THE LANTERN.

CHESTER, S. C. TUESDAY, JULY 28, 1908.

truck by Electric Storm.
Pa., July 23.—As the terrible electric storm which of the Pennsylvania National of the close of August, reported that at least 100 people were killed and two score injured, some of them seriously, by being struck by lightning. The known dead are: P. H. Morrison, Brown Harber; unknown man Tenth reg-ment.

The tent occupied by Gov. Stuart was blown down, and a number of others. Several friends were sitting with Gov. Stuart when his tent collapsed but the party managed to hold the canvas and all escaped injury.
The camp is flooded, and telegraphic service is practically at a standstill.
The entire camp is panic stricken.
The darkness is impenetrable and men are wildly running about through rivers of water, seeking the injured.
Every tent of Battery B was blown down but no one in the battery was hurt.

The regimental guard tent of the Tenth regiment was struck by the lightning and the men of Company C were badly injured.
The field hospital is full and men are lying about the camp waiting for relief.

The Young Men's Christian Association tent, which was filled with men and women who had taken refuge from the tent of the Tenth regiment, was blown down and the men were ground, but so far as known no one was seriously injured.

Health prostrates the nerves. In the summer one needs a tonic to offset the customary hot weather. Nerve and strength depression is a common fever which in 48 hours after being taken to such a state as to require medical attention. The prompt results in restoring the weakened energies. Of course you will not get entirely strong in a few days, but each day you can actually feel the improvement. The tonic is a pleasant feeling quickly after when using "Health Coffee" and it is a tonic less will sharpen a falling appetite; it also digests it; will strengthen the weakness and heart; it is a tonic lightly rebuilding the worn-out nerves and giving the system a new lease in a few days and be convinced. Sold

Seize the Opportunity.
"He who hesitates is lost," has been quoted times without number, and it's carried with it the meaning that he who waits for an opportunity to grasp, the opportunity as it comes to hand, or he will be ever in the rear of the procession.

Opportunity, however, means work, and that thing of "luck" is a great manoeuvre. No success that is real and genuine is based upon it, when you go to a man who is "lucky" in "luck" in life, the chances are that you will find that back of that "luck," there has been work and study and preparation.

No man of health and the average amount of brains but who can find opportunities presenting themselves to him, and who is ready to seize and is able to do hard work, for true opportunity means that work is to be done. No matter how hard the task may be, the man who is ready to be done by the man who is ready to go to work with a determination, but if he waits for "luck" to come his way he will never get his "luck" in real valuable. Raleigh News and Observer.

South Carolina Needs Him.
The report comes from Beaufort that Senator Nelson Christensen, Jr., will have strong and decided opposition to his re-election to the Senate from that county. Mr. Christensen is one of the State's strongest men, and the refusal of his home county to re-elect him to the Senate assembly would be a reflection upon the people of that otherwise intelligent constituency.

Senator Christensen is remembered as one of the prosecutors of the graft and corruption in the state dispensary, and his record in this respect should be a warning to the people. He is a man of high character and ability, there is more work of a like nature, clear, conscientious work and his dis-reputation in handling it and his actions make him a man of influence in the upper branch of the state legislature. He is one of the few representative of the people who really and truly represent. Beaufort should send him back to the Senate.
South Carolina needs him.—Greenville News.

Over Thirty-Five Years.
In 1872 there was a great deal of character in the history of the state. It was at this time that Charles Robert, only son of the late Benedict was first brought into use.
It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment. For the last thirty-five years maintained that results. It is a great relief to the and has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. It is a great relief will recommend it when their

FROM MCGRADY'S ALLEY.

The Story of an Adopted Family.
There is a true ring of sentiment to be found in the experiences of Foster McGrady, a young man of August, Bel-eator. One woman, who in the generosity of her heart took to her home a whole family, tells her story as follows:

No, they are not my children, I adopted them all. Five do seem a large number, but I didn't see how I could take more without the others.
Where we lived ten years ago, the rear of our house faced what is known as "McGrady's Alley." There was only one house in the alley and that was an old shanty. The McGrady's were a shiftless lot; the woman, a pale, weak thing, the man, a sullen creature. But the children, five of them, were regular sunbeams, playing on our back porches, begging for cookies—and, indeed, they were often hungry.

