True Significance of the Sailor's Device to Escape Punishment.

Much has been seen in the papers about Roosevelt's round robin to Secretary Alger. To call this peti-tion or protest from the officers at Santiago a round robin is a misno-To refer to it as Roosevelt' round robin is a plain contradiction of terms. The purpose of a round robin is to avoid personal and individual responsibility, and make it impossible to say who was the first er or instigator of a docum

The Century Dictionary defines a round robin to be "a written pa per, as a petition, memorial or remonstrance, bearing a number of signatures arranged in a circular of concentric form. This device whereby the order of signing is concealed is to make all equally respon-sible for it." In Boswell's life of Johnson an incident is told of a lot of literary folk at a dinner, in 1776, at which the epitaph written for Dr. Goldsmith by Dr. Johnson became the subject of criticism and many changes were suggested. It desired to get them before the "But doctor for his consideration. the question was, who should have the courage to propose them to him? At last it was hinted that there could be no way so good as that of a round robin, as the sailors call it, which they make use of when they enter a conspiracy, so as not to let it be known who puts his name first or last to the paper."

When the crew of a ship made an appeal for better freatme protest against some unsatisfactory condition, it was the practice to discipline the ring leader whose name came first among the signatures. It was to prevent the captain from knowing who signed first or last that the scheme of signing in a cir-cle was hit upon, and this was called a round robin. But no such course was pursued with the pro-test sent to the war department through General Shafter. It was a while on the denominational insti-prepared by Colonel Roosevelt, tutions for light and air from above signed by all the brigade and division commanders, and forwarded "approved," by General Shafter. Round robin sounds more techni cal and mysterious than petition or protest, and so the correspondents seized with ignorant avidity upon the term, but it would be just as appropriate to say "the annonymous letter written by Colonel Rooseround robin .- Augusta Chronicle.

A Wonderful Machine.

Hampton county possesses an inention of a new method of grinding corn into meal. We have a sample of the meal made by the invention of the mill or device by which the meal was made. The peculiarity or difference between is meal and other meal ground by the ordinary mill is that this new mill grinds up all the husk and cob, all being thoroughly mixed together. and which undergoes no heating process whatever, the meal coming out as cold as the corn on the cob. (From several tests made it was hown that the heat put into meal by the prevailing old mills run from 35 to 60 degrees, which heat de prives the meal of much of its nour ishing substances. By the cold process all of the nourishment is re-tained.) The cob contains from 25 to 33 per cent of potash (which is the healthiest thing for a dyspeptic) and the finely ground bran also assists in making the bread very light. But few people know the per cent. of the life of the corn that is killed hen ground into meal in the old

Sad Hearts at Landsford.

Since the fair maids of west Chester left this community the boys look as if they had been to Cuba eating hardtack. I am they had a nice time while here and trust that they will be single when they return. I have heard a great many say that the Landsford boys have asked that a train be rur from Fort Lawn to Chester on Sunday, and am sure if it is not granted the livery business will be great. A TRIP ABROAD.

Saratoga and its Waters-The Convention-On Lake George and the Hudson-Grand Scenery of Virginia-Wreck of a Boom evening, August 1st, a party of us left Chester for an outing. We were joined on the train by Messrs. T. G. Patrick and W. M. Patrick and Misses Jeanette and Kittie Patrick, of White Oak, S. C., and at Rock Hill by Rev. J. A. We really did not find anything Smith and Miss Lizzie Simpson, and about it strictly first-class except the Smith and Miss Lizzie Simpson, and at Charlotte by Rev. B. H. Grier, rates. A Prof. P. L. Grier, Miss Ella Lee and Miss Elizabeth Scott. So in all ural Bridge. No one can appreciate this freak of nature until he has the part of the pa the Hudson across to Saratoga. Saratoga is a pretty place of big hotels and nice drives and innumerable springs.

Judge Hilton's estate is hard by the city, and it is worth seeing. The opinion about Saratoga is that the Judge's boys have brought him to the verge of financial ruin.

