FRIDAY, JULY 26, 1901.

The Campaign in the Seventh. The state democratic executive committee will meet next week to make arrangements for holding a primary in the Seventh District to nominate a candidate for congress to succeed the late J. M. McLaughlin as congressman. The primary will probably be held the latter part of August.

Judging from the weather we have had this summer thus far, and from the Augusts that have come and gone since we first came to light, we would suppose that an August campaign would be rather warm, but we had no idea it would probably be anything like our contemporary puts it. When we recall that Mr. Aull is the governor's private secretary, though it might be that he is nearer headquarters and consequently better informed on such matters than we are.

All Men Liars Be.

In a codicil to his will Admiral Sir John Edmund Commerell, who died in England on May 21st last, it is said, used the following language:

Having had fatal experience of the iniquity of the law in certain cases, when decisions have been given against common sense and justice, I entreat the parties interested in my will not to appeal to the law if any difficulty may arise, but to arbitrate. Having been swayed myself by every lawyer that I ever had anything to do with makes me offer this advice to my heirs, executors and assigns.

The sentiment of this long named gentleman are the sentiments of some people in this community, as they are the sentiments of some people in every community. We do not deny that there are rascals, many of them, in the legal profession, but we assert that there are no more rascals among the lawyers than there are among the doctors, or the merchants, or the planters, or those engaged in any other walk in life.

The trouble with the people who are always going around talking about the lawyers being rascals is just this, they have some piece of dirty work they want done and because they can't find an attorney to engineer it for them, they go off and say he has sold out to the other side. Likely as not the esteemed English admiral whose words are quoted above, stole the greater part of the property of which he died possessed and he wanted to avoid any investigation at any time. Lawyers are most certainly not the kind of people to have around when you have a dirty piece of work to do, or when you are trying to hide some rascally work you have already done.

Let's Start Good Roads.

Everybody wants good roads; everybody advocates good roads; and yet nobody does anything towards getting good roads. We stated some weeks ago that we were going to quit talking so much about the subject generally, and were going to confine ourselves to some specific method of obtaining good roads. On hitting upon the plan we are about to suggest, we have not followed our own idea exactly; we select simply what the most of our people seem to think is the best mode of operation, and we advocate it because we believe it will work satisfactorily. Our own opinion is that the county should issue a sufficient amount of bonds to relocate and macadamize the main highways of the county, but the majority of our people do not agree with us. They don't hesitate to raise an issue of bonds to secure a railroad, which will belong to someone else, but they are afraid to go into debt to build the highways of the county, which will always be owned and used by the people of the county.

Before the changing was organized, the highways of the county were worked by the people of the county. Since the changing has been organized, however, this sort of thing seems to have gone out of style, and about the only work that is done on the roads is done by the changing. Our idea is that under present conditions the changing should be put to building permanent roads, and when the people find out that the roads in their neighborhoods are not going to be kept up by the to working before the changing is in operation. We know that the changing can not build many miles of road in a year, but just suppose it had been put to building permanent roads when it was first organized, we would now have several miles of fine road extending out from the town in every direction, and the old highways would be in just as good fix as they are now and the public would not have forgotten that the law requires them to build the public roads six days out of each year.

By all means the county board should put the changing to building permanent roads at once. We believe that if a start is once made, we will soon be known far and wide for the fine roads that will extend from one border of the county to the other.

Our Next President.

While so many of our republicat friends are constantly slinging vile accusations at the Hon. William Jennings Bryan for no other reason than that they fear he will be nominated by the democrats for the third time as their candidate for president, it is interesting to know something of this gentleman's thoughts concerning this matter. In a recent issue of the Commuter he says:

