Col. Jones Delighted.

Col. Jones last night expressed himself as delighted at the manner in which the people of the state have received his suggestion that Wade Hampton should be elected to the United States senate. He stated that he had received many letters from over the state and had heard a great many leading men express themselves, and in every instance the suggestion had been received favorably. Regardless of former party alignments the people had shown an eagerness to do honor to General Hampton. He had not heard from Gen. Hampton directly, but had heard indirectly that if the people so willed the old war horse would go back to harness.—The State, toh in start.

This shows how a man can fool himself. The men who have written letters to Col. Jones and expressed themselves in his hearing are simply the men who are the most favorably inclined toward his suggestion. If the papers of the state furnish any indication of general sentiment, he has very little to delight him in the line of his suggestion. Nearly all of them would rejoice to see Gen. Hampton vindicated, but few that we have seen think that sending him back to the senate is to be seriously considered. Few men have the requisite vitality between their 85th and 91st years to make active and alert United States senators. To prove that Gen. Hampton is an exception, it is recalled that a few months ago he rode horseback in a "racesion". The people also remember that on many public occasions, when he had been invited and expected to attend, it was announced that owing to the infirmities of age, the old hero was unable to be present.

The proposition, coming from Col. Jones and at the time it did, carries less force with it than if it had been made by some one who had never been mentioned in connection with the "racesion". In the first place, there has never been anything to indicate that Col. Jones stood any chance of election. Then he had already announced that for business reasons he could not afford to accept the position. He did not think of Hampton until he had declared himself out of the race, then he stepped back into the ring and suggested that the other candidates all withdraw and give Wade Hampton a unanimous nomination. The other candidates do not think therefore that he made any sacrifice, and his suggestion, at the best, could have no better effect than to subject them to the little embarrassment which he had no right to thrust upon them. It also drags Gen. Hampton into a position that is more likely to bring him mortification than pleasure.

The new ladies' three-quarters length coat is, of course, fashionable and no doubt comfortable, but it is a plumb sight.

There is one mystery about dispensary shortages. The state and county authorities generally differ about the amount of it, or while the one claims that there is a shortage the other claims that there is none. It generally happens too that while each is sure that his own figures are correct, he is unable to show wherein those of the other side are wrong. We believe there is no exception to the rule that the state contends for the larger amount and the county the smaller.

Complaint is made that, when the Hook and Ladder company was called out Saturday night, the ladders were all or nearly all loaned out and could not be found till much time had been lost and the fire had gotten beyond control. It is claimed that the fire could have been extinguished with but little damage had the ladders been in their place. We do not know who has authority to loan out the ladders, but we know that they ought to be ready for use any minute. Whoever is responsible, we have no doubt that he will hereafter see that damage shall not result from such a cause, and that the insurance companies shall have no excuse for raising rates.

At the latest report, Miss Eloff stood the kidnaped missionary, was still in the hands of the rascals, and but there is hope of her release.

Chickens and Eggs.
A few days ago the News and Herald contained a note that eggs were 20 cents a dozen and the chickens almost priced themselves. Several times since we have been told that we ought not to have written that paragraph because it caused the country people to be excited in their prices on these articles. As a matter of fact the statement given was a fact—and a serious one to buyers. As a result of it a party in the county who has been hauling country produce weekly to Columbia gave Winnsboro a trial and sold fresh eggs for his entire stock of chickens and eggs, and that with more net profit than he would have sold at in Columbia. The prices on these things, however, are near a maximum, and a word by way of suggestion to farmers who have such things to sell. Don't make the mistake of holding your poultry till too near Xmas, for the demand for these things decreases at that time on account of the abundance of fresh meats. Your three fourths grown chickens to-day will bring better price than they will the 20th of December, and you avoid the risk of holding them till that time. Winnsboro as a market for all kinds of country produce is increasing and parties having anything of the kind to sell should by all means come this way. [Unless they get to Chester.—THE LANTERN.]