Then one day as I was cuddling the youngest, McGrady baby on my lap I heard a cry, put the baby down and rushed out. McGrady was there on a stretcher, and the poor wife was rooking to and fro in agony. She never was herself again. We buried her and then after a funeral we held a consultation over the children.
Finally, we divided them, and I took the baby. And then, I really don't know how it happened, the others came to see, and they would stay and when we moved I took them all.

Troubles? Of course they are a trouble, and a care, and a happiness, and a blessing all in one. And I couldn't do without them. There is no life for a woman without children, and even if it meant McGrady's Alley and the old shanty I would keep them, every one.

Death of Kettie W. Watson.
Mr. Kettie Wannamaker Watson, eldest son of Rev. A. B. Watson of the South Carolina Conference, died yesterday in this city. His remains will be taken to Ridge Spring for interment in the family burying ground.
Mr. Watson had been in ill health for some time, and at that time practically an invalid. He was an uncomplaining sufferer and, whenever able to go to all, was a man of great character. For a number of years he had been employed by the Gibbs Machinery company. At the time of his death he was with the Southern Cotton Oil company, superintending the erection of a mill. Two years ago Rev.
A. B. Watson lost his youngest daughter, Miss Myra Watson, who had many years in this city. The surviving brothers of Mr. Kettie Watson are Mr. W. W. Watson of Batesburg; Messrs. A. B. and H. Shorter Watson of the same company, and Mr. F. T.
Watson. There is one sister, Mrs.
A. E. Hogan of Fort Motte.

The suffering which Kettie Watson had experienced for a number of years seemed to have left him a few hours before his death and he passed away tranquilly and in resignation.—The Talking a Good Case to Death.

—Some years ago in Hartford, we all remembered one hot, sweltering night to beat the annual report of Mr. Hawley's city missionary, who needed help and didn't want to ask for it, and he was a man of high character where poverty resided; he gave instances of the heroism and devotion of the poor. When a man with mittens in his hands, and a great deal of deal of noise. It's a noise in the wrong place, for it's the widow's that counts. Well, Hawley worked down, down, down—400 as well—all finally, when the plate did come down, it took 10 cents out of it.
It all goes to show how a little thing like this can lead to crime.—Mark Twain.

A WORTHY COLORED MAN.

Sells First Bale of Cotton in Georgia Every Year—Attends to His Farm and Laid Politics Alone.

Deal Jackson is a name that is familiar in Georgia. Everybody knows it as the name of a negro farmer in South Georgia. They never hear of him in connection with the recorder's court, the name is never seen when the list of delegates to negro conventions, yet every year about this time the name of Deal Jackson appears in all the newspapers as the Georgia farmer who has sold the first new bale of cotton of the season. Again this has happened. Deal Jackson has brought to market the first new bale of Georgia cotton, two days earlier than last season.

For eight or ten years it has been so. There are many farmers who strive for this honor, but Deal Jackson beats them all. Stimulated by his first success, he has made a study of it, and regularly each season he brings in the first bale. It is done regularly. He does not attend to a little new; for the bales is thoroughly examined by experts who would find the old cotton if any was in the bale.
It is in the eye of the assessor that it is ginned and packed before his neighbors have cotton opening, and only a few days after the first bales have appeared in this section. He does not wait for a careful selection of the earliest maturing seed, and by forcing the growth of the plants by special fertilizers and insecticides all in one. And I couldn't do without them. There is no life for a woman without children,
them, every one.

It would be interesting to know more about this negro, for without a doubt he is one of the greatest men of his race. He did not attend to invited to lunch with the president, cuddled by rich men in the north who have more money than sense, when Booker T. Washington was in the country from a part of their cash; and Booker Washington's fame may be sung by people who cannot distinguish between a worthy man and a mountebank. Deal Jackson, the negro farmer of Georgia, is the living example he sets his people; he is worth a dozen Bookers Washingtons.
Yet by his own race he has almost entirely ignored. What a mistake!
Not to hold him up as an example for negroes, and one of the most worthy and greatest of their race, instead their professors and preachers. The biography of the life of Deal Jackson should be placed in the hands of every negro who can read, for the healthy effect it should produce.