For a quarter of a century the southern states have been ignored in the selection of candidates. The republicans have had but a few white republicans in the south to choose from, and the democrats of the south have voluntarily renounced their calling out of fear that they might embarrass the ticket. Certainly we are far enough away from the civil war; certainly the passions aroused by that conflict are sufficiently cooled to permit a southern man to aspire to the presidential chair or the vice presidency. Even before the Spanish war called into the volunteer army both Federal and Confederate, the south had earned its right to be considered a part of the union; but surely the coming of the sons of those who wore the blue and the sons of those who wore the gray and their secession by side of Sam Houston at Mexico, ought to silence those who have thought it unwise to place a southern man on the ticket. Slavery has gone never to be restored again, and the democracy now dominant both north and south comes nearer to the ideals of Jefferson and Lincoln than does the commercialism of Hanna or the imperialism of Roosevelt. It is not yet time to select candidates for 1904; but when the time arrives the democratic voters should see to it that the platform represents their wishes and that the candidates fit the platform. If some one living south of the Mason-Dixon line is chosen for either the first or second position on the ticket, the place of residence will not weaken him—not, though he be an ex-Confederate soldier. We are engaged in a mighty struggle against slavery and we need the greater participation to pick from when we select our standard bearers. Merit, not section, should determine the nomination; fidelity to principle, not locality, should control.

Hard Up For Soap.

As an illustration of just exactly how hard up the republicat papers are for argument to uphold their position we quote the following from the Columbia Record: "Since it has dawned upon the anti-McLaughlinites that his doctrines are endorsed by the factory operatives, who see hope for themselves in triumph of the principles he represents, there has been somewhat of a change in their plan. It is at first thought that the factory vote could be led by the nose against McLaughlin. It was thought their prejudices could be easily aroused to blind them to their real interests. But the factory operatives have shown more sense than the anti-McLaughlinites gave them credit for: they have now changed their scheme. The Greenville Mountaineer says: "there will be a reformation in the method of conducting the primaries next year." The Chester LATIMER has an idea of what this reformation will be. It says:

"At the last primary something like six hundred and fifty ballots were cast at this box, and no less than two hundred of them were cast by what is commonly known as the 'factory operative'—people who in North Carolina one week, in South Carolina the next, and in Georgia or some other state as soon thereafter as they can effect the move. Such people pay no taxes. Know practically nothing about the men for whom they vote and care nothing as to the result of the election. Their names are put on the club rolls by those who are known in baseball parlance as 'rooters' and they are voted by the same parties in consideration of the bribe that furnished them. We have in this state an election law that was designed primarily to eliminate the ignorant and unscrupulous from the elections, and we all know that the primary is the real election in this state, territory. We mean exactly that no one should be allowed to vote in the primary except those who have a registration certificate.

"Such slurs at the mill operatives by McLaughlin's enemies will not hurt them against him."

We cast no slurs at the mill operatives and anybody with an ounce of fairness about them can see even from the portion of our article which the Record has copied, that we did not. What we said was that none but qualified electors should be allowed to vote in the primaries, and we simply cited the court-house box at that place as an illustration of what we meant.

"We have many factory operatives right here in Chester who are qualified electors, and who have as much right to vote as we have, and we will do all in our power to help them maintain that right. We are, however, opposed to giving an ignorant, indifferent, irresponsible man, who cannot secure a registration certificate, a vote in the primary, we care not whether he be a factory operative, a plow boy, or an editor of a McLaughlin paper. If he is not qualified to take part in the election of an officer, he is not qualified to take part in nominating an officer."

Oom Paul's Wife Dead.

Mrs. Kruger, wife of President Paul Kruger, of the South African Republic died in Pretoria on the afternoon of July 20th.

"Owing to the Sunday telegraph hours in Holland," says a dispatch to the Daily Mail from Hiversum, "Mr. Kruger was not informed of his wife's death until the evening. The news was broken to him by Dr. Heymans and Secretary Boeschoten."

Mr. Kruger, who had just returned from Hiversum church, burst into tears and asked to be left alone. He exclaimed: "She was a good wife. We quarreled only once, and that was six months after we were married." "He prayed for a long time and is now calmly sleeping, his Bible beside his bed. The Transvaal and Orange Free State flags flying above the white walls were draped and half-masted. Shortly before the news came a crowd of country girls had been singing a folk-song outside the villa."

