Need to Be on Guard.

Have we realized the happy progress that the temperance movement has made. We see the statement that among thirty-six millions of American people the saloon has already been abolished. In this let us rejoice and take courage. At the same time we have need to be on our guard against a serious error in this direction. In North Carolina some men are using the Sabbath day for meetings in favor of a prohibitory liquor law. This is a political issue; our people ought not to be tempted to use the Sabbath day for the discussion of political questions. Southern Presbyterian.

Rock Hill's Telephone Tolls.

The railroad commission has received a petition from the chamber of commerce of Rock Hill, requesting a reduction in the telephone charges made by the local company. At a hearing yesterday it was brought out that $2 per month was charged for residence telephones and $3 per month for office telephones.

This price was inserted in the franchise given by the city and the commission decided that the matter should be brought before the Rock Hill council for action before any toll could be done by the commission. The State.

Weather for April.

According to the monthly meteorological summary issued by the United States Weather Bureau for the past month, April acted unlike a spring month. The weather was foggy and instead of bringing sunshine, we were given a cloudy day, with a generous quantity of "wet." A few more days like that of April 1st, would give a berth in the same beach with the three precedings months.

During the month there were but six clear days. The weather was partly cloudy; there was rain on 13 days of the month; fog on two days and thunderstorms on five days. The total precipitation for the month was 2.52 inches. Of an inch in excess of the average for the month of April for the past 31 years. The accumulated excess in rain since January 7, 1918, was 2.92 inches. The greatest precipitation in 24 hours was .98 of an inch on the 26th and 27th.

The mean temperature for the month was 53.7 degrees. The mean temperature for the same month for the past 21 years of 53, the average daily excess of this month as compared with the mean of the past 21 years being four degrees. The highest mean temperature recorded during April was 59 in 1850; the lowest, mean being 47 in 1859. The highest temperature during the past month was recorded on the 10th, when the thermometer registered 60; the lowest was on the 14th, when the degree was 47. There was a heavy frost. The greatest daily range in temperature was on the 10th, the highest recorded being 60 and the lowest 47, a difference of 13 degrees. The least daily range was on the day previous, when the maximum recorded was 54 and the minimum was 49, a difference of five degrees. The highest temperature ever recorded at this station during the month of April was 69, the lowest, 29. Of our winter records the number of days since January 1 is shown to be 14 degrees to April 30; the accumulated excess for that period being 17.9 degrees.

The prevailing direction of the wind for the month was south; the average hourly velocity 7.1 miles. The heaviest rain fell here on the 27th on the last day of the month, 37 miles per hour.—The State.

Fits Dangerous to Health.

Some time ago the Board of Health recommended that all the residents of the city should if possible screen their homes as a means of preventing the entrance of the flies, which are not only a nuisance, but a dangerous bearer of disease, as well medical men and bacteriologists regard the little black pest as one of the most dangerous of the many ways by which germs are spread.

A careful study will convince any one that the recommendation of the Board of Health is one which should be carried out.

Viewed by itself the familiar little pest is not so objectionable as to be so exceedingly annoying, seems to be a very diligent and almost tidy little insect, and its own business and troubling no one. But that is not any way of looking at it.

As a bearer of disease it becomes a distinctly destructive and evil insect. It has been shown to be a vector that one fly alone generally carries in his mouth and on his feet and legs over one hundred thousand disease germs, showing that the flies with which dangerous germs may be disseminated by the active medium.

It has also been shown that flies in their journeying from one place to another also spread a great many of the most violent and deadly poisons.

Investigation shows that as the temperature rises the flies become more numerous and their activity becomes generally prevalent, with a corresponding increase in mortality. While climatic conditions, by reducing the number of flies, favor the contraction of the disease, they are not usually the real cause of it. The temperature does not produce the specific germs which invariably accompany the malady. The activity of the insect is in proportion to the temperature, and the time at which it is most active and most numerous corresponds exactly with the time of the year in which typhoid and other intestinal diseases.

The form and character of the fly's body is particularly adapted for carrying germs, and as they are bred in decaying matter, at the rate of thousands for each individual fly, the consequent facility for the spread of the disease germs is apparent.

Each of the fly's six legs has two pads and each of these carries 1,200 bacteria. This makes a total of 7,200 bacteria each, which accretes a sticky fluid.

The sticky contents of the pads extend through the hairs at every step, they adhere to the fly to maintain a position either on window panes or ceiling. If the pads extend along the insect would experience difficulty in moving. As a matter of fact, the claws are raised when the pads adhere to anything, and are lowered when it is desired to take another step. By the use of their pads they "grasp" the ground and the lifting of the "hairs" the pads are released. Proof that this exudate is obtainable by touching the dirt with the tip of the finger. Waxes has described the insect so that even the action of the claws had become impenetrable, with the exception that the glue has permanently hardened on it.

The house fly is a very keen scent for filth of any kind. Whenever there is filth within a house, yard, or stable, the fly goes to it, smears its mouth and the sticky hairs of its legs with dirt and disease germs. A second or two suffice to get up a mass. Portions of these disease germs, and then off goes the fly to the nearest kitchen or dining room. There the fly crawls over the meat, butter, or other food, carrying the germs on its feet, and often gets into the milk pail, depositing large number of disease germs on every step. The house fly is as disgusting as it is dangerous.

