A Railroad's Work.

Washington Times of May 20th, says:
A philanthropic project on a practical basis is about to be put in operation at Pinebluff, N. C. The institution is founded upon the right of every man to earn his own living, and the necessary that exists of giving to persons weakened by disease some employment that will enable them to earn their livelihood.

The institution is called the Bee Hive and before the summer is very far along it will be filled with workers, who are helping themselves, and are at least keeping themselves well employed. The building will be a factory and a sanitarium at the same time. At the head of the enterprise is J. T. Patrick, Industrial Agent of the Seaboard Air Line, a man of such character and such force that a story about him alone would be interesting. The undertaking is founded on his love for mankind, and the Railroad is giving a good deal in order to put upon a sound basis this Bee Hive in which sick people can work to the best advantage at their chosen trade.

Pinebluff is situated in the very heart of the pine woods of North Carolina and in the section of country which has been found most beneficial to all persons suffering from lung diseases. It stands a roomy rather high mountain, upon a sandy soil that is the most wholesome. The climate is balmy and equable and so mild that outdoor work is possible nearly all the year around. The conditions are favorable to fruit growing, which was at first the main industry undertaken by the colonist who have been forced by bread consumption or other pulmonary troubles, into 'the woods'. But what the Bee Hive is started other industries will take the place of this one.

The Bee Hive is intended to shelter workers at mechanics of many sorts. The promoter intends that every man who has a trade shall be allowed to work at it as much as he likes, and for this reason has put up a big building and has furnished it with power. Two large turbines will generate power, which will be a public commodity. Anyone who can get a machine, will be allowed to set it up on the floor of the building, and take the power to run it. The structure is of wood, four stories high, and will accommodate a great many workers. Not only does the builder of the house furnish the power by which the invalids may run their machines, but undertakes to find a market for the product. In other words, the sick and ailing who come, provided they show an anxiety to work, will be able to contribute a share to their own support, and will not be completely dependent upon others.

The factory is to be conducted also for those who are willing to learn trades, and every man who has strength enough to hold a stick will be given something to do if he wants to do it. There is to be no compulsion, and only the willing and the able are to do any labor. Some are expected to bring their own machines with them, but a great number will be given machines to work by the manufacturers. Machines will be installed on the floors to wait for people to come who can use them. Mr. Patrick has already received offers of mechanical appliances and devices from many manufacturing firms who desire to help the enterprise.

The work will be designed as far as possible to ward the healthful, and it is expected that most of the products of the Bee Hive will be of wood. The establishment is situated in the midst of a pine district and the workers will be encouraged to handle the pitch because of the heating influence its odor and it distill is likely to have upon the lungs of the diseased.

The Bee Hive is only one step in the system of industries which the Seaboard Air Line is developing. Mr. Patrick is the commercial agent of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad and by good fortune happened to gain possession of a fine tract of land in the pine district, part of which he is using as this industrial colony for consumptives and people disabled by other slow or chronic diseases. He began by giving the people who came to him agricultural work to do and he hopes in the end to be able to furnish any sick person coming to him an occupation fitted to the latter's fingers. A great many people are sent to him every year from the invalid Aid Societies all over the country. Many under the steady occupation and find in it not only quietness and calm away. This arrangement of the Seaboard Air Line enables even the poorest and sickest to seek a healthful climate, because they can do a little something toward their own support.

Mr. W. J. Baxter of North Brook, N. C., says he suffered with piles for 15 years. He tried many remedies but no results until he used Dr. W. M. Hazel's ointment, and that quickly cured him. Pryor & McKee.

Greenville Candidates.

It seems that Greenville is the center of gravity when it comes to considering the present or prospective situation among United States Senators. Mr. McLaurin and his friends chose this locality for launching his boat on the shoreless sea of politics this year, and from here was to radiate influences that would return him triumphantly to the Senate. It was supposed to be the seat of "Commercial Democracy," and the elaborate preparations for the campaign of education only emphasized the importance of the event, in the estimation of McLaurin's friends.

The new phase of the situation, which has come about by reason of the unaccountable freak of Tillman and McLaurin, has not lessened the interest of Greenville by any means, and in fact the concern of our citizens grows in intensity, which is enhanced by the rumors that several of our public men are likely to engage in the coming race. Three gentlemen have been mentioned in connection with the vacancies, and a representative of THE MOUNTAINEER has interviewed each of them. Mr. M. F. Ament was asked the pointed question whether or not he would be a candidate for the Senate, and his reply was as follows:

"I am seriously considering the matter, and think I will be in the race," which was all he had to say for publication at present. Capt. J. A. Mooney was told that he was being regarded as a candidate, and his response was to the effect that if he went into the field it would be for the unexpired term of McLaurin. He was not decided one way or the other, and his friends are doing the talking in his case. Hon. M. L. Donaldson, when approached on the subject, said that he had been solicited by a number of men to enter the race, but he had not given any serious consideration to their suggestions, and did not know that he would even contemplate the candidacy. Certainly he is not a candidate at this time, and in spite of the flattering suggestions of his friends, it was very far from his intention now to enter the lists, for which there was ample time.—Greenville Mountaineer.

Preacher In Penitentiary.

Washington, May 17.—Rev. Liston D. Bass, D. D., was this morning sentenced to three years in the penitentiary and fined $1,000 for using the mails fraudulently in connection with the "Union Teachers' Agency."

When convicted he resigned his pastorate of a Baptist church in Virginia, but the congregation declined to accept it.

Dr. Bass was educated at Patrick Military Academy, Furman University, the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary and the University of Chicago.

He received the degree of doctor of divinity from the University of Alabama.

At one time Rev. Bass was prominently mentioned for the post of consul general to Berlin, Germany, and had the endorsement of senators and congressmen.

Dr. Bass is remembered by a number of the Greenville citizens as a student of the Patrick Military Academy, when that institution was located in Greenville and afterwards as a student of Furman University.

He was regarded as a bright young man and one of splendid character. His habits were good and he was looked upon as a sturdy and perfectly reliable young man.

all the blood in your body passes through and is filtered by your kidneys. Think what this means. If the kidneys are not strong and healthy they do not extract all the poisonous matter from the blood and the result is sickness and misery that will remain until these organs are once more brought back to healthy activity.

These symptoms will tell you when your kidneys need attention and assistance: If you have Backache, Tired Feeling, Dizziness, Headache, Nervousness, Pains across the Loins, or in the Bladder, Sleeplessness, Chills, Urine of an unnatural color or Scalding Urine. They mean Kidney Trouble, and you can't get a better remedy than

I have taken six bottles, and my legs, which were badly swollen, have come down. I am now well. My wife and I have had dropsy and used your Vaughn's Lithontriptic and it is well now. Respectfully yours, W. WARREN BARKLEY.
