Morale Is All Around

A regular magazine advertisement says that "Morale is a lot of little things." This is, indeed, true, but every day in The Winthrop News heralds another small victory for the cause of morale. Whether it is a person raising his own hand to help, or simply expressing a word of appreciation and recognition to the person who is helping him, morale is the key to victory.

What We Live By:

The News heralds the fact that the freshman math to you in class has an idea that you meant something to him, and telling him that you will do your absolute best to understand the problem. Morale is the key to a happy and successful life.

An Adventure in Cooperation

It's being done today. Informal cooperation is to-day week, a second, and the management across the street is busy making rooms for students. The morning paper is coming out, but the afternoon one is not. The afternoon one is coming out, but the morning one is not. The two newspapers are in competition, and their cooperation is just too good to be true.

On Serving This College Community

The week this issue comes out is National Student Week. The Johnnies are glad to throw in a few words about this, as it is a good idea to get in a few words of appreciation to the hard work and cooperation that goes into the making of a college. It is a good idea to recognize those who are doing a good job.

American Schools Must Help Win the War, Says Flora; But Adds, “We Can’t Neglect Three R’s”

By ELIZABETH BETHIA

American schools have got to be organized into an educational army capable of achieving ultimate victory in this war, Superintendent A. C. Flora of the Columbia public schools said yesterday in a speech before the South Carolina Education Association.

Schools and educators have been adjusting to the services of various need already, Mr. Flora observed. “And in the case of those few that are not adjusted, a number of programs provide the kind of training many students want to have right now,” he said.

Students at every educational level are facing the problems of the war and of their future careers. “The combination of school curriculum, combined with industry and the military and related fields such as ballistics, cryptography and medicine, is an exciting development in education, he said.

Educators have to keep student in mind as much as the present as the future. “The future is bright, but the young people have got to be better trained,” Mr. Flora added.

“Education is an indispensable aid to adapting a war-scared world, schools must make contributions toward that end,” asserted Mr. Flora.

The reports that adequate war preparation has been made proved that preservation of our freedom of thought is essential to the freedom of all people, he said.

First Dance of Season Opens with Student Orchestra

Dancers Swing To Music of Swanks

By SARAH W. SHELTON

In the spirit of a real campus social, the Student Activities Council and the Student Body put on the first major dance of the season at the Winthrop Union Gym.

The corduroy-dressed and flared-dress girls swung to the music of the Student Body Orchestra, which was directed by James E. Creamer.
