THE LANTERN,
PUBLISHED TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS.

The Campaign in the Seventh.

The state democratic executive committee will meet next week to make arrangements for holding a primary in the Seventh District to nominate a candidate for congress to succeed the late J. C. Stokes as congressman. The primary will probably be held the latter part of August.—Newberry Herald and News.

Judging from the weather we have had this summer thus far, and from the Augusts that have come and gone since we first came to light, we would suppose that an August campaign would be rather warm, but we had no idea it would probably be anything like our contemporary put us. When we recall that Mr. Aull is the governor's private secretary, though, it might be better that he is head-quarters and consequently better informed on such matters than we.—Chester LANTERN.

We desire to inform the LANTERN that we did not mean to state the above just exactly as it appeared in the columns of the Herald and News. We meant to say that the campaign would be held the latter part of August. However, judging from the weather at present, what the reader made us say may be pretty near the truth. We hope not. And, moreover, we beg to inform the LANTERN that the governor's private secretary's office is about as far from the place where Mr. Aull and Chester is and he himself knows about as little of the above described warm place as the editor of the LANTERN, and desires no further knowledge on the subject.—Newberry Herald and News.

The headquarters that we referred to, brother, was the political headquarters, that is the temporary headquarters of our politicians, which we have always supposed was in Columbia, not the first headquarters of the gang. Evidently you, as well as your prof reader, have the "warm place" on your mind. Sam Jones hasn't been in Newberry lately, has he?

Considered Complimentary.

Chester has paid Union quite a compliment, perhaps, by initiating it in having a big speaking on our national policies. It is to be held on August 10, and the Chester LANTERN says, in part: "It is expected that nearly all the aspirants to Senator McLaurin's seat will be here as the meeting will be the day after the Union meeting." The railroads have been asked to grant reduced rates from all neighboring points and it is possible that some of them will run excursion trains here on that day.

While we are always glad to see Union patterned after, we cannot but wish that our sister county instead of holding this separate meeting had united with us in the effort to make this the greatest possible success. Besides we had a welcome awaiting the people of Chester and the surrounding country, whom we hoped they would here to see.—Union Progress.

While we are sure the promoters of the discussion of national issues, which is to take place here on the 10th instant, had no thought of complimenting Union, we are equally as sure that they will not object to her looking at it in that way. Union is a wide-awake, progressive town; and we are not ashamed to be pointed at as the place that recognizes her good works; and duplicates them within the next twenty-four hours. We are growing as rapidly as any town in the state, and we are not so jealous that we will deny ourselves even a political discussion simply because some other good town has one too.

We want to say to our neighbor that we appreciate her invitation to attend her meeting, and no doubt many Chester people will enjoy her hospitality at that time; but we can't go over there, and for that reason we are going to have the speakers come from Union here and we will be more than delighted to welcome any of Union's people who will come with them.

The Plan We Suggested.

The Chester LANTERN suggests a plan for the permanent improvement of public roads similar to that which we suggested sometime ago, that is, put the chain gang at work building permanent roads. The idea is a good one of course, but supervisors who are dependent on the people for re-election can be induced to undertake to carry it out.—Waterbury Press and Standard.

It is true that in Chester county the board of commissioners have not thus far adopted our plan, or any other, but as has been suggested, for the permanent improvement of our public highways; but we are not prepared to say why they have not done so. "We can and do say, however, that the matter does not lie at the door of the supervisor alone. Of course he is the head of the board; but nothing of this sort can be done except by a majority vote of the board, and if the majority favored such action it would be done regardless of his views on the matter, and if the majority opposed it it would not be done, no matter whether he favored or opposed it.

We believe our supervisor and practically the entire board are in favor of permanent good work; the question with them is how to go at it. Since the changing has been in existence our people have learned to depend entirely on it to keep the miserable old roads in repair, and if it is put to building permanent roads who will do this work? We believe that if the people once see that there is no chance of them getting the changing to repair the road over which they are obliged to travel, they will go to work just as they did before we had the changing.

We hope our board will take upon the matter land study it carefully. Their action either way will affect not only this present generation, but their children's children, and they cannot afford to pass the matter over in any careless, thoughtless way.

Planting Shade Trees.

People in town as well as those in the country often find themselves during this hot weather thinking about the shade. We thought about it when we were out on the road, and several times when we were poking in the hot sun we thought so much about it when we got to the end of the row, we would stop a while and see how it felt. We think about it now since we have come to town, and when we start out to dinner these hot days we find ourself wishing that Saluda Street was bordered from one end to the other with fine water oaks like those in front of Mr. J. K. Coleman's residence. But we are not alone in our wish; practically every one here would like to see every street in the city well shaded, and many of our people are spending much time and money, too, to that end.

