THE NEW YORK TIMES

DELIVERS HIS FIRST SPEECH FOR HUGHES

Progressive and Republican, Great Former Leader in Louisiana, Maine.

Levinton, Me., Sept. 4.—Progressives united with Republicans in greeting Theodore Roosevelt, who delivered here last night his first speech of the campaign in behalf of Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for the presidency. A large delegation of Republicans and Progressives met him in Portland and escorted him here, where he reviewed an old-fashioned torchlight procession in which former Progressive leaders marched.

From the time he landed in Boston yesterday from the New York steamer until he retired to his rooms last night the former president received enthusiastic demonstrations. His address was devoted largely to an attack on the administration and a criticism of hyphenism. There should be in American citizenship no dual allegiance, he declared.

The cause of progressivism is inseparably connected with the cause of Americanism or patriotism, "of whole-hearted loyalty to this nation as well as to all which the great-souled spirit of this nation in the past has made the colonel declared. It would be "a grave mistake," he asserted, to "reject Mr. Wilson."

"At this moment," he said, "Mr. Wilson's buglemen advance as his greatest claim that he has kept us out of war." This claim can be seriously made only by individuals who know that there are nothing and no words either.

"Under President McKinley we had a war with Spain. Under President Wilson we are assured that we have had peace with Mexico," he said. "Under President Wilson we had a war with Spain. Under President Wilson we are assured that we have had peace with Mexico."

Colonel Roosevelt charged that the taking of Vera Cruz was war and added that it was a war which was entered into pointlessly and abandoned ignominiously; it was a war which failed, a war which did damage both to the Mexicans and ourselves and which in its outcome reflected a national shame upon our nation. But it was war nevertheless.

"The kind of safety first for which President Wilson's advocates stand is the continued safety of last, honor last, courage last. I do not believe in it. I believe that it is obtained at the cost of moral degradation in the present and at the risk of national ruin in the future."

GREEK SITUATION A MYSTERY

Speech of King Constantine's Associates Unsettled Though Repeated.

London, Sept. 4.—After two days of silence in telegraphic communication with Athens during which sensational rumors of a revolution which had gained currency but without confirmation, comes the startling news of the arrival of an entente ally and that the general Greek elections likely will be postponed for a fortnight.

From fragmentary dispatches reaching London it is deduced by some observers that changes of a decisive character already have taken place in Athens and that the decision to abrogate government has decided to stand on neutral ground and align itself on the side of the entente.

Others take a more conservative view. The Times attaches small importance to Wednesday's revolutionary movement at Saloniki, declaring this is overshadowed by the news of the appearance of entente allied ships in Athens as "quite unfounded."

"This news is taken to indicate," it says, "that the allies are wearied of the equivocations which so long have prevailed in Athens and are resolved to battle the intrigues of their enemies."

The Chronicle dismisses the rumor of King Constantine's abdication and similar report of political changes in Athens as "quite unfounded" and only of interest as showing Saloniki's frame of mind.

PENROSE AND STONE IN TILT

Washington, Aug. 31.—The motions section of the Emergency Revenue Bill was reached in the Senate today and amendments were unanimously adopted striking out proposed taxes on cotton, lumber, rubber, and certain war materials used in making war munitions.

During the debate Senator Penrose, Republican, read an editorial charging Southern Congressmen with forcing through sectional legislation, and Senator Stone, Democrat, charged sharply from Senator Penrose's charge that he had never seen such a motley group of discredited forces and political "descriers" as the Republican side of the Pennsylvania. Pointing to the Pennsylvania, Senator Stone said, Penrose, the boss supreme. He added he would "not ride the books" on the Senator, although he has done so.

"The Senator does not believe everything he reads?" Senator Penrose replied. "I remember reading something in a magazine about the Hilsner Senator and the Baking Powder Trust."

