CLEMONS TRUSTEES' STATEMENT.

Concerning Cows, Red Bugs and the Eviction of Farmers from the Institute.

At a called meeting of the trustees of Clemson college last week, the following statement was issued in answer to recent criticisms.

The board, before leaving to attend their hearing and considering all the information obtainable from known experts in regard to the individual nature and value of the nine cows purchased by a committee appointed by the board of trustees from Mr. J. A. Shanklin on a certain recent date, and after having thoroughly inspected these nine cows, puts its report on record as approving the said purchase by this committee and also approves of any and all advice which may have been given by Col. Simpson to the said committee in regard to the facts and circumstances which should surround the expenditure of money obtained from the general government under the Adams act for the purchase of the cattle and other material for the equipment of the experiment station, and also thoroughly approves of his efforts, as a member of this board, protecting the college's interests in matters of obtaining valid titles to the said stock, for the following reason: That there were certain legal limitations placed upon the purchase of this money by congress, which conditions the board of trustees had occasion to investigate, and which were thoroughly understood by the chairman of the board and for the further reason that a legal title was absolutely necessary to protect the college in its interests.

The board further desires to say that it has furthered and is furthering the process of cleanliness and sanitary regulation in the barracks of the college, we find upon the investigation of the president of the college, has at the beginning, or prior to the beginning of each scholastic year, caused to be made a thorough fumigation and disinfection of the said barracks, and at the end of each session, the same process has been made for the extermination of whatever pests, unpleasant odors, or unhealthy conditions that may be found in the said barracks.

The board regrets the fact that even after the most diligent efforts on the part of the parties in charge of the cleaning and disinfecting of the barracks, that there were left some bugs. The board also regrets that the extreme humidity of the weather during the past season while the farmers' institute was in session, and before produced unpleasant odors in the barracks.

The board desires to say that on the occasion of the board of trustees of the summer school, during the session of 1905, the steward or bursar of our commissary department found it impossible to get a sufficient number of cows of sufficient quality for the market and found himself necessitated to resort to the cold storage establishment of Armour & Company, and that possibly, and probably on more than one occasion, the cows, stale or spoiled fowls served upon the table by an oversight or accident, much to our mortification and regret.

It is the policy of the board of trustees that all charitable house owners will sympathize with us. We regret to say that the water used for drinking purposes while the institute was in progress during the summer term, had a peculiar taste for the first day or two of the institute. We are pleased, however, to state that an analysis by our competent chemist, made immediately after the institute, established the fact that there was nothing in the water that could cause sickness. Although the water was drawn through the pipes for 24 hours or three before the institute opened, this did not prove sufficient to remove the taste of the pipe. We deem it not improper to say in this connection that this water comes from a strong spring that has always been protected from all causes of impure contamination.

While upon this subject we are pleased to say that any flowers or beautiful ornamentation that may have been around the professors' houses were brought and paid for by the private funds of these professors. The board feels that the diligence has been exerted in the efforts of this committee to keep the college barracks up to the proper standard of cleanliness and as it is said that eternal vigilance is the price of freedom from these enemies, that continued vigilance will be maintained. No per diem or remuneration of any kind has at any time or under any circumstances been received by any member of the board of trustees in the exercise of their functions as trustees.

While the board and the faculty have at all times desired that the officers of the state within the college, either as a farmer, school teacher, a summer school, or as private individuals should be properly welcomed and treated as equals, and that mingling with all parties according to the conduct of this college, we unfortunately say that at any time the faculty or the trustees have been

CLEMONS'S COW TRADE.

Evil of Having too Much Money.

That cow trade for Clemson College is a subject of much discussion. It is a fact they have so much money that they do not know how to spend it. The Greenview correspondent of the Greenville News has this to say on the subject.

Mr. J. C. Stripling, one of the committee appointed to purchase some cattle for the experimental station at Clemson college, has given out the following statement in regard to the Shanklin cow trade that has been so widely advertised.

"I think I have a right to answer any newspaper article criticizing public matters, where I was personally mentioned in its connection, without permission from Clemson's trustees or asking their aid in the matter.

"The college has a right to know all the facts of the cow trade, and it is the duty of the trustees to see that the college is not defrauded. The following is the statement of the committee as given to the press.

