FRIDAY, JUNE 29.

WHAT CHESTER NEEDS.

There is no question but that the idea of purchasing an incinerator for the City of Chester is a most excellent one. The destruction of the city's rubbish is decidedly beneficial to the health of the community. But it is the opinion of a great many people in Chester that the city did not go far enough when they purchased the incinerator. They have also passed an ordinance requiring every property owner within the corporate limits of the town to discontinue surface closets. A surface closet is detrimental to the health of any community and should not be tolerated among self-respecting people.

There are a great many negro houses located within the corporate limits of Chester and some of the owners of these houses state that the "rent" received by them would not justify their placing sewage in the houses. If every owner of negro houses in the city were required to install sewerage, then some could advance the rent and one would suffer a financial loss. Some may contend that the negro cannot afford to pay any additional rent. We fail to see why the negro should not be able to pay as much as the white man now for the purchase of health.

The old adage, "What is worth doing at all is worth doing well," applies to the health of the community and since Chester is making some headway in the right direction, it is right and discontinue surface closets.

These various boards being appointed by the government are already beginning to stir up hornets' nests among various manufacturers of this country and their boards have just begun their work, we wonder what is scheduled to happen in the future.

A few days ago the Commercial Economy Board of the Council of National Defense had a conference with several of the large shoe manufacturers of this country and during the course of the conference urged that the making of excess styles in shoes, which is now a needless waste of raw material, be cut down. The shoe manufacturers have been making good money out of this class of goods and were indignant that there is plenty of leather. In this statement the manufacturers have refuted one of the reasons they have been advancing for the remarkable increase in the price of shoes during the past few months.

The government statistics show that the import duty on shoes has increased for the past several months and the fact is well known that persons here who buy cheap cattle at a great rate for export, it begins to look as if the high price of shoes is another hold-up game.

When it comes to charge livestock of various shades and colors you've got to hand it to our neighbor town, York. If a man wants to sell a York titian an automobile, he best choose to purring to get your York man and take him for a "joy" ride outside of the limits. Stop him under the shade of a many oak and put the automobile "jabber" to him but the minute you hit the corporate limits of that "hazy" you want to begin talking weather or politics. Unless you toe this mark you will, in all probability, receive a letter advising that you are indebted to the town of York to the tune of twenty cents. A certain Chester man recently went to York, picked up a citizen for a ride, and he had received one of these loving epistles asking for a donation. Just whether the Chester man was trying to sell an automobile or was doing a farm or a Liberty Bond, we cannot say but he certainly is speaking "kiddie" of York.

Maximum Results.

To accomplish the maximum results in life should be the goal of our endeavors, yet it would seem as though the majority of persons strive only for the minimum. The reason advanced for this condition is the inability to master self, and personal experience makes it clear that it is, indeed, a very good and sufficient reason. There are many persons who occasionally have glimpses of the lives they would prefer to lead, vision, as it were, of a higher and broader standard of existence but, fortunately, these visions soon fade from sight and leave only dim recollections and haunting hopes, which unless they are properly handled, do more harm than good. It is easy to yield to the temptation of putting the responsible duty for our lack of progress upon general conditions, or upon the limited resources, a poor command, but it is difficult to understand that the individual is even more responsible. We are not, as a rule, willing to go through the long arduous preparatory work necessary to achieve success in our undertakings, we like best to achieve our laurels over night and at small expenditure of time and effort. The latter method cannot be depended upon; it is merely a will-to-the-wisdom of fortune which only a few may follow with successful results. Our hard work and constant development of our talents and abilities is the only one we may confidently hope to lead up to and depend upon. It does not make any difference what our work is, whether it be confined to the home, the office, the field, the workshop, there is always the opportunity to develop to a higher standard than that which we may be following.

We are likely to become slaves to routine if we do not possess some spirit of initiative. We know perfectly well that we are not, but we lack the ability to make any sustained effort to achieve our goal. We make a few attempts here and there but we are not able to continue these attempts until we finally accomplish the object in view. We are afraid of our own conditions, we are possibly develop, and question our ability to meet them satisfactorily. It is just these conditions, however, that must be met by all those who intend to make something of their lives, on their own account, instead of following the beaten path.