New Storage Rules.

At a recent meeting of the state board of railroad commissioners new rules as to storage charges were adopted. The time limit for removing goods from the depots has been extended from 48 to 72 hours after notice, and a person residing more than four miles from the depot is allowed "a reasonable time" after notice to get his goods away.

The harder it is to acquire anything the longer we retain it.

The happy young couple left on the southbound train for their future home at Dillon, S. C., carrying with them the best wishes of their many friends here and elsewhere.
Chester's Political Rally.
The committee which has the matter in charge has fixed Saturday, Aug. 10, for the big political meeting here. The exact location at which the speaking will take place has not yet been fixed, but it will either be at the opera house, at the Wylie Park, or at some already new town. Senator Tillman has graciously accepted the invitation to attend and it is expected that nearly all the aspirants to Senator McLaurin's seat will be here at the meeting which will take place at the Union meeting and they can easily come from there here.

Nothing but national issues will be discussed, and no personalities or mudslinging will be tolerated. No doubt a large crowd will be present to take advantage of this opportunity to hear for themselves the views of the various gentlemen who will be here on the great questions that are now before the American people. The railroad's have been asked to grant reduced rates from all neighboring points, and it is possible that some of them will run excursions in here on that day.
Senator Tillman Here.
Senator Tillman was in the city for a few hours Wednesday forenoon. He came in on the Lancaster train, having made a speech the day before at a military picnic at Liberty Hill, and left by the Seaboard train for Clemson, where he expected to meet the committee which has charge of the construction of the new barracks. The senator was in fine spirits, and talked merrily to his friends and acquaintances who gathered around him.
He came up town in company with Hon. P. L. Hardin, who came in on the same train, and after visiting the court house and greeting the various county officials, dropped in at County Chairman R. B. Caldwell's office and remained there until time for his train. When asked if he would attend the political rally here on August 10th, the Senator replied that he would certainly be here and that he wanted a good crowd to hear the discussion.
His references to Senator McLaurin were frequent and severe. He knows all about what has been going on in Washington the last few years, and when he calls McLaurin a "traitor" he cites the official record in proof of his charge. We inquired of the Senator who he thought would really be in the race next summer for McLaurin's seat. He said that judging from present indications there would be several. It has been said in many parts of the state that he would favor Congressman Latimer for the place, but his statement to us was that he had no special choice; he wanted to see in proof of his charge. Edgemoor Letter.
EDGEMOOR, July 22.—Our farmers seem to be in better spirits since the rains have stopped coming so frequently. They are now making their last fight for the season with General Green. The crops in this section are poor, very poor. Cotton is small, but we hope and believe with suitable weather a half crop will be made. Corn that was planted after harvest is looking very promising.
It was the pleasure of the writer to hear the annual sermon preached in the W. O. W. church on Sunday to the W. O. W., by the Rev. J. H. Thacker, of Oswego. The following camps were present: Walnut Camp, of Rock Hill, White Oak; of Lewisville, Magnolia, of Riddman, Chesnut, of Leslie, and Willow Camp, of Edgemoor. There was a large congregation present. Mr. Thacker is a fine speaker and he preached a strong and forcible sermon. His text was taken from Hebrews 4:15. He had the closest attention of the large assembly for about fifty minutes, after which Rev. Leon Pressley spoke a few feeling and appropriate words to the Woodmen and their many friends. The music and singing were very good. The organ was presided over by Misses Frankie Walker and Bessie Clinton. The voluntary was sung by Misses Belle Clinton and Yannie Chambers soprano, May Clinton alto, and Rev. Leon Pressley and Mr. W. C. McCreight bass. It was very fine.
The trustees of the Edgemoor school have decided not to have summer months.
Prof. Kinard and family, of Winthrop college, are boarding for the summer at Mrs. J. C. Dickey's.
Mrs. W. T. Poag and Master Alex. are visiting relatives in and around Edgemoor.
Miss Stasia Wideman, music teacher of Jones Institute, is visiting Misses Maggie Whiteside, Miss Maggie Edwards, of Chester, is visiting her cousins, Misses Alna and Bessie Crook.