The President's Dog.
A little incident which somebody about the White House witnessed the other day is significant both as an illustration of certain traits in the character of President Roosevelt and as an example for his admirers. There has been an impression among certain of his critics that he believed "the strenuous life" to consist chiefly in hunting and killing animals; but though a mighty hunter, he is not merely a Nimrod, as the following occurrence shows:

It was a rainy, dreary day, soon after Mr. Roosevelt's return to Washington, and after a busy morning the president and his secretary started out for a walk. Just outside the door lay a homeless friendless dog, as close to the wall as he could get, his body curled into the smallest possible bunch to avoid the rain and possible observation. As the two men emerged from the door he looked up apprehensively to see if a kick or a stern "Be off with you, now!" would compel him to beat a rapid retreat. But nothing of the sort occurred. Mr. Roosevelt's expressive face took on a pitying and kindly look, and bending down, he stroked the spotted, sad and pulled him gently by the ears of the latter, and offered to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head for the alleged kidnaping of Edward A. Cahaly, Jr., is withdrawn.

Chief Donahue did not accept the proposition but made counter offer to waive the reward himself, saying nobody else could secure it. The chief says Crowe is tired of being hunted and is willing to take chances of a trial if the reward is withdrawn. His salary is less than 500 miles from Omaha and is not with his relatives.

Edward A. Cahaly, Sr., was asked if the reward for Crowe would be withdrawn. In reply he said: "Yes; we will do anything to secure Crowe. I still believe Crowe was one of the abductors of my son, but if he surrenders he shall have a fair trial, and if he gives himself up under the circumstances named the reward will be withdrawn at once. I have not heard from Crowe directly or indirectly myself, but Chief Donahue has had the matter in hand and I will have him act in any manner that will secure the presence of Crowe."

Liquor in Elections.
Effort Press and Standard: Allow me space in your valuable columns to make a few comments upon our last election. Money was deposited with our dispenser very properly with the dispenser throughout our county for the purpose of furnishing whiskey free to the constituents of both Cos. Lever and Brantley. What I and a great many more would like to know is: Did those gentlemen either directly or indirectly make these deposits, or was it done with their consent? If so, then neither of them is worthy of the high honor conferred. Neither of them would represent the sober voters of the 7th district. Hence the seat should be contested and declared vacant. Seemingly they would not command the respect of their fellow countrymen.

I trust that our legislators-elect will take the matter under consideration and devise some bill (if there be none already) whereby in the future drunken sots will be deprived of their right of suffrage. This is twice in one year, if I mistake not, where resort has been made to this means to draw a man's popularity in the dram cup.

W. Williams, September 26th, 1901.

Pat Crowe Will Surrender.
OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 12.—Chief of Police Donahue has received from Patrick Crowe, through a friend, a letter, offering to surrender himself and stand trial in the courts if the reward of $50,000 hanging over his head for the alleged kidnaping of Edward A. Cahaly, Jr., is withdrawn.

Chief Donahue did not accept the proposition but made counter offer to waive the reward himself, saying nobody else could secure it. The chief says Crowe is tired of being hunted and is willing to take chances of a trial if the reward is withdrawn. His salary is less than 500 miles from Omaha and is not with his relatives.

There have been quiet a number of cases of diphtheria in town recently. Little Rachel, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Brown Wylie, has been very sick with it, and the children of Mr. W. D. Rev. J. B. Bozeman, the popular pastor of the Yorkville Baptist church, has received a call to the Cherokee Baptist church of Gaffney, S. C. Mr. Bozeman preached at that church two weeks ago, and the people were so well pleased that the call is the result. We trust Mr. Bozeman will decide to remain in Yorkville, though the call to Gaffney is a flattering one.