How did Deal Jackson? How did he make his start? How great a success has he made? That he started life with nothing to depend on but his own efforts is reasonably certain.
That he is now a substantial farmer and a wealthy man is also reasonably certain. The man who year after year produces the first bale of new cotton is certain to do more than that. The farm which produced the first bale of cotton year after year produces much more. And Deal Jackson is certain to be a money making farmer. And also it is certain that he has the esteem of his white neighbors. There is no race problem so far as he is concerned, and there never will be.

What Deal Jackson has done thousands of other negroes could do. All could not raise the first bale of cotton, but all could do that which is certainly, but all could make a success at farming, make money, and be worthy and respected people in their communities.

It is not Greek and Latin which negroes need to know, nor are the schools maintained at great cost to give them a higher education the best that could be done for them. Not but the negroes acquire homes, and learn in useful fields of productive industry to hold their own with competitors, will the race rise. And in this Deal Jackson, the negro farmer of Dougherty county who markets the first bale of Georgia cotton each year, is setting the negroes the best example every set them by one of their race.—August Herald.

Ready for the Dollar.
Marjorie, aged nine, had not been having satisfactory reports from school. Her father finally said, "Marjorie, for the first hundred you get I'll give you a dollar." Time went on and the report could not be blamed. One day the child was taking a violent fit. Her mother sent her to the doctor. When he had gone, Marjorie said, "Mama, am I very good?"
"No, dear; your temperature is a little over a hundred, but the doctor thinks you will be all right in a day or so."
Smiles broke through Marjorie's tears.
"How nice, I can have my dollar.
Papa said he would give me a dollar if I could get a hundred in anything."

Some Sweets that Mother Used to Make.

Those who are on the lookout for new sweets might do worse than take a lesson from the dishes "mother used to make" and set forth as a novelty something that seems new just because it is so old. I can vouch for the accuracy of the directions, says Christine Tarleton Herrick in the August Delicacy.

Pound-cake—One pound of sugar, one pound each of flour, of eggs, one teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, one tablespoonful of best brandy, Wash the salt out of the butter, and cream it with the sugar. Beat the eggs and whites of the eggs separately and very lightly. Work the spices and brandy into the creamed sugar and butter, stir in the yolks of the eggs and well mixed add the sifted flour alternately with the whipped whites. Beat them in lightly, but do not stir them after they have been added. Mix the batter for pound-cake as stiff as can be stirred.
Bake in a steady oven either brick or melon tin.

This is the genuine old-fashioned pound-cake and is very rich. A simpler cake may be made by using only three quarters of a pound of butter, and when the ingredients are the same as in the recipe given.

Sweet-potato pie—Parboil a pound of good sweet potatoes, and when they are nearly done, grate half a cupful of butter with three quarters of a cupful of white sugar, stir in the beaten yolks of four eggs, a teaspoonful each of cinnamon and ground nutmeg, and the juice and grated rind of a lemon. Whip in the grated potato, a cupful of milk and two tablespoonsful of brandy and last, the beaten whites of the four eggs. Bake in open pastry shells or as a pudding in a deep baking-dish without a crust.
Eat cold.

Some Timesly Suggestions.
During these hot days see it that your horse has water frequently while at work. A man will not work all a long, hot day without water.
A horse does not work long without it, long without it, but frequently he is compelled to. A gallon or two of water given the horse about every three hours while he is at work during extremely hot weather helps greatly and is a whole lot better than having the thirsty animal overloading his stomach with water several times.
In this section the water men are nearly all bridled and horses driven over the roads do not have the opportunity of drinking at streams as they formerly used to. During the remainder of the summer, if you take a long trip remember that the horse is frequently thirsty. Stop occasionally and put yourself in a little trouble. If necessary, stop to give water to him. And when you stop see to it that your horse is not left standing in the hot sun for one hour. Better for the horse to moderate work in extremely hot weather than it is for him to stand still in the sun. It means suffering for the animal to be left in the sun shine next to a wall during hot weather.
Remember that when you hitch your horse. The Bible does not say "A merciful man is merciful to his beast," but it does say "A merciful man regards the life of his beast."