In the serious crisis which is upon us we have the opportunity to get the maximum results means the safety of our country. We cannot afford to waste a single moment, a single dollar, a single ounce of strength, in the tremendous duties which must be accomplished. We must move with confidence and with strength and with efficiency. There is time to be wasted; we may not tomorrow; what is to be done must be done at once, and it may be that the present emergency may cause us to find the opportunity of developing our powers of accomplishment to higher and better use than we had imagined possible. We must put aside our own petty fears for the present, at least, and our own small preferences and write in the great work which lies at our hands. We must forget self and thereby learn in time to master self. Our personal needs and comfort must take second place, giving the severe ordeal which faces us; otherwise we shall not measure up to the demands which will be made upon us. It is a blessing to subscribe to the campaigns which are sweeping the country at present. They are a real man's job will have the chance. The Carolina & Northwestern railway has offered to instruct young ladies in railway and telegraphic work at the various stations along its line and other railroads throughout the country are doing likewise. Hundreds of telegraph operators and other railway employees will be among those who need to take their places. H. L. Summit, local agent for the C. & N.W., said yesterday that he was willing to instruct several young ladies in office work and telegraphic work. Miss Anita Bidwell is already at work there. Miss Thelma Hanson proposes to enter the service in a few days. Should one or two other ladies of the town wish to enter the employ of the railroad they may. No salary will be paid them and the business is not easy to learn.—Yorkville Enquirer.

NEUTRAL AND THEIR FOOD.

Holland's Minister of Agriculture, in his recent plea for imports of grain from the United States, attempted to defend his country's large exports of food to Germany by saying that Holland had a "superabundance" of most vegetables and many other agricultural products. His people do not agree with him at Rotterdam last Saturday they seized large quantities of potatoes which had been placed on barges to be sent away. There were 260,000 bushels ready to be moved. Those who interfered said that the supply of potatoes was not "superabundant" but deficient. Two days after his Minister's plea was a German newspaper threat was published, the German said, the Dutch steaming ship, Emdijk, with a load of wheat from Boston. How is Holland to get American wheat if the Germans, whom she is feeding, will not let her carry it? The Dutch people who took the potatoes are in sympathy with the Norwegian workmen who recently complained that the German ships sailing from their ports were depriving them of their food. The German said, the submarines were sending Norwegian grain-laden vessels to the bottom, and no German plotter has been arrested as a Christian who, with many yombs, which they intended to place in the coal bunkers of Norwegian ships.

The news record has shown a curious situation, a conflict of purposes and aims which indicates a serious and insidious situation. It is true that the neutrals have been supplying Germany with food and other products, such as nickel for the submarine torpedo. It is also true that Germany has been sinking neutral ships loaded with grain which might eventually have been sold to her. It may be that it is a part of the German policy to have been to some extent protected by England and France, and the neutrality of these countries approved. However, it is clear that Germany has been doing her best to gain more food and other supplies if they should declare war. But the course which the United States should take, so far as exports of food are concerned, it clearly shows by the unquestioned record of events and by food conditions at home. We have no wheat for neutrals, because our surplus is "not enough" for our allies. We should not send fodder grain to the neutrals, because it would be used to make food for the enemy.—New York Times.

COLL GASTON ADVANCES GOOD EXCELLENT IDEA

Mr. Editor: Now that the Banks of the City of Chester and Blackstock have purchased the Chester County Highways Bonds I think it is time for every citizen of the County to contribute to the Banks upon the plan that is now being put forth. It has been known locally that the bond market is depressed on account of the War situation and our County is fortunate in having such an excellent opportunity to sell the bonds at this year. It is a splendid thing for the County that our financial institutions are able and willing to contribute to the project to protect the result of the County. I think this is one of the greatest exercises of solidarity among the people and the taxpayers of the County. It marks a new period in our County's history and shows that the County is in a position to take care of every interest of the people.