SOUTH CAN BE FREED FROM TICKS IN FIVE YEARS.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 2.—Because of the tick infestation among the people of the South, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has issued a plan for eradicating the tick which transmits Texas fever to cattle, this disease, which is a pest of the South, being eliminated from the territory of the United States within the next five years, according to the Field Inspection Division of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Under the plan, the light against the pest is running parallel with the light of the 11 tick-infested Southern States and the commonly known South Carolina territory within the next year or so, the division predicts. In five of the States, it is believed, the work will be completed by 1917.

An outline of conditions in the tick-infested territory, recently prepared, shows that Virginia, only 4 counties in which are now under previous tick infestation, is the only one's active. In South Carolina, because of the insect now being shown there, the quarantine is likely to be removed from the last bit of previously tick-infested territory of the State early in 1916. South Carolina, which is pushing the eradication work steadily forward, should be freed from ticks the same year. By 1917, therefore, it is calculated, there should be but 10 counties in Alabama remaining in quarantine, and these at the rate the State is now working, should be cleaned up by the fall of 1917.

For Mississippi probably the most accurate prediction can be made. The statistics of that State recently received show that 10 counties are in the quarantine, and it is calculated the tick died 1917. The State showed their interest in his step immediately, and nearly all the tick-infested territory has been cleaned up. Funds for the building and dipping vats in preparation for the State-wide eradication campaign, State-wide tick eradication legislation has been enacted in Louisiana. As a result, this State can expect to be free of fever ticks by the end of 1919.

"It is believed, with fair certainty, that by the end of the next three years, in Arkansas, dipping vats are in course of construction in practically every county in the State, and that the work in general use. It is believed that tick eradication will be completed in this State by the end of 1920. The same year, it is predicted, will see the eradication of ticks in Georgia, Florida and Texas have the hardest task before them in the work of tick eradication, and probably will require the aid of the five-year period to bring about the end of the quarantine from their territory. Texas has more counties quarantined because of the presence of the fever tick than any other State, and has almost as many square miles in the quarantined area as all the other States combined. It is probable, therefore, that the work of eradication in Texas will be the longest, and unless there is unforeseen activity, Texas will be the last of the States to claim a white area on the map.

As a result of extermination of the tick, it is estimated that 385,000 square miles in 10 years during which the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the States have been actively engaged in the work, will be free of the pest. The Bureau of Animal Industry in the South has improved from 50 to 100 per cent. Native beef cattle, bred from the tick-infested areas, are put to more flexible activity, and are giving more milk; and, because of the danger of disease largely has been eliminated, cattle of better breeds have been introduced into the tick-infested areas. The result has been greater progress in developing the cattle industry in the past year than in the preceding 50 years, and there has been a corresponding increase in the industry in the South in this period than in any other section.

The States and counties, railways and the people have been active in emphasizing the great importance of the tick, and the great interest and information among farmers and cattlemen. As a result of the operation of all these forces, the work of tick eradication practically has been completed in the South.

On July 1, 1916, there had been freed from ticks 284,521 square miles of the original quarantined area. This was an increase of 60,000 square miles from the 224,521 square miles freed by the end of 1915. This was an increase of 60,000 square miles from the 224,521 square miles freed by the end of 1915.

THE STRIKE CALLED OFF

Washington, September 3.—The threat of a general railroad strike which has been hanging like a pall over the country for nearly a month was lifted tonight.

Three hours after the Senate had passed without amendment the Adamson eight-hour day bill, passed by the House yesterday, the heads of the great railroad employees' brotherhoods telegraphed 100,000 code messages to their general chairmen in all parts of the country cancelling the strike order issued a week ago to take effect next Monday morning at 7 o'clock.

The legislative expedient to avert the strike was passed in the Senate by a vote of 43 to 28—almost a strict party vote—last evening, and after many months, Democrats and Republicans had fought desperately to amend the measure by provisions designed to prevent industrial disasters. The future of the Senate, thoroughly aroused, declared Congress was being coerced into enactment of legislation that it did not desire. The bill would return again to plague it in the future.