Two Ways of Looking at Things.
Two boys went to gather grapes.
One was happy because he found grapes. The other was unhappy because the grapes had seeds in them.
Two men, being conversational, were talking about the weather. One said, "It was better today." The other said, "I was worse yesterday."
When it rains, one man says, "This will make many another year." "This will lay the dust."
Two boys examined a bush. One observed that it had a thorn; the other, that it had a rose.
"I am glad that I live," said one man; "I am sorry I must die," says another.
One says, "Our god is mixed with evil" another says, "Our evil is mixed with good."—Unidentified.

Short-Lived Doctors.

Physicians, with all their knowledge of drugs and the laws of hygiene, are as a class short-lived, which factors seems surprising to their patients.
"This is a medical journal," says the doctor who made his own health his chief concern would have to retire from business in order to see to it.
The general practitioner tells you to eat regularly and sleep seven or eight hours every night. He recommends change of air and scenery now and then. Yet you find him day after day, driven by demands of his profession, swallowing his meals in a hurry, going without a sufficient slumber, and hardly ever taking a vacation.
Longevity is not for him.

A patient, however, makes a sad mistake who refuses to follow the advice of the family physician simply on the ground that the physician doesn't practice what he preaches.—Boston

Norman Mack Chairman.
Chicago, July 26.—Chairman Norman Mack, Buffalo, N. Y., vice chairman—L. N. Hall, Nebraska.—President—Gov. C. F. Haskill, Oklahoma. Secretary—John I. Martin, Missouri. Secretary—Woodson, Kentucky.

At a seven-hour conference with William J. Bryan and John W. Kern, respectively democratic nominees for president and vice president, the subcommittee of the national democratic committee today made its selections for officers of the committee. It was the first time in many years that a national chairman had been selected by the democratic party only after a bitter contest had been waged. The choice of Mr. Mack was made possible only after the New York leaders, Charles F. Murphy of Tammany and W. J. Conners, chairman of the state democratic committee, had yielded to the personal desire of Mr. Mack to be the national chairman. Mr. Mack, however, was not elected until after a bitter contest had been waged. The choice of Mr. Mack was made possible only after the New York leaders, Charles F. Murphy of Tammany and W. J. Stover Dets.
Stover, July 24.—Mrs. J. D. Bankhead and children, who are visiting their home in Chester, are spending some time with Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Higgins and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bankhead.

Miss Annie and Besie McDonald spent last week here visiting relatives. Mrs. Annie Buesel and J. B. Patrick visited Mr. W. Bankhead this week.

Mrs. J. A. Wallace, of Lyleville C. C., arrived in the city yesterday to visit her sisters, Mesdames W. R. Caldwell and E. T. Chaney, and other relatives in the Pleasant neighborhood.

Mr. J. M. Caldwell had a Jersey milk cow on Friday at his farm. The cow was turned out to graze and died in half an hour after eating only a small amount of case.

Mr. W. G. Hill had a narrow escape from death Saturday night. He was lying in bed when a fire broke out in the room above him.

Paris, July 26.—The German automobile in the New York-to-Paris race was greeted with loud cheers by the Sunday procession as it swept up the crowded boulevards to the finishing post, escorted by a large number of automobiles.

CHANGE AT NATIONAL EXCHANGE.

Mr. Edwards Resigns the Cashiership of the National Exchange and Mr. S. Lewis is Elected to Succeed Him.
Mr. C. C. Edwards, cashier of the National Exchange, has announced his resignation to the Board of Directors of the bank. At a meeting of the Board of Directors held Monday morning at the office of Mr. J. L. Glenn, president of the bank, Mr. S. Lewis was elected to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Edwards' resignation.