In this period of War taxation and expense the public needs every means of employment and I feel sure that this bond money spent on the roads will greatly aid the people of the County during the next few years. Everybody should endeavor to save money without curtailing legitimate business. As long as public or private business should go on as usual. It has occurred to me that in order to meet the new situation in Chester we should endeavor to invest their own money in some of these County bonds. By doing so they will have a safe investment and the annual interest will be to their own good. YORK COUNTY NEWS ITEMS

Messrs. A. D. Dorsett and Roy Wallace of Yorkville left Saturday morning for Philadelphia, Pa., where they will be engaged in doing contract work for the United States government for some time.

York county friends and acquaintances will be interested to learn of the marriage of Miss Marie Good, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. O. Good of Lockhart, to Mr. McLean of Tampa, Fla., the ceremony took place in Lockhart Wednesday evening.

Mr. W. B. Thomason of Yorkville, Va., will upon office as state distributor for the Marion-Handley automobile, he being in partnership in the new venture with Messrs. Carroll & Myers of Gaffney.

W. B. Moore of Yorkville, has been appointed by the committee on supplies of the council of national defense as a member of a special committee to supervise the securing of 50,000,000 yards of duck for the army camps. Other members of the committee are J. A. Handville of Carrollton, Ga., and Andrew Webb of Philadelphia, Pa.

Rev. B. A. Waugh has accepted the call recently extended to him by the First Baptist church of Yorkville, and will enter upon his pastorate the second Sunday in July. He will move his family which is now in Augusta, Ga., to the parsonage on Cleveland street probably within a few days. Rev. Mr. Waugh preached at the First Baptist church Sunday morning to a large congregation, and he will occupy the pulpit of the Charlotte Street Baptist church Sunday evening.

John Lawson Parsley, aged 13, son of Mr. W. L. Parsley of Fibert, was injured by the top of the machine when he was driving and the machine was turned over. Two negroes who were with the boy, young Parsley were also bruised. The accident occurred on the Quian hill on the road between Fibert and the Kings Mountain road. The steering apparatus suddenly became crank and the car was precipitated into a ditch, turning completely over on its side. The top of the machine was broken.

Miss Maggie Mickle, daughter of Mr. Thomas Mickle, her sister and two little children, who were riding in the buggy with them, were thrown to the ground and more or less seriously injured Saturday afternoon, when one of the shafts of the buggy became loose, frightening the animal they were driving. The accident occurred near the intersection of East Main and Railroad streets, near the Southern depot. Miss Maggie Mickle suffered concussion of the brain and did not regain consciousness until Sunday morning. One of the little children was thrown into a drain crossing under the street and suffered serious bruising. The other two children of the party were painfully bruised. All the parties will recover.

ANARCHIST DRAWS REBUKE OF COURT

Berthman, Conducting His Own Case, Goes For Affid in Examinable Testimony.

New York, June 27.—Alexander Berthman, who, with Emma Goldman, another anarchist, is on trial in the United States district court here for conspiracy to obstruct the operation of the selective draft law, was warned repeatedly today by Judge Julius M. Mayer that in examining testimony for the jury he must confine himself to questions relevant to the prosecution to the question concerning the selective draft law. He was told that in future, if he was to be a witness, he should be a witness for the prosecution. He was told that in future, if he was to be a witness, he should be a witness for the prosecution.

Lord Derby, Minister of War, expressed belief that the whole country would associate itself with the suggestion that England should not try to initiate a German brutality. He added, on the authority of the pilot of the aircraft service in France, that for every home, the Germans dropped behind the British lines the British dropped a hundred behind the German lines. This bombing, he said, was solely military, and the Government considered that nothing should be done to hinder the military authorities in the employment of the aircraft.

Official figures of the casualties in the London air raid of June 13 were announced yesterday. Subsequent deaths and the discovery of more bodies in debris have brought the number of dead to ninety-one men, twenty-four women and forty-two children. The injured number 520 men, 110 women and 106 children. "No," said Judge Mayer emphatically.

