WOULD BE ASSASSIN TAKES LIFE.

Bomb Outrage Against King Alfonso.

Madrid, June 7.—The capture and suicide Saturday night at Torrejon de Ardoz of Manuel Morales, the chief suspect in the bomb outrage against King Alfonso and Queen Victoria, adds another dramatic chapter to the incidents surrounding the royal wedding.

Morales was recognized in the little town of Torrejon de Ardoz, midway between Madrid and Alcala. A guard sought to detain him but Morales, drawing a revolver, shot the guard dead. Then he turned to flee, but a number of the inhabitants of the town were upon him and turning the revolver upon himself, he fired a shot in the region of his heart, expiring a few minutes later. Senor Ouesca, proprietor of the hotel from the balcony of which Morales threw the bomb, viewed the body this morning and completely identified it as that of his recent guest.

It was reported Saturday evening when Morales, disguised as a working man, entered the station at Torrejon de Ardoz. He asked when the next train would depart for Madrid and then sought food in a nearby shop. His Catalan accent attracted attention and his clothes, face and manner indicated a man of some distinction.

A private watchman from a neighboring estate recalled the description of the bomb-thrower and noted a letter on the man's left hand, which the stranger was trying to conceal, was badly hurt, and that there was a small fresh scar on his forehead. The stranger sought to take a road leading out of the country, but the watchman intercepted him and demanded to know his identity. Morales declined to give his name and was arrested. Instantly Morales drew a revolver from his pocket and fired, the guard falling dead. Morales started up the road, but a small group of villagers had barred his passage. Then turning, he deliberately pointed the weapon to his heart, fired and pitched forward.

In his pockets were $30 in money and a small supply of bread and cheese. When the governor of Madrid arrived with Senor Ouesca, Morales was immediately and positive. The body was then brought to Madrid. At Torrejon de Ardoz the villagers insistently refused to permit the body to reposit in their town.

Villagers of Torrejon de Ardoz say Morales appeared greatly agitated and fell asleep on a bench in the station. At the inn he called for dinner, but scarcely tasted a morsel. The loquacious proprietress of the inn discussed the prevailing topics of the throwing of the bomb at Madrid, declaring it was a heinous crime. The stranger listened nervously, saying "everyone has his own ideas, which should be respected." Shortly after this he tried to leave the town.

When Morales shot himself Francisco Martinez, heading the crowd, saw Morales making a desperate effort to raise himself on his elbow; his right hand still grasping the revolver. Then he would not fall back, and he said that the villagers waited 15 minutes before going out, fearing that he might still be able to use the weapon. They found Morales dead. There were three abrasions on the body besides the death wound—ones on the head, one under the left eye and one on the forehead. His clothing was complete, even including the common steel watch ordinarily carried by workmen.

The body of Morales was exposed this afternoon to stilly public indignation. Thousands of persons surged before the smallest noxious building to get in line to be admitted to the room where the body lay, but cavalry and infantry blocked the efforts of the throng, which murmured imprecations against the assassin. Public feeling was intense, chiefly because of the great number of victims the assassin being dead 20 persons killed and more than 80 wounded.

Final disposition of the body of Morales has not yet been determined upon, but the public demand an ignominious burial.

The American envoy to the royal wedding, Frederick W. Whitridge, and his suite had an opportunity to have a conversation with King Alfonso during the reception at the palace Saturday night. When the conversation naturally turned to the assassination of the king and queen, King Alfonso shrugged his shoulders and calmly said:

"Yes, unfortunately it was so. I am sorry, but it will come again. It may be any time, perhaps tomorrow, perhaps within a month, perhaps within a year, but it will come again."

Asking Alfonso and Queen Victoria hurried within the castle after the attempt was made to assassinate the monarch's wife. The king was completely unstrung and turning to Queen Victoria, her dress appeared with blood, he exclaimed:

"Why do I bring you to this country? It was wrong; you never should have come here."

Then the queen's mother and one of the infants called the overwrought mother of the king.

A Brilliant Performance Was Given to Night at the Opera After a Remarkable Interruption. It Was Discovered Saturday Night That One Ticket for the performance was missing. The entire issue was cancelled and new tickets of a different color were given out.

The change was considered imperative to guard against the possibility of the missing ticket giving access to the opera house of a person who might throw a bomb.

The American envoy and his party were present. The king and queen were greeted with enthusiasm. It was a brilliant spectacle. The opera was "Lucia di Lammermoor."

The churches of Madrid today celebrated masses of thanksgiving for the escape of the king and queen.

An Alarming Situation. The change was considered imperative to guard against the possibility of the missing ticket giving access to the opera house of a person who might throw a bomb.

Winnboro Letter.

Winnboro, June 5.—Mr. W. H. Phillips, W. P. Cates and Misses Nell Gooding and Helen McKeown, are visiting at Mrs. West to attend commencement.