"In talking to a trustee of Clemson College with reference to purchase of nine cows from Mr. Shanklin for $1,800, also which Mr. C. Stripling has had to do with, in the newspapers the following was learned:

"The college was led to know as the 'Adams funds' from Congress with reference to the cow trade, which was raised. This fund was to be used for a fixed date, or it must be returned to the United States treasury. A committee was appointed to buy cattle. Mr. Stripling, not a trustee, but a member of the board, was at many cattle, among the number Mr. Shanklin's—a fine group of thorough-breds.

"The main proposition upon which the committee seems to rely, is that Mr. Shanklin's agent, Mr. Simpson, had bought the stock, and that he was in possession, to replenish those that had been consumed in the use of the college. It is stated that during the years in which the cows were raised, Mr. Shanklin owned the stock used in farming.

"There was no direct testimony that he was her agent, nor are there any papers from which it could be legally presumed that he was acting as such, when he made the purchases from time to time.

Kell Estate in Supreme Court.

The following is from 'The State's report of supreme court decisions: The estate of Susan C. Kell, deceased, appellant, vs. William A. Gardner, respondent—Evidence. Nonsuit. Possession of chattels. Agency. Presumption.

This was an action to recover the possession of certain chattels—wheels and farm machinery—alleged to be the property of plaintiff's intestate.

On the close of the plaintiff's evidence the circuit court (Special Judge Frank B. Gary), on the motion of the defendant, ordered a nonsuit. The plaintiff appealed.

There was no testimony that the mules described in the complaint were the property of the animals owned by Mrs. Susan P. Kell, nor that the machinery or farming implements were at any time her property.

It cannot be presumed that the property described in the complaint was on the premises when B. E. Kell (whose title the defendant claims) first took possession thereof, was the same, because the first plaintiff's presumption would be against the laws of nature and the usual course of events; and in the second place, the testimony shows that other animals, etc., were purchased by him, during the time he was in possession, to replenish those that had been consumed in the use of the college.

It is stated that during the years in which the cows were raised, Mr. Shanklin owned the stock used in farming. The main proposition upon which the committee seems to rely, is that Mr. Shanklin's agent, Mr. Simpson, had bought the stock, and that he was in possession, to replenish those that had been consumed in the use of the college.

There was no direct testimony that he was her agent, nor are there any papers from which it could be legally presumed that he was acting as such, when he made the purchases from time to time.

But even if there was a presumption of agency in the first instance, in taking charge of her property, it could not be presumed that he acted as her agent in buying of property for this would be to presume upon a presumption. See 22, Enc. Law, 1238, citing 37 No. App. 42.

Judgment below affirmed. Opinion by Mr. Justice Gary. Mr. Halcott P. Green, Messrs. Henry & McClure for appellant; Mr. J. H. Arthur, Messrs. Glenn & McFarland, Messrs. Caldwell & Gaskin for respondent.

WM. J. BRYAN.

Editor Wallace Has Found "Man" — Enthusiastic after Hearing the "Great Commoner."

Seeing Bryan, one is reminded of what Marc Anthony said of Brutus: "Nature might stand up, And say 'All the world, this is a man.'"

The personality of Bryan impresses one at once. If one had never seen him before he would know at a glance that he is an ordinary man, and this would be confirmed when he speaks, presenting it, it is his manner. He does not arouse the terror and the shouting of many lesser men. He does not try. He evidently does not care for noise. In his own way of expressing it, it is his lighting that Bryan is one man—not great alone in intellect, but especially great in character.

One of the Newberry party said: "All the time he was speaking I knew he was a good man. He is the kind of man that one could trust just anywhere, in any circumstances. It is just as natural for him to do right as it is to breathe. He impresses everybody that way."

Bryan's personality pervades a crowd. He unconsciously everybody else. All the time he is saying something, he gets up to speak. His face inspires respect and confidence. He does not orate; he simply talks, and while he talks he says something that other men do not say. He is not a speaker, but he is a thoughtful attitude when he gets up to speak. His face inspires respect and confidence. He does not orate; he simply talks, and while he talks he says something that other men do not say.

Bryan is a great man—the greatest living American, without a doubt. He spoke for an hour and a half in Columbia on Wednesday to a crowd of two thousand people, most of them standing; and if anybody got tired he did not show it. An ex-governor of South Carolina remarked, as the speaker was making his argument on the tariff, "He talks like a school teacher, but he is a school teacher."