CALLED HER FAMILY TO HER BEDSIDE

Six Years Ago, Thinking She Might Die, Says Texas Lady, But Now She is a Well, Strong Woman and Prizes Cardui For Her Recovery.

Stony City, Tex.—Mrs. Mary Kilpatrick of this place, writes the birth of my little girl... my side commenced to hurt me. I had to go back to bed. We called the doctor. He treated me... but I got no better. I got worse and worse until the misery was unbearable. I was in bed for three months and suffered such agony that I was just drawn up in a knot... I told my husband if he would get me a bottle of Cardui I would try it... I commenced taking it, however, that evening I called my family to me... for I knew I could not last much longer unless I had a chance for the better. That was six years ago and now I am well and strong woman, and I owe my life to Cardui. I had only taken half the bottle when I began to feel better. The misery in my side got less... I continued right on taking the Cardui until I had taken three bottles and I did not need any more for I was well and never felt better in my life. I have never had any trouble from that day to this.

Do you suffer from headache, back-ache, pains in sides, or other ailments, such months? Or do you feel weak, nervous and fatigued? If so, give Cardui, the woman's tonic, a trial.

An Ambition and a Record

THE men of the South are identical with the needs of the nation. It is not the men of the South who are the problem, it is the men of the North who are the problem. The Southern Railway is the answer to the problem of the South. It is the only railway system in the South that has the capacity to handle the traffic of the South. It is the only railway system in the South that has the capacity to handle the traffic of the South. It is the only railway system in the South that has the capacity to handle the traffic of the South.

INSPIRATION TO MEN

MAN BE WOMEN'S PART

Woman's part in the war has been told by writers and speakers who have urged various activities along many lines—Red Cross work, food conservation, home economy, and other things coming in for a share of comment. Woman's part in any war is hard, harder than that played by a man. The men may go out and fight. The women may stay at home and wait. Waiting is always the hardest work of any war.

But while woman waits, may she not do her bit—contribute her mite to the common cause. She may, and she may do it in this way:

Men may be spurred on by the women to realize that this country has entered into the war, and is now in the third month of participation in the great conflict. Men may be urged by their wives, sisters, sweethearts and relatives to bear the burden the government has taken upon itself. Men may be made to understand that woman's heart is in the war and that while she may not do much toward bringing the conflict to a successful conclusion, she is fighting for her country and her fellow citizens.

Women, who undertake Red Cross work, must know that it is the hardest, most disagreeable and in many instances the most horrible work that she can do. It is the "hot" necessary work of the war. Not lightly shall she undertake, after a few lessons in first aid, to volunteer to nurse in France, where the most skilled and best physically equipped can hardly stand the terrible strain of hospital work. Only after a thorough course of training should a woman undertake to volunteer for Red Cross nursing in the war zone. Then only will she be of real value. No ornaments, such as impeded the work of nurses and surgeons in the early days of the war, are wanted now. War is a grim business, and the war is fast getting on a business footing.

In the home, where sons and fathers and brothers must be encouraged to do their full share of the war work, whether in the ranks or in the home, the woman's influence is supreme. Her's is the deciding voice, for to her looks the man for inspiration and advice.

"Let him go to war—shall him, but without him the war will not

Our Lost Hours.

It has always been a question whether or not lost time is wasted time. In one sense it is, because life is too short to permit us to do liberally less even one of our waking hours; that there is too much to do for that. In another sense, however, it is not wasted time, for at a moment the demands which duty makes upon us; that life holds meanings too deep and too vital for us to squander our fingers and hands and go on our way. We must be up and doing, watching our opportunities, seizing our duties, bearing our burdens, using others, hoping, breathing, living always in the face of what we have to do and the short time we have to do it in. Wasting life from this angle we cannot indeed afford to waste a moment of our precious time, and yet, perhaps because we are only human, because we are weak enough to think of our individual lives, and because we are children enough to want to turn from the monotonous routine of life to the care-free existence which lack of responsibility affords, we do sometimes yield to the temptation of liding a bit of time away. It may be that our conscience forbids us this relaxation, but we may try by telling ourselves that we will make up in full for the stolen time, oblivious to the fact that some times we are not permitted this opportunity.