Good Connections from all Points to Blowing Rock.

The Carolina and North-Western Railway, the well known Blowing Rock line to the mountains of Western North Carolina's famous resorts, will inaugurate a new and convenient schedule over run for that travel, leaving Chester after arrival of connections from Florida and South Carolina, Gastonia after connection with Georgia, and Hot Springs and Hickory with connections from the East and North Carolina points, arriving at Lenoir at 1:30 p. m. Each day.

They have also put on an extra passenger train between Hickory and Lenoir, connecting with the night trains there, making close connection at Hickory with all trains from North Carolina and Virginia, and at Lenoir and Blowing Rock. Returning make corresponding connections.

As this connection the public will have no cause for delay between the points of Blowing Rock and Lenoir should desire to stop at a lower altitude before climbing to the high peaks of the Blue Ridge. It is a route long and acclimated, in which case there are many pleasant and delightful excursions at Cliff, that enables passengers to Blowing Rock, and then dine and leave the train for the stage immediately on arrival at Lenoir and arrive at Blowing Rock, promptly on time. if a success. You may not care one iota about the political issue that these distinguished gentlemen are coming here to discuss, and that so many people are coming here to hear talked about, but you certainly care something about your town and what impression it makes upon the people who will be here on that occasion. The committee on arrangements has been strengthened by the addition of several excellent gentlemen, and it is feeling very well. It is possible that a sub-committee will call on you within the next few days for a small contribution to help defray the expenses of entertaining the visitors, and now don't be a laggard back terrapin and jerk your head under cover at the sight of them. If you are a merchant, you will get back your donation ten times over in the shape of profits on the goods you will sell that day; if you are a hotel, boarding house, or restaurant keeper, you will make more money on that day than you have made any day this year; if you are a professional man, you will make acquaintances and be flattered about to people that day that may be worth much to you in the future; if you are a real estate dealer, you will get many times the value of your subscription in the way of free advertising. In short, if you are any kind of a man at all, and ever expect to be worth any thing to yourself or the community in which you live, it will be an opportunity for you to make a good investment.

Then again we want to see every body in Chester helping to advance the meeting. Tell your customers, your clients, or your partners, as the case may be, all about it while you are waiting on them, and ask them to be here on that day, and to bring everybody with them they can.

We say the meeting is going to be held, and it is going to bring a large crowd of people here, and you are going to derive some benefit from it, and we hope you are not going to be so mean and so close fitted as to let others furnish you with it. Be liberal, wide awake, public spirited, patriotic man and do your duty.

Col. Springs says his room, the L. and C., will sell tickets to our big political meeting at one fare for the round trip.

Lightning's Curious Capers.
Lightning cut some curious and hair-raising capers at the residence of Mr. John F. Williams, on the Charlotte road, six miles east of Yorkville, last Sunday afternoon. Although nobody was hurt, and there was but little damage, the strangest part of the proceeding seemed to be that somebody was not killed.

Mr. John F. Gordon, county supervisor, was telling about the circumstances Monday. His version on his way home Sunday afternoon when the storm came up, and seeing a heavy cloud ahead of him, rode into the yard of Mr. Williams to escape a good wetting. "Presently," related Mr. Gordon, "there was a deafening crash of thunder, and an instant later we realized that a large tree that stood about 20 yards from Mr. Williams' house had been shattered. Then we saw the electricity on the telephone wires going in, the section on the telephone pole in another. It looked like a burning powder train except it was brighter and moved faster. The fire seemed to hang on the wire in big chunks, and as it consumed the insulated copper connection from the edge of the piazza to the telephone inside the house, we felt certain that the house would be burned.

"Mr. Williams and I were both quite nervous over the event. We realized a danger that possibly some member of the family had been killed, and we rushed into the house to see. Nobody had been hurt, and the house had not been burned. So much relieved we came out to take a further look at the surroundings. A tree near the barn, and about 100 yards from the first tree referred to, was throwing off smoke like a coal-burning locomotive puffing up a steep grade. Hurrying to the spot we found that the tree, a large elm, was hollow, and that the lightning had gone down in it and set it on fire near the roots. There was a whole in the tree near the ground, and this furnished an air vent to feed the draft that went up the flue. The tree was burning like a furnace and was threatening the barn and contents near by. It took hard work during the next 10 minutes to overcome the threatened danger.