In both houses the measure was signed within a few minutes after a final vote in the Senate and it was President Wilson's signature. When President Wilson will sign at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning after his return from Shadow Lawn, the heads of the brotherhoods, who were pending their resignation for his announced early in the night that cancellation of the strike would be ordered until the bill had been signed by the President and actually had become law. But later they were changed, their minds and flashed the code messages signaling to the great trainmen of the country to cancel their strike.

The bill that stopped the strike took effect after January 1, 1917, eight hours for the day's pay for men engaged in the operation of railroads, train in interstate commerce, and the electric lines, and that shall relieve per rata pay for miles in excess of eight hours and that their rate of compensation shall not be less than the rate of eight hours for six from six to nine months of the effect of the eight-hour day upon the railroads by a commission to be appointed by the President.

Mr. Corbin, sponsor of the bill, in the Senate were futile, the supreme effort after it having been led by Senator Underwood, who sought to provide that the interstate commerce commission should have jurisdiction of the road wages and hours of service in the future. This amendment was defeated by a vote of 57 to 14.

DENIES ATTACK ON U. S. SHIPS

Berlin, September 3.—The fact which it thinks will be satisfactory.

Washington, Aug. 31.—Germany, in a note received at the state department today, practices disavows any unfriendly intention in the submarine attack on the American steamer Owego several weeks ago and submitted a statement of facts which is expected to close the case. The Owego was fired upon but uninjured.

The German note follows: As established by admiralty staff of the Imperial German navy, a German submarine at 2:40, on evening of August 3, with very clear weather, fired a warning shot at the American steamer Owego. At a distance of 6,000 metres the submarine made the steamer a signal to stop and gave two warning shots. As nothing happened to the steamer whose flag was not recognizable, but which nevertheless continued to proceed on its way, three further warning shots were fired.

"As the steamer neither made an understood signal nor stood by, fire was opened on it. After six shots (all shots) all it hoisted American flag, the forestry and stopped. The distance between the two was 2,000 metres. The submarine signalled 'Send immediately by boat with the papers' to the captain of the steamer answered 'I have no papers on board.' The submarine signalled 'Send immediately by boat with the papers' to the captain of the steamer answered 'I have no papers on board.' The submarine signalled 'Send immediately by boat with the papers' to the captain of the steamer answered 'I have no papers on board.'

"The Imperial Government can give any credence to this excessive excuse since the note of August 18 (the American note) mentions 10 shots fired by the German from which it is undeniable that the firing shots were heard by the captain of the Owego; but that no attention was paid to them.

"Under the circumstances, the Imperial government finds itself under the necessity of emphasizing the fact that while the conduct of the commander of the submarine was in every respect in accordance with the rules of international law, the captain would therefore have been only himself to blame had his conduct brought about unpleasant results."

TUESDAY, SEPT. 5.

WHERE WE STAND

In the primary election last Tuesday we voted for Robert A. Cooper. Our vote was conscientiously cast. We believed that the election of Mr. Cooper was for the best interest of South Carolina and we still believe that the election of Mr. Cooper would have been more beneficial to the State than the election of Mr. Manning or Mr. Bleas.

In our opinion Mr. Manning is politically the candidate of an element in South Carolina who believe they have an inherent right to rule.

In our opinion Mr. Bleas is politically the candidate of those who widely differ with the supporters of Mr. Manning.

Our friend, Mr. Cooper, was a candidate of a large conservative element whose views are quite different from either those of Mr. Manning or Mr. Bleas.

The result of the first primary has eliminated the conservative vote and left two extremes in the field for the second primary. This being the case it is necessary for the Cooperites to choose between the two elements mentioned above.

In casting our ballot in the second primary we will again be governed by our conscience. We will vote for Manning because we conscientiously believe his election will be to the best interests of both Carolina.