Notice of First Meeting of Creditors.
In the District Court of the United States—For the District of Chester—in Bankruptcy.
In the matter of LOUIS SAMUELS, bankrupt.
To the Creditors of LOUIS SAMUELS, who was duly adjudicated bankrupt and that the first meeting of his creditors will be held at my office in Chester on the 24th day of August, A. D. 1901, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the creditors may attend, prove their claims, appoint a trustee, examine the bankrupt, and transact such other business as may properly be done before said meeting.

House Fly Dangerous.

Dr. L. O. Howard, who is connected with the United States division of entomology, contributes an article to the June Good Housekeeping, New York, in which he calls attention to the great harm done by the common house fly in the carriage of disease germs. After referring to the activity of the fly in this direction during the civil and Spanish wars, and in Egypt, where the fly is responsible for the transmission of the eye disease ophthalmia, common among the "lagger" classes, Dr. Howard says:

"Evidence has been gathered which shows that where excrement is not properly cared for, as in box privies, in small towns and in the country, as well as in the low quarters of large cities, where in alleys ways and vacant lots and other waste places this substance is frequently found, the germs fly carries with it to the house, and thence into the food, cause the disease in houses. It has been shown that active typhoid germs may be found in excreta for some time before the character of the fever can be recognized. It is also shown that they are found in such places for some weeks after the patient has apparently recovered, and now that we know as a definite fact that the house fly spreads the disease, when we consider the enormous number in which it swarms in the kitchen and dining room, and how, for example, in many cities milk jugs are left standing in the early morning when just filled by the milkman outside the kitchen door, it becomes a matter of wonder that typhoid fever is not more prevalent than it actually is.

The importance of organized effort looking toward the decrease in numbers of this insect, therefore, at once becomes evident. Considering that horse manure is the breeding place of the great majority and I think it is safe to say that more than 95 per cent of the house flies from most civilized regions breed in horse manure the first step in remedial work is naturally the effort to stop this breeding. Experiments in the treatment of horse manure piles with a number of different substances have shown that the best material to use for this purpose is chloride of lime. This, however, cannot be economically and thoroughly used except where some effort is made to keep the manure for a time at least in a pen or less confined space. The open manure heaps everywhere seen about stables account for the majority of our house flies. The best substance for use with house fly maggots, the numbers of which, in a good stable, will undoubtedly in mid-summer run into a million. One thousand, two hundred maggots have been counted in a pound of manure. The house fly is a rapid breeder. In seven or eight to ten warm days a generation will be produced. Each female lays 120 eggs, and with 12 or more generations in a summer the decadence of a single individual, increasing in geometrical proportion, will in autumn be almost countless. Stables, especially in towns and cities, should be kept clean. Manure piles should be kept either in a vault or in a closet, and a shovelful of chloride of lime should be thrown over them with each day's addition. This may be done in a stable yard. When the manure is to be removed to garden or field, then and then only should the closet or vault be opened, except, of course, for the daily additions. I am assisted by a competent chemist that the addition of chloride of lime does not injure the value of the manure. Some such measure, as this, should be in towns and cities, enforced by the boards of health. Penalties for the open disposition of human excrement should be made and enforced.—News and Courier.

The best remedy for Stomach and Bowel Troubles. I have been in the drug business for twenty years and have sold most of all the proprietary medicines of any note. Among the ones that I have never found anything to equal Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for stomach and bowel troubles, says O. W. Wakefield, of Columbus, Ga. "This remedy cured two severe cases of cholera in my family and I have recommended and sold hundreds of bottles of it to my customers for their entire satisfaction. It affords a permanent cure in a pleasant form." For sale by all Druggists.