Returning to the house, we found that not only was the insulated copper wire that connected the telephone with the main line gone; but some 50 feet of telephone wire had been burned up like so much cotton string. There was nothing to indicate that the wire had existed between the house and the dangling loose end, the melted smooth appearance of which showed where the burning had stopped.

"On up the road, several telephone posts were torn into pieces, one of them especially being splintered into fragments of wood rather than match sticks. But it did not appear that the lightning had followed the telephone wire from the house. Between the house and the first shattered posts that had been untouched."

Mr. Gordon did not think that the lightning had been attracted by the telephone wire; but that it must have come direct from the clouds to the big tree in the yard. The most remarkable thing about the whole adventure, in his estimation, was the circumstance that nobody was killed. —Yorkville Enquirer.

A Minister's Good Work.
"I had a severe attack of bilious colic, got a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, took two doses and was entirely cured," says Rev. A. A. Powers, of Emporia, Kan., a neighbor across the street from a doctor who treated him for some days and gave him no relief, so discharged him. I went over to see him the next morning in fifteen or twenty minutes if he did not find relief, but he took no more and was entirely cured." For sale by all Druggists.

Democracy in Practice.
The democratic party has always been an advocate of free trade, while the republicans have championed the tariff. A first-class demonstration of the workings of the two doctrines is to be found in the case of Porto Rico. The following from the New York Journal of Commerce sets forth the case: "In consequence of the action taken by the state department declaring free trade between the United States and Porto Rico, the steamship companies carrying merchandise between New York and that island are receiving so many orders for the consignment of goods to San Juan and other Porto Rican ports that, according to the merchants who have applied to these companies, they will be unable to handle all of the goods without chartering extra steamships. For months the importers have been storing goods hitherto available in our West Indian possession in anticipation of this action taken by the state department. Nearly $1,000,000 worth of merchandise on which formerly duty was paid will be shipped to Porto Rico within the next few weeks. Although this is the dull season of the year for West Indian trade, the steamship companies will have all they can do to handle this accumulation."

"Through the months of June and July our baby was teething and took a running off of the bowels and sickness of the stomach," says O. P. M. Holliday, of Deming, Ind. "His bowels would move from five to eight times a day. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house and I gave him four drops in a teaspoonful of water and he got better at once." Sold by all Druggists.

Silliness in the Hymn Books.
Time and enlightenment have worked marvels in the Sunday-School hymnal. It is true, however, that there is set to music for the little ones a whole lot of scholars in many churches doggerel which no intelligent editor would accept for a tunny column in his paper. So there is always room for such a revival of the crusade for better hymns for the children as Francis Wayland Parker has just stated in a convention at Detroit.

"I want to be an Angel" was the selection singled out for special attack by Mr. Parker. It is an atrocious piece of verse, with thin measure and in all ways the reverse of inspiring. There are many other so-called "hymns" just as bad, however, and they are not all in the children's books either.

If one were to take a blue pencil and go through the hymnals of the land, working with a mild spirit to the intelligence and self-respect of singers and worshipers, there would be a striking cutting down of "sacred" verses. There are plenty of good strong hymns in existence to occupy the old and young—hymns that deserve the name of dignity, beauty, sentiment and poetic worth. But the mass has been fearfully diluted by an army of writers whose sole idea has been to produce stuff that would jingle and yet be sufficiently "umble" in tone. The laws of health require that the bowels move once each day and one of the penalties for violating this law is piles. Keep your bowels regular by taking a dose of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets when necessary and you will never have that severe punishment inflicted upon you. Price, 25 cents. For sale by all Druggists.

The Finest Tomatoes.
Just as we were making up the forms for the press last Tuesday, Mr. J. W. Wix of this city showed us a bunch of the finest tomatoes we have ever seen. There were seven large, fully matured tomatoes, and three small ones all in one cluster, and all on one limb. Mr. Wix said he did not know exactly what variety they were. He got the plants from Mr. George Tallmer, of this city, and grew them in his garden. Mr. Wix is a good clerk; but if he can always raise such tomatoes as these, we would suggest that he go into the truck farming business.

"My baby was terribly sick with the diarrhoea," says J. H. Oak, of Williams, Oregon. "We were unable to cure him with the doctor's assistance, and at last resort we tried Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. I am happy to say it gave immediate relief and a complete cure." For sale by all Druggists.