He is a wonderful man—wonderful in his personal character, in his breadth and depth of knowledge and in the strength of his intellect, and most wonderful of all, in his absolute simplicity.

After seeing and hearing the "Great Commoner," we feel like saying: "Mr. Bryan, it doesn't make a bit of difference about your 'views' on government ownership of railroads, or any thing else. We are willing to trust you with the whole business. Just take the government and run it in your way please, and we will be perfectly satisfied."—Newberry Observer.

"To Cure a Felon" says Sam Kendall, of Phillipsburg, Kan., "I just cover it over with Buckle's Arnica Salve and the Salve will do the rest." American Tourists and Their Ways. English people, as a rule, try to enter a hotel, drawing room or other public place as quietly as possible and endeavor not to interfere with the other occupants of the party more than they can help. A room of French or Germans will never dream of stopping to consider whether their plering voices are deafening their neighbors, while Americans have a particular fondness for making their correspondence aloud in public without the slightest regard to other people who are reading or conversing in the same room. It is no doubt part of the same lack of breeding which leads them to hold conversations at the top of their very penetrating voices not only in public places, galleries, but also in country churches, without paying any attention to the fact that a solemn service may be going on within a few yards of them.—London Modern Society.

Across the Sea to Maryland.

Miss Martha Lacy has departed upon her journey to the Philippines, where she will meet her betrothed at Manila. George K. Harrison, and he married. Miss Lacy makes the journey alone, and will go directly to Seattle, Wash., where she will board Captain Shawmut, on which acquaintances have been secured for her long sea voyage.

Miss Lacy is the elder of the two beautiful daughters of former Judge and Mrs. Lyman Lacy, and was reared in Havana. The youngest daughter is now Mrs. C. P. King, of Havana. New York Herald.

Senator Tillman was asked not to deliver his special speech on the race problem at the Columbia, Mo., Chautauque. He spoke extemporaneously on the railroad rate question instead. Because he said his speech was a "burnt" effort he refused to accept the $300 offered him by the Chautauque management.—Weekly Flashlight, Eureka Springs, Ark.

When a farmer puts a price on his cotton and hauls it back home when he fails to get it, he shows that he is independent man, that he has notions of his own about his own affairs, and the manhood to execute them. Cherokee has such men, and more of them would benefit every farmer in the county. Cherokee News.

Bank Clerk Went Wrong.

Robert C. Brockington, a young man, about 20 years of age, who had been a trusted collection clerk of the State Bank, of Columbia for two years, was sent to the express office last Wednesday morning with $2,000 in currency and $500 in silver, with some small drafts for collection. He did not return, and Saturday morning he was arrested at a disreputable place in Jacksonville, Fla. Most of the money was recovered. "He seemed very penitent and ashamed of himself and returned with an officer without requisition. The officers of the bank will not prosecute him, and wish to help him to start again an honest life. It is doubtful whether the bonding company will agree to be so lenient. The young man did not stop in Columbia, but came on to his widowed mother in Winnsboro. His downfall seems to have been due to bad company and pool and poker.

Clemson Student Killed by Fall.

Clemson College, Sept. 22.—Joe Reeves, junior class, fell from second story window of barracks last night and was found in dying condition by A. T. Beaver this morning. He never regained consciousness. No one knows how the accident occurred. The theory is that in his sleep he tried to descend a fire escape recently placed. He had talked about the ladder and had said it was too short.—Special to The State.

Automobile Craze.

Investigation in Chicago has shown that not a few men with yearly incomes of $1,000 or less are possessors of automobiles of the most expensive type. Men whose homes are mortgaged have purchased automobiles, putting down all their small savings as a starter on the payment. A woman on the verge of destitution received a legacy of $800 and instead of paying off her numerous debts at once turned the entire sum toward buying a touring car. The craze has become so widespread that the feeling among those whose chief desire in life is to "make a showing" has grown still with that class it is content with nothing until they own a costly automobile.—Spartanburg Journal.

Mr. Rob Sterling, of Woodward, returned home yesterday after spending a few days in the city.

Rye for Pasture and Sowing.