The public record of both Mr. Manning and Mr. Bleas are well known to the voters of South Carolina and consequently every voter should have no trouble in arriving at a conclusion as to whom he will vote for in the second primary.

We have no criticism to make as to either of the candidates and we trust the next Governor of South Carolina will be elected on his own merits and not the demerits of his opponent.

It is the sovereign right of every man to cast his ballot for the man of his choice and it is our desire that the voters of this State enjoy this right on September 12th.

WHAT IS COTTON WORTH.

When you go into a dry goods store and ask the price of a piece of cloth you are told what it is worth. The selling price is based on the original cost of the goods plus the freight, over head expenses and the profit desired by the merchant.

When you ask what is cotton worth you are told what the other fellow is willing to give. The farmer raises the cotton but he cannot place a price on it like the man who sells a pair of shoes.

This is the fault of the southern farmer. Not individually but collectively. When the southern farmer begins to raise his own "hog and hominy" instead of buying it in the West the man who is desirous of buying cotton will then go to the farmer and ask the price of cotton instead of the farmer going to the cotton buyer to get the price.

FOR ROAD BUILDING.

United States Engineer Visits Cherokee County.

Gaffney, Sept. 3.—E. O. Hathaway, United States senior highway engineer, has been in Cherokee County for a few days with a view of advising the county authorities as to the most modern of road building. Mr. Hathaway says that the material for top soil roads in this county is so abundant and so good that it is almost criminal not to construct these roads here. He travels in the county have been extensive, and he says that the above conditions will apply to all the territory over which he traveled. It is very likely that Jeffrey's Road of Trade will take some action looking to the immediate construction of the class of road in Cherokee county.

SPARTANBURG AND ALFAFA

Within the present week Spartanburg county is going to hear more of the effect to interest the farmers of this section in the growing of alfalfa. This is the important work out for the week and the interest shown in this matter in the several localities reached a few days ago encourages those who are promoting the campaign to hope for very substantial results.

Charles E. Hughes, president of the Rock Hill Alfalfa Growers' Association, contributes to The State this past week an article on the subject of growing alfalfa. He says it can be grown, and after years of experience believes it should be grown on every farm in this section of the state.

The first question asked by those who are appealed to take up alfalfa is concerning the cost. This Mr. Cherry answers in the following paragraph from his article.

"I often hear people say it costs from $50 to $75 an acre to bring in a field of alfalfa. It certainly never costs more than the cost of growing alfalfa. If you are to be paid for the alfalfa you are to produce, it should cost that much. With good land that has grown hain to a bale of cotton every season, consider the alfalfa with legume crop turned under and moderate fertilization, $20 to $31.50 an acre should cover the entire cost, including limestone for soil, and inoculation. Understand that are cotton farmers in the lower part of the state and the Pee Dee section who frequently spend that much an acre for fertilizers for cotton, neglect the cost of preparation and cultivation. That is a yearly outlay with them, while our expense is for five or six years preparation, fertilization and cultivation and still less per acre to harvest, cure and bale for the market."

"It is not including here for live stock, but cost to me has been, for preparation, $5; fertilizers, seed and inoculation, $12; limestone, $7. Last year we inoculated half of our field, omitted it altogether, and a wonderful thing happened! The alfalfa grew just as well as where I had previously used it. It cost me an ounce per seed cost more than before the European war started, but inoculation costs less."

"So, while in the future I will use five tons of limestone, costing me $4.70 more than the three tons formerly used, the fertilizers will cost less. With 1,000 pounds to the acre of rock phosphate, costing around $4 and the omission of the potash, but including 500 pounds of cottonseed meal, the expense will be only $1.50 an acre with preparation, fertilization, seed and inoculation cared for five or six years. Make it five years. The annual cost, therefore, is only $2.00 a year. If you are to be paid for your alfalfa, the cost is only $6.80 a year, now, alfalfa from start to finish can be handled by machinery. Inoculation requires individual hand labor, but every stage of the five-year period means five times as much preparation and many, many times as much cultivation as alfalfa. Alfalfa is a nitrogen fixation plant. This cannot be said of cotton, unless a legume, winter cover crop is planted. All America wants cheaper nitrogen and longer trunks."