The directors were very loath to accept Mr. Edwards' resignation, and the bank had proceeded under his management. They were, however, unable to prevail upon him to withdraw his resignation and reluctantly accepted the same. Mr. Edwards resigned his position with the bank for the purpose of devoting his time exclusively to his insurance business. He will give his undivided attention to this business as soon as Mr. Lewis takes charge of the bank.

Many friends of Mr. Lewis will be glad to welcome him back to his old home. He has the confidence and respect of all who know him, and he is a man of high character and high ability. His management of the National Exchange Bank up to the time of his resignation is a high order of merit.

After a change of work for a year, Mr. Lewis came back to his work with renewed energy. The stockholders of the bank at the annual meeting voted upon securing Mr. Lewis as successor to Mr. Edwards.

Mr. Lewis will begin work with the bank the first of August, or shortly thereafter.

Cap. King Resigns.
The many friends of Capt. J. B. King and his brother, Mr. Charlie King, of Lancaster, in this city and along the L. & C. road, will be sorry to learn that the first of August their connection with that road will be severed. Capt. King has been conductor of the L. & C. passenger train for about half years and has always been courteous and kind and his services will be very much missed by the traveling public. Mr. Charlie King has been engineer for several years and conductor in the absence of his elder brother and was also popular. Capt. King has no plans at present to leave the latter road, but he has no body any good and it may be the means of him and his family moving to Chester some time in the future.

Cutting Affair.
There was a right serious hot cutting affair yesterday afternoon on the Mills place five miles east of Blackstock, when the late Mrs. M. A. Gray, of Lenoirville, and her son, Mr. J. M. Moore, colored, is working the place and he and his wife have been cutting the grass in the yard. Mrs. Moore, colored, and his wife were separated and Mary Brice, Sam's wife, moved into the house with Mr. Moore. Political Corruption. This state has had its share of unclean politics and it is not surprising that we are not alone when it comes to corruption along political lines.

As people are in a way responsible for any corruption that exists in South Carolina politics, it is our duty to vote intelligently for men who are running for offices merely from a personal standpoint without considering the interests of the people.

The Tariff and a "Reasonable Profit". Our Government does not guarantee profits to other classes. It does not insure farmers crops, nor guarantee profitable wages to labor, nor good salaries to clerks.

Our Government once guaranteed Uncle Sam bonds—but it held the people to the bond, not the other way around to reimburse itself. The Government did not guarantee "reasonable profits" to the American railway investors.

This principle, if made effective, in the tariff, will divide manufacturers into three classes, all as follows: First—Those who are on a "starp" competition basis.

Second—Industries more or less closely joined in what is popularly called "gentlemanly" agreement.

Third—The well-organized trusts and corporations which are better equipped to control production of the great necessities and conveniences of life.

Under the proposed tariff which is to cover in and in that sense, guarantee profits, these trusts are informed that they will be protected by the Government against foreign competition.

What will be the result? It is not widely probable that the manufacturers will become the real and only "class" wholly guaranteed and protected by the Government.

Mr. Wright has not had time to examine the report which had been submitted to him. After a few minutes' study of the report, Mr. Wright said: "Now be honest, boys, and tell me just what you did not yourselves do on this case?"

Cadet Russell, an honor man of the class, was the one who suggested that Wm. T. Russell of the engineer corps, if the army, stepped forward as spokesman. He said, perhaps he had been more to blame than any of the others, but he felt that none but committed serious offenses. He explained frankly and briefly the nature of the charges against him. "Excuse me," Russell explained, "was an exaggerating form of bringing a plea to attention."

He said that all of them had been at the banquet, but that he, Russell, which, far from being brutal or humiliating, tended to make the right sort of cadets.

Wm. T. Russell informed the young men he would give careful attention to the report and take their cases under advisement, indicating it might be several days before a final disposition was reached.

The court is understood to have been unanimous on the dismissal sentence. In the view of the war department, however, therefore, the secretary must either approve the findings or set them aside altogether. The law is mandatory upon the secretary to dismiss cadets who are found guilty of having and it is not discretionary with even the secretary of war to minimize the punishment.