Rye is not half appreciated by the American farmer. It is very hardy, will grow on the poorest land, and if sown early enough makes good fall pasture. It is a good early spring sowing crop. It makes a fair quality of hay if cut in bloom or before, and it always sells at good prices and makes the best of bedding for cattle and horses. It is also an excellent green manure crop for turning under in early spring. While it does not add nitrogen to the clovers do, it makes a great deal of humus, and thus increases the fertility of the soil. It will grow in any section that can grow any of the small grains. Where corn or potatoes or cow peas are grown after corn, rye may be sown in the corn at the time of "hogging up" or may be sown on the stubble after the corn is cut and be plowed under in the spring for one of the crops mentioned.—W. J. Spillman.

Closing at Six.

The clothing and shoe merchants of this city, with practical unanimity, have decided to close their places or business at 6 o'clock in the afternoon the year round with 9 o'clock closing on Saturday night. This is a humane and enlightened movement that one cannot too highly commend. Of course there will be a man here and there who puts the earnings of an extra dollar above the welfare and comfort of his employees. But generally speaking good business sense and the man who is considerate of the rights of those who serve him is the man who always has the largest amount of business. It is a prime essential of success. Atlanta Journal.

The laxative effect of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets is so agreeable and so natural you can hardly realize that it is produced by a medicine. These tablets also cure indigestion. For sale by all druggists.

Lady customer: "In a china shop—do you break these sets?"
"No, madam; the servant usually does that."

The Reign of Empire Gowns and Coats.

The vital question whether Empire gowns shall be or shall not be, is at last decided so far as New York is concerned. All high-class establishments have declared themselves upon the affirmative side, and are now busily preparing gowns out with the elevated waist-line that is a distinctive feature of the Empire dress. It has taken some time to persuade the American woman to adopt the new fashions, but from the present indications it will be seen in all dressy gowns throughout the Winter, and promises to become general toward Spring. Rejected at first as too radical, the picturesque but daring unconventional lines of the Empire gown have been gradually modified until Josephine Bonaparte's costume of the present day is the product, the distinctive dress of her period. The belt-line of the Empire gown is considerably higher than nature indicates; the skirt fuller and more graceful than the one from which it takes its name, and the long lines that fall from the softly draped bust are decidedly more delicate.

Pain from a Burn Promptly Relieved by Chamberlain's Pain Balm.

The child of Michael Strauss, of Verona, Conn., was recently in great pain from a burn on the hand, and as the inflammation drew out the inflammation, Mr. Strauss came to Mr. James N. Nichols, a local merchant for something to relieve the pain. Mr. Nichols says: "I advised him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, and the first application lessened the inflammation and gave immediate relief. I have used this liniment myself and recommend it very often for cuts, burns, strains and lame back, and other ailments. It is for sale by all druggists. For sale by all druggists."

The Art of Pleasing.

Somebody said it is better to be beautiful than to be good. But it is certainly better to be good than to be ugly. It is better to be charming. A woman cannot charm because she cannot charm because she wants to. A man is not agreeable because he sets out to be. Quite the reverse. In effort to fail. The proper effect, most the spontaneous and unmeditated. It must be radiated like light and love. Books there that pretend to tell how it is done. They do so quite as competently as grasshoppers teach entomology. The ability to charm, to be agreeable, to entertain perfectly, and to be perfectly entertaining, is an art apprehensible only through influence, especially personal that always prolonged. The mere technique is so volatile that it must be inhaled. Like the Mayfair Intonation, little by little, it must be absorbed.

Shots at the King's English.

Collier's Weekly has a cartoon of Mr. Roosevelt taking a few shots at the King's English. It is based upon the remarks of the London Saturday Review that "What Mr. Roosevelt means is to scrap the English language." This use of "scrap" signifies that the President wishes to consign English to the junk heap. The cartoon shows Mr. Roosevelt in doctoral robes and motoboard with a revolver in each hand shooting the King's English. Above the lexicon are the shades of whom?—Chaucer, Shakespeare, and Dr. Johnson! The author is Kemble, one of our best linguists, but an article should know something more than that, his own art to do sort of thing. Chaucer was about the worst speller of English that our literature contains. The vestige of he could not write a single page without varying the orthography of one or more words. Shakespeare could not even write his own name consistently, having several ways of signing it. And Dr. Johnson—the dear old Doctor—is responsible for many of the idiotic forms in our dictionaries that are now being tried to forget. It was he that added a ridiculous flourish "k" to music. The article could not have made a worse selection if he had pawed over the files of the British Museum.—The State.