No further argument than this should be necessary to demonstrate the importance of endeavoring to exterminate, as far as possible the house fly as the very beginning of the fly season. One fly on May 1 is representing 2,000,000,000 great great great-grandchildren on July 1, providing, of course, that nothing happens to interfere with each succeeding generation, and that each fly produces but the early fly on May 1 meets with an unlikely end just as the very commencement of fly career its death at the hands of many millions, possible billions, fewer flies later on in the season.—Angus Herald.

Will Go Abroad.

Mr. Frank G. Potts, instructor of modern languages of the University of South Carolina, will sail for Germany on Saturday May 15, where, at first, he will spend about five months, will pursue a course of study in German literature, for four or five months.

Mr. Potts leaves Columbia on the steamer "Vanderland" for New York, where he will be on board for three or four days. He will then travel to Cologne to sail on the Rhine as far as Heidelberg. From Heidelberg he will travel to Berlin and then to London, which is the University of Marburg.

In 1905, Mr. Potts graduated from what was then the South Carolina college. He was subsequently appointed instructor in modern languages at that institution, an honor not often bestowed upon students. Mr. Potts has labored faithfully in his chosen field and the credit displayed in his work, has attracted the attention of a host of friends in this city and throughout the state, who wish him a most pleasant voyage and a delightful sojourn in the foreign lands.

Mr. Potts will return to Columbia some time in October to resume his work at the university.

What the Kidneys Do.

Their Unceasing Work. Keeps Us Strong and Healthy.

All the blood in the body passes through the kidneys many times a minute. The kidneys filter the blood they work night and day. When they fail, the body is in danger. Many diseases are caused by impure matter daily, when unhealthily some part of the blood is left in the blood. This brings on many diseases and symptoms—pain in the back, headache, nervousness, hot dry skin, rheumatism, gout, gravel, disorders of the digestive and urinary systems, irregular habit, dizziness, dropsy, deposits in the urine, etc. But you keep the filters clean, you will have no trouble with your kidneys.

Henry Gladstone, living at 107 West Ave., Chester, S. C., says: "Several years ago I was suffering from kidney pain in the small of my back and joints, which kept me in misery in the morning upon first arising, and was often so lame and sore that I could hardly get about. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured them at the Chester Drug Co., and it required but a few days to feel a complete cure. I at once recommended this remedy on April 10, 1918, and I have had no trouble with my kidneys since. Doan's Kidney Pills to be very reliable remedy, and are pleased to recommend them."

She Wept in Every Office.

She was a young woman, well dressed, and had an appearance above the average. While not of striking beauty, in the common sense, she was what is often called good looking. In other and simpler words, she would do.

She entered the lawyer's office. Her hand she held a magazine, and in the back portion of her hair was a lead pencil.

"I would like to have you subscribe to this magazine," she said. "It is a year and one of the very best magazines published."

Then she turned the pages and showed the lawyer the many interesting departments, special articles, absorbing fiction stories and other things which the magazine contained.

"No, no," she said, "I don't care for it. I don't care for it. I have enough now, and I don't care for it."

The lawyer had hardly finished his sentence when the young woman began to weep copiously.

"Don't mind me," she said. "I just can't help it. I am trying to earn a living. I am soliciting sub-scribers for a magazine which is worth $1.50 a year. It is worth a cent. Every one tells me the same thing. 'Every one tells me the same thing, but I am discouraged. I am dependent. I don't care what happens to me.'"

And then she wept more. Of course, under the same conditions even a lawyer's heart, will tug. He produced a silver dollar and subscribed on the spot.

"Don't cry, little girl," said the lawyer. "Be brave; work hard; persevere; everything will come out all right in the end."

"Don't cry, little girl," said the lawyer. "Be brave; work hard; persevere; everything will come out all right in the end."

"This girl would have been alright if it were not for the fact that Jones, the doctor, had entered the lawyer's office some minutes later to tell of a strange case that had transpired in his office. The eye had to do with a young woman of average good looks who was soliciting sub-scribers for a dollar magazine.

"I was never so affected in my life," said Dr. Jones. "I refused to subscribe and the girl actually broke down in tears. I never saw any one so discouraged."

"Did you subscribe?" said the lawyer.

"Certainly I did," said Dr. Jones.

"So did I," said the lawyer, "and she wept here, too."

An investigation proved that the young woman of crying pteistics had taken thirteen subscriptions on that floor, which would have been a fair day's work, even if she had gone no further.—Kansas City Star.

There is more starch in this section of the country than all other districts put together, and until the few years ago supposed to be available. For a great many years doctors pronounced it local, also a pre-eminently local remedy, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, some doctors have concluded that it was a "constitutive disease," and therefore requires constitutional treatment. The Carter's Kidney Pills, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the constitutional cure on the market. It is taken for nearly 100 years from 10 drops to a tea spoonful, and costs only a few cents. It is a cure for erysipelas and eczema, and is a "Thank you."

Banishment of Col. Stewart

Washington, May 5.—The banishment of President Roosevelt by Col. W. F. Stewart of the Army to Fort Grant, an abandoned military post in Arizona, in all probability will be the subject of inquiry in the Senate by Senator Baynor of Maryland. His interest in the case is on account of Mrs. Stewart, who is a niece of the late Senator White and a great-granddaughter of William Pinckney, who was the United States senator in the early part of the 19th century.

Senator Baynor wrote to President Roosevelt, asking him to call for information concerning the case of Col. Stewart, particularly as to the reasons which obtained in the war department for not giving him a court of inquiry. These reasons have not yet been supplied to the Maryland senator.