Miss Rachel White is home from Philadelphia where she is studying medicine.

Misses Maggie Nell, Sue Hall and Misses Whitwell, Corcoran and Cassel, returned from a week's visit to the coast last Friday evening, returning home Saturday morning.

Miss Mattie Williams, of Bartow, Florida, after spending some time with her school friends in Lancaster, came to this town last Tuesday and spent until Thursday with her friend, Miss Beatrice Wells. From here she went to the coast to be present at the graduation of her sister.

This accomplished daughter of Bartow made many friends here during her brief stay, and will be glad to welcome her friends to the coast.

Mrs. Wats. Beale, of Blackstock, passed through here last Tuesday on her way to South Island to visit her friends, Mr. Beale, who is visiting her brother, Mrs. Sallie Gladden.

Mrs. J. J. Craig and Miss Annie McGowan are visiting their sister in Birmingham, Ala.

Rev. James Boyce of the West, and Rev. Arthur Hanson of Spartanburg, were visitors in our town recently.

Miss Mattie McCord of Columbia, is in town.

Several of our people are sick. The friends of Mr. Joe McCall will be sorry to know he is among the number.

Mrs. Miriam Conner died suddenly before last. She was a Mrs. S. S. Lumpkin before marriage.

Mrs. Zion closed Friday with appropriate exercises.

Miss Margaret of Blackstock, is expected here Friday.

Court will be here next week. A number will be tried for gambling.

Mrs. T. P. Henson expects to make a short visit to Chester this week.

I think farmers are fairly well up with their work. A number had to replant both cotton and corn. Grain seems to be good. The rains have helped the gardens and flower yards and now some fear that the grass will take the cotton.

Mrs. Liza Ardrey and little daughter arrived Saturday night to visit at Rev. C. F. McDonald's and Mrs. J. H. Catheart's.

The Trusty Behind the Gun.
In our Tuesday's issue it was stated
that Fraser Glad, the escaping convict,
was shot by a trusty, who was keeping guard, and this is true as far as it goes, but is false to give a wrong impression of the situation, especially if any one is inclined to find fault. The regular night guard was at his post, and getting an in-mation that something was wrong, he sent
this trusty for the superintendent, thinking it better to have assistance
before making investigation. Mr.
McKewen sent the trusty back to
guard outside until he could get there,
and he and another guard followed almost immediately. Glad hearing them coming, knew there was his only chance to get away, and so made a bolt. The trusty, who is a cripple and was unable to pursue, ordered
him to stop, but he paid no heed and
was just on the edge of a thicket, when fired upon. All the load struck below vital parts, as was intended,
except two scattering shots which entered the bowels. Three white guards however, had their guns leveled on Glad but did not shoot, as he immediately stopped. So it will be seen that the trusty was serving for the time as an additional precaution, and not in the absence of the regular guard.

Finch-Gladden.
Miss Estelle Finch and Mr. W. T.
Gladden were married Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H.
Finch, at Fort Lawn. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. A. Fairry.
Mr. and Mrs. Gladden passed through here Wednesday morning on their bridal tour to North Carolina.
The Lindsay Special Sale.
We are informed that the sale conducted at Lindsay's is breaking the record. The crowd has been so great at times that it could not be accommodated either with the attention of the large corps of clerks or with standing room, and it was necessary to pass the people out from the rear through the grocery. Mr. Hammel says the business has been a simple-let the people know what you are going to do, then do what you say.

The Trusty Behind the Gun.
In our Tuesday's issue it was stated
that Fraser Glad, the escaping convict,
was shot by a trusty, who was
keeping guard, and this is true as far
as it goes, but is false to give a
wrong impression of the situation, especially if any one is inclined to find fault. The regular night guard was
at his post, and getting an in-mation
that something was wrong, he sent
this trusty for the superintendent,
thinking it better to have assistance
before making investigation. Mr.
McKewen sent the trusty back to
guard outside until he could get there,
and he and another guard followed almost immediately. Glad hearing
them coming, knew there was his only
chance to get away, and so made a bolt. The trusty, who is a cripple
and was unable to pursue, ordered
him to stop, but he paid no heed and
was just on the edge of a thicket,
when fired upon. All the load struck
below vital parts, as was intended,
except two scattering shots which entered the bowels. Three white guards
however, had their guns leveled on
Glad but did not shoot, as he immediately stopped. So it will be seen that the trusty was serving for the
time as an additional precaution, and
not in the absence of the regular
guard.
What's the good of keeping from him
Any good things you may see.
That will lift his load of labor.
Like Rocky Mountain Tea.

Mr. W. A. Bowler Paralyzed.

Mr. W. A. Bowler suffered a partial stroke of paralysis in his left side this morning between one and two o'clock.
His speech is somewhat affected and his left arm seems to be more seriously affected than any other part of his body.