The Calhoun Mills.

Anderson, Sept. 16.—The contract for the construction of the Calhoun Mills at Calhoun Falls has been let to the J. F. Gallivan Construction Company. Moving to Town to Educate Children.

Some good men in this county are preparing to move to town to educate their children. Every man should act according to his own judgment, but the observation of the writer is that the time has come when it is better to be a farmer than to be a school teacher. We are informed that—in one school district in this county three substantial citizens will move to town to educate their children. They will spend by going away, they can have a good school advantage at home and save the great danger that comes from breaking up homes and putting the children under new influences. By going away they are much more likely to lose control of their children, to say nothing of the temptations that the latter meet more than they would at home.

Boys need about twenty-one years of discipline when they get on the farm. It was a few years ago quite the custom to move to town or high schools for better educational advantages, and then there was reason for it. At that time town schools had been denuded of the public school money that could be brought up to the demands of men who wanted to give their children good school advantages, but now it is different. Any well-to-do country community can, by voting a local tax, have as good teachers for five or six months in the year as there are in the towns.

The Power of Our Navy.

Figures seem essential to convey to the non-professional mind an adequate conception of the dependent power for aggression or for resistance concentrated in twelve battle ships, four armored cruisers, four protected cruisers, four monitors, and six torpedo boats and six destroyers, besides submarines and auxiliary craft. It must here suffice to say that the twelve battle ships alone which were purchased by the United States Navy represented a combined displacement of nearly 151,000 tons; the armored cruisers, almost 55,000 tons; the monitors and protected cruisers, more than 25,000 tons; and the whole fighting fleet, including the torpedo boats and submarines, and excluding auxiliaries, an aggregate displacement of upward of 214,000 tons. Relatively powerless and insignificant as the torpedo boats may have looked, the truth is that if one of them, the Wilkes, could get near enough to such a training fort as the battle ship West Virginia, and spit a torpedo out of her tube in the right direction, 80,000,000 would go up in air and 800 men would be food for fishes. We may add, in order to refute some groundless accusations, that the cost of the naval arsenal, including the cost of the naval yards, is about $100,000,000. It is a small sum, especially when compared with the cost of the Army. The Army is about $1,000,000,000. The Navy is about $100,000,000. It is a small sum, especially when compared with the cost of the Army. The Army is about $1,000,000,000. The Navy is about $100,000,000.

Victory Over State Dispensary.

The result of Tuesday's election for governor was clearly a victory for the opposition to the State dispensary. By the consent of the legislature it was made the paramount issue in the campaign. The personality of the two gubernatorial candidates, Ansel and James B. McPherson, was of secondary importance. It was conceded that the character of each was above reproach, and that either would make a good governor. It was therefore the platform of the two men that the voters looked for guidance in determining how they should cast their ballots. They saw that Manning stood for the State dispensary and Ansel stood against it. By an overwhelming majority they voted for Ansel. Does that mean that the sentiment of the people is unmistakably against the continuance of the State dispensary? It certainly looks that way to us.—Lancaster News.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

Because it's For One Thing Only, and Chester is Learning to Appreciate This.
Nothing can be good for everything. Doing one thing well brings success. Don's Kidney Pills do one thing only. They cure sick kidneys. They cure backache. Every kidney that James Vincent will stand living on Factory Hill, LaGrange, S. C., says: "Don's Kidney Pills did my back and kidneys a lot of good. I have suffered for several years with backache and nobody knows what it is but those who have had it. I thought I was doomed to pass the rest of my life with it, but I am thankful to say that since I used Don's Kidney Pills I have not had the backache once. Before I used them I had it all the time, night and day, and the constant dull aching across the small of my back was so bad I could not get about at all, and it kept me awake all night. Thinking I did give me relief, I tried everything I knew, but nothing helped me until I got Don's Kidney Pills at the Falmouth Drug Co. before. They did the work and cured me. Since taking them my health has been better than during the past fifteen years."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Don's—and take no other.