"Alfalfa is a nitrogen fixation plant. Alfalfa gives free nitrates from the air."

A RULE-OR-RUIN POLICY.

In union that suggests a cheer leader, railroad Presidents are charging. "The eight-hour day will increase the cost of living." It is a reckless cry, because it plays into the hands of consciences men who find no excuse too silly for combinations to raise prices unduly.

The new basis does not go fit effect until Jan. 1. No one knows what its effect will be. No credible estimate puts the cost as high as 2 per cent. of railroad revenue; union men say less than 1 per cent. The added cost will be but a fraction of the increase in railroad earnings since 1914; but a fraction of the vast sums saved by the use of bigger engines and longer trunks.

At the highest guess, the new wage basis will cost less per ton-mile than the labor cost of moving freight per ton-mile twenty years ago. Are all railroad managers, like most railroad inventive skill died in their business? Can there be no more economies of operation? If it is distinct for efficiency survives, the new rule may in the end add nothing even to present labor cost. It is only honest dealing to wait for facts.

An unnecessary railroad embargo on perishable goods for a strike that never came, gave food shanks a chance to put prices up. Railroad executives who talk as most of them talk today give extortioners an excuse for keeping prices up, still in anticipation of what may happen. Sore at defeat, they forget that the most unwise of all policies is a policy of rule or ruin.—New York Times.

The Southern Railway has awarded contracts for the construction of a permanent bridge over the Catawba river at Belmont, N. C., on the main line between Charlotte and Salisbury. The bridge will be long enough for double track. Work has already commenced.

The exact date for the opening of the Chester graded schools has not yet been decided but will probably be within the next few days.

HUGHES HECKLED BY NASHVILLE HEARERS

Republican Nominee, Invading South Frequently Interrupted With Questions and Gallery Estorers-Declares for Arbitration.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 4.—In territory which no Republican nominee ever before has visited, Charles E. Hughes tonight faced the hostile and noisy throng in the Auditorium here.

With cheers for Woodrow Wilson ringing again and again in his ears heckled by questioners and halloed often by Democratic sympathizers, the nominee delivered his speech, criticizing the Administration for its policies, declaring for the protective tariff, and, in a reference which the audience took to apply to the enactment of the Adamson bill, asserting that he stood firmly for the arbitration of all industrial disputes.

"I believe there is no grievance with respect to labor," Mr. Hughes said, "that cannot be settled by a fair and candid examination of the facts. I believe in protecting American industry."

"And the man who can do it is Woodrow Wilson," shouted a man from the balcony. "A wave of hand-clapping greeted the nominee."

Mr. Hughes then assailed the Administration for its policy toward Mexico. He outlined its attitude toward Huerta.

"You would have recognized that assassin, wouldn't you," shouted a man from the audience.

"New I didn't say that," Mr. Hughes started to reply. The rest of his answer was lost in the tumult which followed.

"What would you have done?" shouted another man as the noise subsided.

"I would have protected American rights," the nominee shouted loudly. The audience rose and applauded.

He stood for two things: First, for the principle of fair, impartial, thorough, candid arbitration; and second for legislation on facts according to necessities of the case. And I am convinced that the matter to either in the executive department, by Congress or by any power on earth before the facts are known and in the absence of the facts."

The audience which had interrupted the earlier portion of his speech to cheer for Woodrow Wilson, heard the nominee's declaration in silence and at its conclusion applauded him as enthusiastically as it had heckled him before.