When you want a modern up-to-date physic, try Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They are easy to take and pleasant in effect. Price, 23 cents. Samples free at all drug stores.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

COLUMBIA, July 23.—The average temperature for the week ending 8 a. m., Monday July 22nd, was 80 degrees, or practically normal, with a maximum of 97 at Batesburg, and a minimum of 66 at Greenville. The average sunshine was below normal, and more sunshine would have been beneficial in the north border counties. High winds broke down much corn in a few counties on the 14th.

The rainfall ranged from less than half an inch to over five inches, the former in the central portions of the state, and central Savannah valley. The larger amount fell in Marlboro and Newberry counties while over the eastern, northeastern, northern, and extreme western counties the rainfall was generally excessive, and jamming to crops by flooding bottoms and lowlands; and by preventing much needed cultivation. A few points had insufficient rainfall and there crops are suffering and did not improve, but over the larger portion of the state the weather was favorable on growing crops, causing a general and in places a marked improvement in their condition.

Cotton improved throughout the state, and, while still very small, is growing fast and in most places, says a Charleston dispatch, a few sections it is heavily fruited, while some young cotton has not begun to bloom. The outlook for this crop is decidedly better than heretofore, although some fields remain grassy, and all of it needs more cultivation, but over the eastern, northeastern, and portions of the northern counties the ground was too wet for cultivation. Sea-island continues to brighten.

Early corn is a failure in many places, and, although somewhat improved, is very poor generally. It is maturing rapidly in the eastern portions of the state. Young corn, especially that planted on stubble lands, looks quite promising. On river bottoms, where usually the finest corn is raised, the crop will amount to practically nothing.

Tobacco shared in the general improvement, and in places has started new growth that will delay cutting, but cutting and curing is making fair progress, and some has been marketed.

Sweet potatoes look promising, some slips still being set but, while in Charleston county some fields are ready to dig and to market. Rice is excellent, but caterpillars are destroying ripening rice in Hampton county. Peas came up to good stands; some sections report more than the usual acreage sown in peas, others less. Sugar cane and pastures are good. Melons are generally poor. There is widespread complaint of peaches and grapes rotting.

A Good Cough Medicine.

Many thousands have been restored to health and happiness by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. If afflicted with any throat or lung trouble, give it a trial for it is certain to prove beneficial. Coughs that have resisted all other treatment for years, have yielded to this remedy and perfect health been restored. Cases that seemed hopeless, that the climate of famous health resorts failed to benefit, have been permanently cured by its use. For sale by all Druggists.

Second Crop of Potatoes.

If one could get a good stand of potatoes by Aug. 15 or 20, there would be no doubt as to an abundant yield provided there were showers in September. Now and then one may secure a stand, but planting the potatoes as they are taken from the ground will seldom give good results. The best way is to take up your potatoes when mature, place them in a cool, dark place and spread thin and let them dry about two weeks. If you wish to plant one bushel, select two bushels of the potatoes and bed them out in a good place. Cover with a layer of leaves or straw and then put two or three inches of dirt on them. When they have been in the bed about twenty days take off the dirt and straw and pick out the potatoes that show signs of sprouting. In that way you get a good stand. To plant the fall crop the ground should be broken deep and well pulverized. The potatoes should not be planted on a ridge, but in a deep furrow below the surface. As they grow work a little dirt to them so the ground will be about level. That plan will insure a crop if the rain comes.—Spartan.

Telephone Decision.

The South Carolina supreme court, says a Charleston dispatch, has rendered a decision in favor of Spartanburg merchant, holding that a telephone company cannot deny the use of its instruments to an applicant because he persists in using the lines of a rival company. The case grew out of a suit between the Bell Telephone Company and the Citizens' Telephone Company. J. B. Gwynn used the phones of both companies; but the home concern ordered him to discontinue the Bell, and on his refusal it removed its instrument from his store. Gwynn applied to Judge Buchanan for a writ of mandamus to restore the telephone. This was refused. The case then went to the supreme court, and was decided in favor of the plaintiff.