Yorkville Enquirer.
In explaining the necessity for a free ferry at Howell's Wednesday, Mr. W. S. Wilkerson said that there was such a heavy load of lumber and another at Cherokee. Thirty rafts away, and no place for them to stow a safe crossing. "Not long ago," he said, "some people over in Cherokee county desired to make an early Monday morning start for Chester, in a buggy, and as to they sent their buggy round by Lockhart and back up the river to the other side, requiring the lady to travel thirty miles to get a hundred dollars at morning the travelers crossed the river, a katteau, got into the buggy and continued their trip."

Lincolnton special, October 8, to the Charlotte Observer: The Carolina and North-Western railroad has just begun grading its new road which is to begin at Hardin, and come up the river by the High Shoals Manufacturing company. Long Shoals, Lincoln Mills, Labo ratory, and Daniel Manufacturing company. This new part of the road will be of untold benefit to these mills and of great profit to the road, and the scenery will be some of the finest in the state. On one side will be the beautiful little South Fork river, with a waterfall every three or four miles, while on the other will rise moss covered peaks and forests, equal in beauty to any scenery or any of the mountain ranges. Although the peaks are on high hills, they are picturesque and beautiful. For these mills will substitute, for the task of hauling yarns from one to six miles in the stiff mud, most of the way axle deep, a simple truck from the platform to the car. This will insure the patronage of this entire belt of mills, which will be very profitable, and when the road is connected with the part now being built from Johnson City, Tenn., it will bring coal direct from the coal fields to the factory doors.

The Jewel I Covet.
(Published by Request.)
Your heart is a jewel I covet, As loyal, tender and true; Without nought the treasure, my darling, Mine long since has been given to thee.
Heath my sad heart in thy yearnings, Hide deep the fain hopes, and thy love, I have worshipped this beautiful gem With love which has strengthened with years.

I remember the day it dawned on me; It came like a bird that flew, The swift tender glances of your beautiful eye.
And my heart was no longer mine— The feeling that came with the knowledge That I loved thee was mingled with pain.
For between us stood grimly a barrier Far stronger than cable or chain.
The hopes that I have cherished so fondly, Are rubb'd of their fragrance and glow,
As the star of truth and gladness is show'd in midnight's deep gloom.
Yet a whispered voice comes to me saying, "To whom a spirit on high,
When the turmoil of life is a fever, Thou wilt meet in the sweet by and by."
—Mrs. M. J. PARKER.

A Fiendish Attack.
An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came through his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until the tried Electric Bitters which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at Woods Drug Co.

Bryan Corbett Expires.
As I stated in an early issue of The Commuter, I do not intend to do injustice to anyone and shall gladly correct any mistake made. In the last number reference was made to a letter which, according to the Chicago Tribune and other papers, was addressed to President Harper by a prospective lady student intending to meet her at the depot. The Tribune editor is responsible for the statement that the letter was not addressed to President Harper but to Professor Parker, and that the university had no part in giving out the story. It is also reported that some one was sent to the depot to meet the young lady. The blame for giving out the letter, therefore, does not fall upon Dr. Harger. It is gratifying to know that the president was not guilty of so rude and excusable an act as that charged to his account.—The Commuter.

Burr Clover.
Burr clover comes up from the seed in the fall and grows all winter, and grows very rapidly in very early spring. It dies root and top about May 1, shedding its seed in burrs off on the ground to come up again in the fall. It makes splendid grazing in winter and early spring when there is little else green. People plow up land after it seeds in spring and plant in regular winter crops, and the clover comes again in fall just the same. It does fine with Bermuda grass. The Bermuda turf holds stack up in winter and spring while grazing the clover. When the clover dies it spring it fertilizes the Bermuda grass which does well all summer and fall. Cattle cannot graze burr clover close enough to keep it from seeding. When you get it you have it forever. It is hard to get a start of the seed after it has been sown and it would probably take several bushels to spread an acre thickly the first year. Some of the seed also goes over all the second year to come up. So be patient with it and it will thicken from year to year.—Exchange