The nominee's address tonight ended his political activities of the day. He entered Nashville this morning to find a program different from the one he thought he would face in that it provided for a review of the Tennessee National Guard and an address at the Labor Day celebration here. The first he declined on the ground that he had no right to review Federalized State troops. The proposal that he attend the Labor Day celebration was dismissed when he was advised that labor leaders had invited to attend and that his speech would be restricted to a non-political topic.

Mr. Hughes left tonight for Lexington, Ky., where he will speak tomorrow.

LANCASTER AUTO PARTY HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

Occupants of Lancaster Automobile Thrown Out.

Lancaster, Sept. 3.—Yesterday afternoon while on their way home in the Tabernacle section of the county, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Rowell and two of their children narrowly escaped death in the wreck of their automobile which turned turtle several miles from town as the chauffeur, it is said, made too sudden a turn as he attempted to go to the left at the forks of the Tabernacle road. The car turned completely overpinning the party underneath, but upon the quick arrival of rescuers who pulled them out of their imprisonment it was found that only Mrs. Rowell was badly hurt, and that the others were practically without a bruise. Mrs. Rowell's right arm was broken, and badly mangled, while she also sustained a number of minor injuries. It is well nigh inconceivable it is said, that any of the party could have escaped serious hurt if not death in the wreck of the car which turned completely over on them. The car was not badly damaged.

Philadelphia, Sept. 2.—Orders for the newly designed ten-cent pieces are being received daily at the mint here but the coins will not be placed in circulation before September 15 or 20. Adam M. Joyce, the superintendent, said today that ten million of the new dimes will be turned out within the next four months.

Superintendent Joyce also announced that within the next two weeks work would begin on the new 25-cent piece which the maker of the new design half dollars will not be started until the early part of October.

The newly designed quarter on one side has the full figure of a woman coming through a gate in a wall. The reverse side shows an eagle in flight.

The fifty-cent piece bears a full length figure of the Goddess of Liberty holding olive branches, while the reverse design is that of the spread eagle standing on a rock.

The assessed value of the taxable property in the recently organized Turkey Creek drainage district is $65,100, and this is the amount of bond to be issued to defray the expense of the contemplated dredging work. To pay the interest on the bonds at 6 per cent will require a levy of 60 mills, or 6 per cent, and of course, if the bonds can be placed at less than 6 per cent the levy will be smaller in proportion.

Following an illness of several weeks, Mrs. M. B. Allmon died at the home of Mr. Simrill Matthews in Ebenezer Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. Allmon, who was about 63 years of age, was a native of York county and had lived in the Ebenezer section nearly her life. The candidacy of John Duncan can be described as a very brilliant one. He is a crank, but DesChamps is a very able man and a very brilliant one. He had sense enough to know that he had no possibility of being elected Governor. He does not need notoriety for the sake of his literature in South Carolina. Why does DesChamps in John Wylie's Mill, Duncan claims that DesChamps was only legging for Manning, but as John is a curious kind of a crank, we do not know how far to take him.—Yorkville Enquirer.

LONELY, SHE FOLLOWS HUSBAND 20,000 MILES

New York, Sept. 4.—How a lonely wife, determined to follow her husband in New York, journeyed 20,000 miles with her three-year-old son, was told yesterday when Mrs. Aaron Kaufman reached this city from Chikoma, Russia. The two had been traveling since June. Many hardships were met on their trip across Siberia and Manchuria.

Sitting in a small room of the Hebrew Sheltering and Immigrant Aid Society, No. 229 East Broadway, the tired mother and sleepy babe were only waiting for a chance to rest. But they forgot that death when the husband and father appeared.

Kaufman left his family Dec. 11, 1915, two hours after receiving orders to go for military duty. He was a pianist and took no interest in the war. So he fled from Chikoma with ten other men opposed to fighting. They were driven by the army or bribed guards and, after reaching Manchuria, got to the coast. In May Kaufman reached New York.

Anxiety about his family so affected him that he was unable to work. New acquaintances here brought his plight to the notice of Dr. Stephen S. Wise and aid was extended. He was able to keep in favoring contact with the Hebrew Sheltering Society.

