S. C., March, 1907: Dr. O. Y. Owings, Columbia, S. C. Dear Sir: In reply to your letter of Feb. 24, I beg to say that I have examined the act of the general assembly to which you refer, and am of the opinion that it is not a law for cocaine."

This necessarily implies all substances and mixtures containing cocaine."

Yours truly, J. Fraser Lyon, Attorney General.

"I write this card as a warning to those who are selling this preparation as they are amenable to, and liable to prosecution under the State law."

"The plan of serial numbering by the department at Washington is solely for the purpose of preventing the sale of the sample and guaranteed formula submitted by the manufacturer was analyzed by the department and does not agree therewith, thereby holding the manufacturer liable for the guaranteed formula under said serial number."

"The serial number guarantee is in no manner a guarantee of purity by the department at Washington to the distributor, or consumer, nor does it protect the distributor or retailer against the state law of any one of the several States united."

O. Y. Owings, Chairman Legislative Committee Pharmaceutical Association of South Carolina—The State.

Wonderful Eczema Cure.

"One that has been used for five years," writes W. A. Adams, Newport, Pa. "Two of our home doctors said the cure was wonderful. It has been tried. We then employed a doctor who had no better success. By chance we read about Electric Bitter and bought a bottle and soon noticed the cure. It was the best I have ever seen. I am now cured. It is the best of all blood purifiers. It is sold by Chemist, 100 South Main Street, Chester, S. C., and standard Pharmacy, 500 E. 11th Street, Philadelphia, Pa."

Foley's Honey is the best of all blood purifiers. It is sold by Chemist, 100 South Main Street, Chester, S. C., and standard Pharmacy, 500 E. 11th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Festerville Items.

Festerville, May 8.—In this day of liberal fertilizing and increased yields of crops, it is not surprising that many other farmers of the town and profit connected with the farm. I have been informed that one of our neighbors has recently bought some very nice home raised bacon from Mr. Albert Howe, who lives in the southern part of the Festerville community. Mr. Howe will have some very fine ham and other meats for sale. Not many years ago Mr. Howe rented land in this community, but he now owns a good farm.

Not long ago while at Dr. J. R. Coleman's, our popular and efficient physician, I saw some very fine young colts, the specialties of which range from one to three years. His horse colts not yet two years old is certainly a very fine animal. The doctor also has some very fine Maryland colts, and contemplates selling Berkshire hogs to his live stock department.

Mr. D. O. Cowie, another one of our enterprising and progressive farmers, has some very fine young mules of his own raising. Mr. Cowie raised some fine mules a few years ago, and is evidently well aware of the fact that they can be raised much cheaper than buying them at present prices.

The success of that parties herein mentioned demonstrates very clearly that farming can be made remunerative. What I have written is not like most things that are written in an article, neither is it a desire to advertise any particular person, but I trust it may prove instructive in suggesting a plan on the part of others to adopt the same methods that have proven successful with those I have mentioned.

As we have written in the many things of beauty and interest that tends to make farm life attractive we are impressed with the idea that Thomas Gray could have written these splendid verses which immortalized his name, in the month of December or January, on some of the barren hills of England. The first verse is as follows:

"The curfew tolls the knell of parting day,
The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea,
And plow the sward with dark and dreary gleam,
And weary to the work to darkness goes,
No! he has lived in this southern land and composed that verse in the month of May when the roses are blooming and the mocking birds are singing and all the trees are covered with their beautiful foliage, it would not have made such a melancholy tone."

In 1904 I traveled through the states of Tennessee, Kentucky, Indiana and Illinois, and on the walk back I saw many evidences of culture and industry and I thought surely there must live here those who love the avocation of farming. The man who can make the best crops on a small tract of land with the least expense, other things being equal, is in my judgment, decidedly the best farmer. Some one who has visited Festerville was once asked for an opinion of W. E. Gladstone as an actor, and he said, actor, and an actor, and real for the cause he supports that amounts to love for the principles he advocates. We live in an age of progress, and also an age of scepticism. It is not sufficient to succeed we must study farming from a practical and scientific standpoint. B. R. J.

My Best Friend.

Alexander Bentley, who lives on Barn Route 1, Fort Edward, N. Y., says: "Dr. King's New Discovery is the best medicine I have ever used. It cured me of asthma six years ago. It has also performed a wonderful cure of incipient consumption for my son's wife. The first bottle ended the terrible cough, and this accomplished, the other symptoms left me by one, until she was perfectly well. Dr. King's New Discovery is the best medicine I have ever used. It is simply marvelous." No other cure has been found. This is guaranteed by the Chester Drug Co. and Standard Pharmacy, 500 and 5100 East Main Street.

The Indispensible Mule.

There is hope for the Panama canal, says the announcement that the Mule will be employed on the job. "We will pull it through, if anything, no. You can't fight a war with a big water mule. Build a railroad or run a farm without a mule. He is the greatest factor in civilization despite his shortness on pedigree and lack of social standing.—American Farmer.

A Hustling Undertaker.

The Greenville News tells of a hustling undertaker in Greenville, who prepared a body, embalming and fitting it in the most improved style for burial and sent it to the railroad station to be shipped." All in three and a half hours from the time of death. This may be a good advertisement for the undertaker, but we don't see that it makes death any more attractive.—Spartanburg Journal.

That "Hoodoo" Engine.

Engine No. 1817, which went down in the fatal Fishing Creek wreck, still rests in the minds of the people of this city, is now standing on the side track in front of the passenger depot. Friday night it got away in some way or another and rolled off of the end of the switch. Some of the employees say that they could not get a negro to go about it Friday night, all of them saying that Engineer Brickman, who it will be remembered, was crushed to death underneath this engine's spire was around the engine and that was why it ran away. A squad of hands got to work Saturday morning and pulled it back on the track.—Rock Hill Record.

A force of hands went to work and laid a track around the wreck and the train came in yesterday evening about two hours late.
