THE LANTERN,
 PUBLISHED TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS.
 J. T. BIGHAM, Editor and Prop.
 Entered as Second-Class Matter
 TUESDAY, MAY 12, 1908.

When a man is looking for a location for a business that requires good lighting and cooling facilities he finds it in Chester.

Everything which during the latter part of the time for getting up the issue had to be condensed and many items held over on account of demand upon our space at a late hour.

The State says its "observation is that 49 out of 50 opposed to instructions are bitter against Bryan," which indicates that its observation has been made through a very small tube focused upon a single point.

The fact that a resolution somewhat favorable to "instructing" went through the Chester county convention without opposition did not mean that all were in favor of it, but only that it was considered as of no practical importance and those opposed wanted to get through the business of the day without starting a discussion. We have no doubt that a resolution against making dereliction on the subject would have gone through by nearly the same vote.

Some South Carolina persons and newspapers that assume to advocate the election of a Bryan delegation to Denver, yet oppose his instruction that delegation, "quit dereliction," the fact that the delegates to the national convention, the State convention, as a whole, are in favor of the convention can instate that four delegates declare themselves, but has no way of controlling the other four, elected by district, except by instruction.

Because of strong personal influence, through lack of opportunity to vote for Bryan candidates, or because of indifference in some counties, or because of inability to vote, or because of a combination of all these causes, it is not possible to elect delegates from the seven districts to elect delegates to the Bryan, and for those ten men, under a unit rule, to force the whole delegation into a political camp to which the people of South Carolina are absolutely opposed. The State.

This is about the severest wrench we remember to have seen given to democratic ideas by excessive zeal. However, since there is now practically nothing at stake, it seems to us that there are serious reasons for anxiety without affecting the result. Let the State convention might resolve that for the present purpose four is a majority of eight.

2nd. The State convention might elect an examining board to test for anti-Bryan bacteria all citizens in the several districts, and those "mentioned" and make up an "eligible list" from those who give a satisfactory reaction. From this list the people, by ballot at the state convention, might be permitted to select six good and true men to be labeled, by counties, "district delegates."

3rd. The state convention might resolve that the people of the several districts are incompetent to elect delegates, and to none of them given names anyhow, and proceed to elect delegates, gag them, hang upon each of their manly brains a tablet of child-steeled snags, and send the ship the herd to Deaver in charge of 36 detectives.

Of course it is understood that it is only among the people themselves in the districts that "strong personal influence," "lack of opportunity to vote for Bryan," "indifference in some counties," "inability to vote," or a combination of all these causes," could operate, while the state convention cannot be affected by any such influences.

Surely the politicians can devise some scheme to enable the people of two districts to control the people of the other five.

A Saturday Night Killing.
 John Chisholm, colored, was shot and killed early Saturday evening near the house of Geneva Barwell a few hundred feet above the Southern depot. Guy Atkinson, colored, had been arrested on the charge of killing Chisholm, and he acknowledged the deed, pleading self-defense.

When officers Williams and Howe reached the scene of the tragedy Saturday evening they found the dead body of Chisholm, and there seemed to be no clue as to who did the killing, all the neighbors and by-standers in the negro quarter in which the killing occurred, professing entire ignorance. Finally it was learned that Chisholm and Guy Atkinson, the man arrested on the charge of killing Chisholm, were roommates of the same woman, Geneva Barwell, and this furnished the clue that led to the arrest.

Atkinson claims that Chisholm was endeavoring to kill him with a knife, and that he was forced to shoot in self defense, and this contention is supported by reports out by cuts that appear in the clothing and on his person. The killing was done with a shot gun. The coroner's jury, which was held on Wednesday, brought in a verdict that the deceased came to his death from a gunshot wound at the hands of Guy Atkinson, and that Geneva Barwell and the latter were accessories. The two

Commandery Holds Fine Meeting.
 The Chester Commandery, No. 7, K. T., held one of the most pleasant meetings in its history Thursday evening. The celebrated Columbia quartette was on hand, and there was not an essential lacking to make the occasion a grand success. Five candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the order, as follows: K. R. McMaster, Wimsboro; E. M. Croxon, Lancaster; H. H. White, Rock Hill; John R. Hart, Yorkville; and D. A. Cauthen, Heath Springs.

A most enjoyable feature of the evening was a delightful banquet, which was served by the ladies of the Methodist church. The net of town knights present for the ceremonies were F. M. Gale, Richburg; W. P. Barron, A. B. Sparran, M. D. H. Ball, and R. L. Moore, M. D. Columbia; W. B. Byers, W. G. Stevens, M. D. J. W. Westerland; F. R. Reid, L. White, M. H. Shinn, A. B. McFadden, C. K. Chreiberg, Rock Hill; W. S. Neil and B. P. Mobley, Yorkville; T. T. B. Williams, Chester; and C. E. Williams, Heath Springs.

Ascension Day services will be held at the Methodist church on Monday, May 11th. A well known minister belonging to the order.

Out on the Farm.
 A representative of The Lantern enquired the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Strong, of Cornwell, Friday. That is a very delightful home, and Mr. Strong has a splendid farm, well equipped with implements for thorough culture and saving of labor.

His nephew, Mr. Hugh McKeown, who lives with his mother near by, is an uncommonly promising young man. He has a taste for interest and pride in his farm, and it is a thing of beauty. It made the reporter's old farming propensity assert itself.

In the same neighborhood is the farm of Mr. R. E. Shannon, one of the most progressive farmers and stock raisers in this county. Berkshire is his specialty, he knows about prominent Berkshire hogs in America, and he owns one that is a native of Kansas. The latest style and kind of distinguished lineage and kindred numbers of his herd and show pictures of some of them that are worth $1000. The latest style among the "top" Berkshires in the district is turned up nose. Mr. Shannon sells young pigs from $10 up. He has sold a show pig and another for $125. Mrs. Shannon takes as much interest in the stock as he does and she has trained him for success in the business.

They also raise fine turkeys and but Plymouth Rock chickens, of which they have many handsome specimens. Altogether there is nothing like life on the farm.

That is an exceptional neighborhood all around. There are the McKeowns, the Byers, the Croxons and other good farmers, good people and intelligent, useful citizens.