However that may be, there are few persons who have not experienced the joy of such stolen hours. We may call them lost hours, and perhaps they are in a way, but we know in our hearts that they are not altogether wasted hours. We know that without them we would have missed something out of life that we never could have gained otherwise, that they took us out of ourselves for a while and gave us a chance to feel in the sunshine. Are such hours wholly wasted? Are they altogether in vain? Are they unforgettable? It may be argued, of course, that they are, and that they are necessary to take this hour for ourselves if we really desire it. How can a man whose every waking moment is filled with duties of one kind or another, who gets up in the morning with his day's work already planned, who goes from one occupation to another, together with the duties of his work, or ordinary routine, or the simple details of life—how can such a man find the time to do just as he wants with unless he takes it for himself regardless of its other uses? We must not count those hours of needed rest as idle ones, because sleep and repose are necessary to life itself, but when we speak of a stolen hour we mean one that we have seized boldly, by our own hand, and carried away with us out into the sunshine to do with as the heart dictates. We fled with it, we hid it, we hid it in the trees as we rested among tall grasses, or perhaps on a sunny porch with the cool breeze sweeping over us, we walked with it, we carried it, we carried it across country lanes or city streets—thinking and dreaming ourselves into some fair land of our own creation. Forgotten was the call of duty perhaps, forgotten the more serious claims of life, forgotten unfinished tasks, and the day's work unaccomplished. What did they matter while we revelled in the one short hour which we gave ourselves to do with as we pleased? They were not so much of the life we must soon reenter, with not even a book, or bit of sewing, to remind us of anything apart from our present selves.

We might have put that hour to better use, perhaps; we might have made it speak for us in stronger ways, but we did not, we were so happy. If we could have obtained such real pleasure, such healthy enjoyment from any other way, the time we took from duty was not long, we argued, and as soon as the blissful hour was over we returned to our old routine better able to fulfill those ambitions which guided us, and better able, too, to work for others. Our lost hours, lost because they show no tangible evidence of having done something worthwhile, are not necessarily wasted hours. They only appear so to those who never, so they say, permit themselves to squander a moment of life's precious time. Are there such persons? We ask ourselves and the answer is, very seldom. We do not afford to waste our time, it is true, and even those of us who admit to the deliberate squandering of an hour here and there, or a week's work, the case may be, would never justify the act were it to become a habit, but at least we took back upon us few detached hours, we have taken from our work for our own use as perhaps the brightest of our lives.

Lower Tire Cost Than Ever—NOW

For, in the old days, tires not only cost more, they were also so far inferior to the present standard, that the best cost—the cost per mile—was from 25 to 100 or more per cent higher than you pay now.

United States Tires—the "Royal Cord," the "Chain," the "Disc" and the "Plain"—one for every need of price and use.

—produced by the largest rubber manufacturer in the world, —produced by the most experienced tire manufacturer in the world, —produced by a time-tried, exclusive, patented, vulcanizing process, —produced of only the most carefully selected materials, —have so far eclipsed every other make of tire that —United States Tires are famous for their mileage-giving qualities.

The proof?—the consistent and persistent tremendous sales increases of United States Tires.

JOIN THE RED CROSS

By joining or assisting the Red Cross Society you help the wounded soldiers and also help to keep down disease in the army.

By helping our soldiers well you help win the war.

The following will give you an idea of the sickness in previous wars.

In the Mexican war 6 died of disease to 1 from wounds. In our own Civil war 2 died from disease for every one killed. In the Franco-Prussian war 12 Germans died of sickness for every one killed in battle. But modern hygiene is so far advanced at the time of the recent Russo-Japanese war that the history was started by the fact that for the first time in the history of armies there was only one death from disease for every 2 men who died fighting. In the present great war sanitation is working on a super-scale, and modern hygiene is rapidly cutting down the excessive death rate.

The better the health of our army the sooner we will win.