We suspect there is more water drunk in Saratoga than in any other place in the United States, and people don't drink the water because it is good either. Of all the nasty concoctions, the Saratoga water ea ilv has the lead, and you have to pay a nickel for the privilege of drinking it. The pay should be on the other side. But you have here an illustration of the force of fash-ion. It is the fashion for every one who goes to Saratoga to drink the water, and the water is famous. Everybody who goes there is expected to drink it and look as though he were sipping nectar. It is a mark of a greenhorn to make a face when you take the first drink. The old stager quaffs three or four in quick succession, and glasses smacks his lips as much as to say:
"Isn't it the best water in the world?" But the fellow who is taking his first glass knows it is the force of fashion and pretty soon he acts in the same way. It will not do for one to say that a thing is nasty when everybody else says it is good, or that a thing is ugly when everybody else says it is pretty. Herein, you know, is the secret of style, of high hats, and big sleeves and immense bustles. Would you like to drink some Saratoga water? Take a quart of good Chester wa ter, such as you could once get ou of the old well upon the square, nut in it a handful of salt, a half pounof salts and a half pound of soda stir well and mix with small quanti ties of iron, magnesia, and potassi-um, and you may get an idea of some one wanting some one who knows to tell the farmers how to cut and save peavine hay. The best advice I could give is to exerany one expect to save good fodder before it is ripe? The same rule applies to hay or anything else, potatoes for instance (Irish or sweet.) If you dig them before they are ripe If you dig them before any men, they will not save, so also with anyyou want to save the leaves on pear vines don't let them lie in the sun till they are parched. You can cure and put up cotton leaves for grass and rag weeds make a fine hay for winter feeding, and as the old people and weather prophets say we are going to have a severe win ter, it would be wise for those that have stock to make all the preparations and calculations for sewing a big small grain crop. The greatest failures come from not sowing in time, or probably not sowing at all. Some people think the corn cror is better than any, we have ever lands. Cotton is not near so good as it looks. There is plenty of leaf and stalk, but in many places lacks the fruit.

Most of them do not know what to think about the cotton crop. It has a fine weed but not very well fruited.

Thursday Evening's Recital.

In spite of the wind and the weather, an intelligent and appre-ciative audience gathered at the op-era house last Thursday evening to enjoy the delightful and artistic programme prepared by Mrs. Maude Reynolds McLure and Mr. James P. Brawley for their Chester friends.

The stage was made beautifully active and pleasing by the gracegrouping of stately palms and

The selections made by the muslicians were happy and wise in that l they catered to all tastes, and dis-played great versatility in covering a wide range of style.

The memory of Mrs. McLure's singing, during her residence in our midst, gained for her a hearty welcome when she appeared for her first selection, and her singing caused still more enthusiastic applause as she finished each number.

Her voice is as fresh, sweet, and flexible as when we last heard her, and has gained in breadth and powpathies; and her "Goodnight" by Nevin, sung in sweet, clear, liquid tones told us all too soon the programme was ended:

Mr. Brawley, as pianist of the evening, received full homage. He gave us a select, smooth performance, with great variety and sincerity of expression. His rendition of the "Octave Study in C Major" by Loew was given with an ease and certainty of attack that was refreshing. The "Valse E Major" by Moszkowski was rendered with a rich spirit, and crisp energy that characterizes true playing. Mr. Brawley's triumph of the evening was the Valse Cotillien" by Albenitz. In this he displayed brilliancy of touch, and also the charm of hav-ing "lightness without Jevity," and seriousness without severity." In answer to enthusiastic applause, he responded in a happy and sympa-thetic style with strains from the familiar airs, Wilson's "Shepherd Boy" and the "Last Rose of Sum-mer."

Chester has a music-loving per ple and the wrapt attention of the ance of the programme showed that there is here a broadened conception of the significance of music. We for his denial to overtake the report, thank our musical friends for the

to be as good as any wagon made on earth. Anyone wanting a first-class wagon will save trouble and money by calling on us.

