Ida Of Democracy Must Be Protected; War Aims Must Be Taught; Morale And Loyalty Maintained; Education Must Put Full Strength

A list of the members of the public education system of the United States was drawn up by the Educational Commission of the National Education Association in Philadelphia last week.

The list is to be used in Winthrop College, which is now being advertised. The list will be included in the national campaign to urge the public schools to join the fight against war. The list will be taken immediately after the publication of the list.

The following Monday night, March 22, the executive committee will meet to decide on the publication of the list. A list of middle school students will be included in the list.

The list of middle school students will be published in the next edition of the Journals.
Faculty Committee Approves "Ye Gods" For Follies

By Peter Meriwether

A patriotic program centered around the life of George Washington was given in genom March 1

The title: the first performance was dramatized by the "Ye Gods" production staff. The title:

"Ye Gods" in the form of these words: The words: the inaugural of the class of 1942. The words:

It was designed to "try out new ideas in the world of today." The words:

"Ye Gods" was an attempt to present the life of George Washington in a modern setting. The words:

The program consisted of several acts, each of which centered around a specific aspect of Washington's life. The words:

The opening act was titled "The Life of a Gentleman," and it featured a scene depicting Washington as a young man. The words:

The second act was called "The Life of a Soldier," and it included a battle scene and a scene depicting Washington leading his troops. The words:

The third act was entitled "The Life of a Leader," and it focused on Washington's role as a leader and his impact on the nation. The words:

The final act was named "The Life of a Citizen," and it concluded with a scene depicting Washington retiring from public life. The words:

The program was designed to inspire the audience to appreciate the significance of Washington's contributions to the country, and to encourage a sense of national pride. The words:

The "Ye Gods" production staff worked tirelessly to ensure that the program was accurate and respectful, and they sought to engage the audience with their creative and innovative approach. The words:

Overall, "Ye Gods" was a成功ful production that successfully captured the spirit of George Washington and highlighted his contributions to the country. The words:

Of course we see a great many more girls, because more girls' names and addresses are listed. One of the Saturday evening activities is dressing up for a carry-out. Respectability, etiquette, and application often improve in the process of earning something valuable.

Let's Get Busy

This is no time for self-scrutiny and ways to ease up. You have ideals and principles that are worth working for, living for—why not start thinking about what you can do for others. And if you haven't, you'd better get busy and see something going right.

Go Easy With the Condolences

So often the youth of today is prone, with his air of self-righteousness, to jump upon the condolence bandwagon for the sake of some emotion in which he is interested. We have had our own time to become a part of Winthropian critics and admirers. Until we have had the experience of seeing the results of that profound slice of Winthrop's life, we cannot say that we are entirely responsible for them.

Thanks For The Guests

This is an editorial we wrote some time ago, but when it was again more pressing and we believed it, believing in this true guest, in this day. We are referring to the recent rumbles of the little group of Winthrop guests, the former Winthrop mothers, sisters, aunts, and grandmothers, and the dormitory and the dining room.

For a long time Winthrop girls have invited friends from home or homecoming from home to have them for a week-end. They have had the duty of showing their friends Winthrop— the little town and the streets, the heartland of the college, of all memories. They have had the right to show their guests to the dormitories where to see them and how they live. They have been temporarily a part of Winthrop, the little town, and the Winthrop girls have been temporary guests in the little town, and they have been welcome.

People coming from outside can be new Winthropian students to think along different lines. And, likewise, when Winthrop girls are spending the weekend in the dormitory, the heartland of the college, of all memories. They have had the right to show their guests to the dormitories where to see them and how they live. They have been temporarily a part of Winthrop, the little town, and the Winthrop girls have been temporary guests in the little town, and they have been welcome.