Yesterday he called there, melancholy and almost hopeless of ever seeing his family again. Supt. Alfred Conover declared he would do all he could to help him and to become a new man when he entered the room where his wife and child were sitting, so great was his surprise and joy.

The two went to No. 392 Vermont Street, Brooklyn, where they will live for a time, taking three year old Joseph with them. It was Joseph, according to the mother, who brought her safely through so many dangers. On several occasions officials tried to take the little money she had or to maltreat her. But always little Joseph would look up and say, "I'm going to see my daddy," and the would-be plunderers would shamefacedly sink away.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SOW CELERY SEED

Now is the time to sow celery seed. The transplanting of the young plants should be done in the month of August. The seed may be sown in a cold frame, or in any well prepared seed bed. The north side of the sowing bed, or the one which will be partially shaded, is an excellent location for the seed bed. After the seed has been thoroughly sown, the soil should be lightly raked, and the seed sown in rows six inches apart, and covered with fine soil and watered. The rows should be spaced in the fourth light, and then sprinkled lightly; in order to firm the soil about the seed. It will be necessary to water the seed every other day, during dry weather to prevent the soil from drying out. The seed bed may be shaded by means of burlap tacked over the frame, or by a lattice screen. As soon as the young plants have come up, remove the screen in order to admit the sunlight. Care should be taken that the plants be protected from the sun from eleven o'clock in the morning until five o'clock in the afternoon. After the plants have formed the fourth leaf, no protection is necessary. When the plants are as soon as they have formed the fourth leaf, and allow them to stand one inch apart in the row. Fertilize between the rows in order to keep the plants growing vigorously. A

LEST WE FORGET

To plant a crop in well prepared seed bed and then give it intelligent cultivation is like building a nice house and keeping it in repair but without protection from the elements. Should fire destroy it then it would be a total loss. So it is with our crops. Diseases and insect pests may attack them and then the crop is a loss instead of profit. We sent out warnings in the fall and the winter urging every one to destroy the winter hibernating insects. Have you done this carefully? Look again and see if there are any dirty leaves, or insects, or eggs on the banks of the fern. Are there still any waste fields or neglected orchards near the fields planted in corn? Do you see any dirt on the ground? Take your hats off to you and say, "Thank you, we enjoyed your hospitality very much."

Did you destroy all the pokeweed? Look again and be sure. What have you done about the violets around the tenant houses on the farm? Are you substituting other ornamental plants or do you intend to spray them? You are busy with your crops and I would not want to assure any one that those violets will be sprayed. When autumn becomes large enough for the plants to touch each other and dry weather sets in it is too late and you will have a cotton and a fight on your hands. The best fight is your own game or may be that of your neighbors; talk to them about it.

The planting date for corn is important in order to reduce bud-worm injury. Ask for bulletin 16 of the S. Experiment Station; it is short and can be read in a few minutes.

Those stony, stumpy, weedy fields and terraces on the farm are the winter homes of the pest. Destroy the bugs. From these places they come to the grass and grain and when these are harvested the bugs march to the corn fields. Such waste places do not merely look bad on the farm but they should remain until they are made so clean that they shelter the destructive cases on the number of insects that amount of damage depends in most cases on the number of insects that passed through the winter successfully. Let us look at it from the point of view of the farmer. It is not true that he will not tolerate such places on the farm if he can help it.

BUD WORM OF CORN IS A SERIOUS PEST

Larva of 12 Spotted Cucumber Beetle Like Much Bottom Land Corn.

Clemson College.—The bud worm of corn is a serious pest to be feared in South Carolina. It is the larva or grub of our common twelve spotted cucumber beetle. This grub is found in great numbers at the present time feeding upon small grain in the fields, fruit brooms about the orchard, or on almost any of the winter hibernating plants found growing in low moist lands, commonly known as bottom lands. The eggs are laid by the parent beetle from about the first of March to the middle of April. Corn planted on low lands during the egg laying period is very often seriously damaged and sometimes completely destroyed by this insect. After the corn has reached a height of eight to ten inches no serious injury occurs.