The following testimonials speak for themselves. We would publish more but cannot for want of space:

About six years ago I purchased an Owensboro wagon and have had it in continual hard use ever since. Last summer the contractor asked permission to use this 3 1-4 inch wagon for hauling the large boilers; weighing 18,000 pounds each, for the water works plant. One of these was hauled successfully without any injury whatever, the distance being about one mile. While hauling the last one the fore axle broke. I had this axle replaced and am using this wagon to do my heaviest hauling, and today there is not a broken piece in it. I consider the Owensboro wagon the very best made.

Chester, S. C., Aug. 23, 98.

W. W. BRICE.

I have drayed with an 'Owensboro' wagon for 5 years. I consider it worth any two wagons of any other make. I have worn out one set of tires and haven't had any repairs done on it yet. I used it hauling cotton all through last winter when the streets here were almost impassible.

Chester, S. C. J. M. FUDGE.

I have owned an Owensboro wagon seven years and never had five cents' worth of work done on it during this time; not even had to cut the tires. I consider it the best wagon I ever owned or ever expect to own.

Was It Suicide?

It was reported yesterday morning that Tom Williams, colored, had committed suicide near his home in His wife said he got up the city. His wife said he got up about 4 o'clock, took his cane and pistol and said he was going to his father's to get better, as he was not well. In a few minutes she heard the report of a pistol. She went to the door but could see nothing. After day light he was found lying in the weeds dead with the pistol in his hand. Coroner Shannon held an inquest and the jury decided that he came to his death at the hands of parties unknown, thus showing that they vere in doubt as to suicide.

Dr. Brice afterward removed the bullet, which had gone through the We think it corresponds with the calibre of the pistol found, though a little mashed.

eunion by her presence. For thirty-five years the news-papers have praised Pickett's charge antil now many persons believe that ckett did more fighting at Gettys burg than any other command. Of-ficial reports do not sustain the view.

The official figures are as follows: Killed at Gettysburg: Pickett's dision 232, McLaws's division 313, division 343, Heth's division err. Rodes's division 421. Pender's

From this it will be seen that Mcaws, Hood, Heth, Rodes, and Pender each lost more men in killed than Pickett did.

The divisions which lost fewer men in killed are: Johnson's di-vision 229, Early's division 156, Anderson's division 147.

The losses in wounded were:

Pickett's division 1,157, McLaws's division 1,538, Hood's division 1,-514, Heth's 514, Heth's division 1,905, John-ion's division 1,269, Rodes's division 1,728, Pender's division 1,312.
The following divisions lost fewer men than Pickett's: Early's division 806, Anderson's division 1,128.

Pickett's great loss came in un-der the head of "captured." It appears his line went up near the Yankees and lay down on the ground and, of course, were captured to the amount of 1,499, as the official report says.

Pickett's average loss to the regiment in killed was 15. Pettigrew's brigade, which was in charge on the left of Pickett, and which went forward and stayed longer than any other troops, had an average lost to the regiment in killed of 47.

I take these figures from official record, not to detract from the reputation of my comrades of Pickett's division, but for the sake of historical truth, because I believe in giving honor to whom honor is due. ROBERT R. HEMPHILL.

Death of Mrs. Harrington.

On the 17th day of this month Mrs. Harriet E. Harrington (nee Hudson) died at the residence of her son, Capt, John W. Harrington, in Darlington county. Thus ended the life of a remarkable woman. She was born in 1804, and lacked but a few days of completing her 95th year. Her life cover-ed the period of four wars, that of 1812, the Mexican war, the late civ il war, and the Cuban war; and up to a year or two ago she was al-ways in good health. She was the only sister of the late Prof. I. W. son, who, as president of the Mount Zion College, Winnsboro, 6.

Banks of Fort Mill, and grandmother of Prof. A. R. Banks of our city. She lived to see fifteen of her greatgreat grand children. During the civil war she was cap tured by Gen. Grant's gunboats on the Mississippi river, while she was returning from a visit to a son's family in Arkansas. Being suspected as a spy, she was held a prisoner of war for several days and was forced to have her private luggage seatched. She severely re-primanded the officer in charge for this act of indignity to a Southern woman, and refused to accept an apology, declining to accept a cup of tea or coffee at their hands.