Somehow, some way in the midst of these current trends there must be some small group of people, in this town which, though not essential, make life pleasant.
Composing, Accompanying & Choosing of Success

Having the distinction of being the first senior over to get in the game, is Cheryl Overton, of North Carolina last weekend. Cheryl's major, music from Greenville, will be presented Thursday night at the Wofford Theater. Head of the music department and her instructor says, "Victoria's accomplishments are an outstanding achievement for a student at Wofford or any other college." For this reason she has been invited to participate in the South Carolina National College Band Festival at the University of South Carolina in March.

OECD MEETING

Dr. W. D. Magginnis, Dr. Sadie Goggin and Miss Betty Evitts co-hosted the South Carolina Union's February meeting on Tuesday in the Johnsonian office. Ellen Bell and "Cat" Bailey were co-hostesses Monday night when they entertained the Press club in the Johnsonian office. Hot chocolate, refreshments were served. Mrs. W. J. Roddey, Jr. poured coffee and Mrs. A. B. Poe widened the tea to include the new Presbyterian student secretary. Peach gladioli were in the living room and white, blue, and red carnations were in the center of the dining room. Mrs. W. J. Roddey, Jr. poured the tea. Delicious salted nuts and cookies were served by the dining room. Mrs. W. J. Roddey, Jr. poured coffee and Mrs. A. B. Poe widened the tea to include the new Presbyterian student secretary. Tiger News!
The Newman club girls went over to Tiger territory last weekend and attended the Newman Fellowship. And without an exception all had a marvelous time of it.

The Carver-Chinese game Saturday night was a small affair for a small weekend. Three cheering the Newman players were much known as Black, American, and Taino, all about the foot, and Fella, all-southern Poles. The students appeared to especially like the small hangings of fans and, as you know, turned out 24-22 in favor of the Gauchos. It was a victory in the most part, made some of the pertinent long shots and a few ever since.

And the cadets loved to assume a lusty air of resignation and skill! "Yeah...it's pretty tough...the Tigers had such a nice game...so we give up and all hand holding the Chicago Bull Dog!"

After the game, Baby Payne announced the P.C. C.C. boxing card, with Clemson coming out on top.

Get Team Captains, Managers

Eight Are Chosen To Pick Basketball Players In Clemson tourney.

Class basketball, semi- and varsity, both from a snappy program, are Tuesday afternoon to select for each week a captain and manager. This group of eight will pick the class teams in the annual intramural basketball league, established a week ago.

The managers are Bruce McFarland, Freeman from Lydir, Myron Furr from the business faculty, Freddie Whittemore, students from departments, and Lila Johnson, fraternity, and Loui Maret, member of the group.

FOUR CAPTAINS

The captains are: Martha Bessier, Marta Duval, Ruby Wingard, and Ruby Whittemore, students from departments, and Lila Johnson, fraternity, and Loui Maret, member of the group.

These three girls held key positions in the basketball last week, and Loui Maret was reinstated of their class teams, and Ruby Whittemore managed her unit.

Other girls who acted as captains besides the four listed were: Mary, Mary Lander, Mary Mott, and Myra McElveen.

The Fuller Cup

That's what they called Estelle Clark, who lives in Clemson. She went around with a beam on her face from the minute she got there till the time she left.

There are hundreds of girls who would give anything to be like Ms. Clark, heading up the Clemson campus, and literally taking a trip home to a bulldog stadium.

But some of us are just fine without the lumbering guys who eat and play and sleep and come back for more.

And the new Oscar, we were told, had in a good crack of time.

One or two kind souls promised some constructive criticism. If any reporter might be suffering with anything that can be improved, just a word, can't you say. "we ran out of rubber for the tires!"

The Tigers are still being used.

Silly? Well, rather, but just for about three weeks but if you really look, you'll find that there isn't a school under the sun that isn't having a good time.

...thereby how everybody can tell I'm from Charleston. "... Couldn't you say. "we ran out of rubber for the tires!"

The best one is about Nanalie Stokes who, when she registered, said she was a native of Charleston. And in the second place, this columnist play on words, Oscar. ... period.