Remedial Measures.

Avoid planting bottom land infested with bud worms until about two-thirds of the grubs have reached the quiescent period. The planting dates of the sections of the field should be carefully marked out and are followed by many of our farmers. They are as follows:

For lower South Carolina, plant on high ground.

For upper South Carolina or the Piedmont region, plant two weeks later.

By carefully observing the planting dates a stand of corn may be secured which the grubs of the first generation cannot reach until after the second generation comes, the corn is too large to be seriously injured.

W. A. THOMAS, Assistant Entomologist, Clemson College.

SWEET POTATO DISEASES

Some Timely Points on the Sweet Potato Diseases Which Should Be Kept in Mind at Bedding Time.

Clemson College.—As the time approaches for bedding sweet potatoes the way in which some of the more serious diseases which can be spread about get into the field and spread should be kept in mind.

Black rot is a potato disease which is probably the most common of the sweet potato diseases lives over winter on the potato tubers and attacks the purplish material leading to their hairy coat, and they trail it over your butter, meat and milk and they fall into the coffee. Of course you put out the milk and coffee and get some more, but what do you think of it as remedy? How many had bathed in the milk before it came to the table and when you see it is not looking good, you take it right as it goes. Every time you hit one square so as to mark it next year. Potatoes that are not good if you look upon it as an arithmetic problem, but do you suppose the whole U. S. army could await all that kind of food about one good field ill kept dry?

Piles can not chew solid food but they dissolve it with their saliva and then take it. Now imagine several flies sitting on the jelly on your plate, or on the sugar, spilling on it and licking it. With your hand you pick up the flies away, run your knife or spoon under the jelly, sugar or whatever it may be and pass to the mouth.

Look after the manure and the privy closets, which are the most important breeding grounds, and reduce the number of flies at the privy.

A. F. CONRAD, Entomologist, Clemson College.

HIGHLIGHTS OF WILSON'S ADDRESS

"No nation can any longer remain neutral as against any world disturbance of the peace of the world."

"The nations of the world must unite in joint guarantees that whatever is done to disturb the whole world's life must first be tested in the court of the whole world's opinion before it is attempted."

"The future, the immediate future, will bring us squarely face to face with many great and exacting problems which will search us through and through whether we be able and ready to play the part in the world that we mean to play, it will not bring us into their presence, slowly, gently, with ceremonial introduction but suddenly and at once the moment the war in Europe is over."

"The nation that violates (America's) essential rights must expect to be checked and called to account by direct challenge and resistance."

"I neither seek the favor nor fear the displeasure of that small alien element amongst us which puts loyalty to any foreign power before loyalty to the United States."

"Some of the leaders of the (Mexican) revolution may often have been mistaken and violent and selfish, but the revolution itself was inevitable and is right."

"So long as the power of recognition rests with the government of the United States it will refuse to extend the hand of welcome to any one who obtains power in a sister republic by treachery and violence."

"The future 'is not a future to be afraid of. It is rather a future to stimulate and excite us to the display of the best powers that are in us.'"

"The Republican party is just the party that can meet in the new conditions of a new age. It does not know the way and it does not wish new conditions."

"We have in four years come very near to carrying out the platform of the Progressive party as well as our own; for we also are progressive."

"A lull in the domestic field and in the wide field of the commerce of the world, American business and life and industry have been set free to move as they never moved before."

"The Republican party was put out of power because of failure, because of moral failure, because it had served special interests and not the country at large."

"I do not doubt that the people of the United States will wish the Democratic party to continue in control of the government. They are not in the habit of rejecting those who have actually served them for those who are making doubtful and conjectural promises of service."
