The News and Herald thinks Lord Cornwallis would not know Winston if he were to return now, since his headquarters, the old M&C ter-hots, were burned Tuesday morning. Our contemporary seems to believe that the old fellow might have been a little mised even before the fire.

While the resolutions of the Land-owners' Union were not necessary to convince any one that the members of that organization had no connection or sympathy with the Night Rider movement, yet their own sense of propriety and their wholesome effect upon any cowardly miscreants who might be inclined to perpetrate crimes under the cover of darkness are the main objects of the money spent for liquor goes away never to return. The third that remains is not money made but is only taken out of one pocket and put in another. You take out two dollars and throw them away, then take out the third and put it in the other pocket. It is that making a dollar?

True, there are many persons who liquor consisting directly but in the long run, the cost of the liquor to the community at large is the cost, pro-rata, to the individuals. William is a drinker and his brothers William is sober, thrifty and economical. He says whiskey will not trouble you if you let it alone. He spends nothing for drink and the revenue from the distillery saves him ten dollars a year in taxes.

James is William's equal in every respect except that he can't resist the temptation to drink whenever intoxicants are in reach. He spends all his substance in riotous living. The distillery saves him from the tax of a tax on him, for he has nothing to tax. It costs him all the money he can get his hands on. It costs his wife all the time she has to spend for the shirt. It cost her the grief of seeing her children in poverty and rags and growing up in ignorance, and the prospect of her son following in the footsteps of their father. It costs his children what they are earning cooking, and comforts and opportunities to which they are strangers. But James gets into serious trouble. William says Jim's way for getting into trouble and may get out the best way he can. But Jim's way is a noble woman, struggling to keep the wolf from the door. She is to be pitied for her own sake and that of her children.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams then drove to Edgemont, where they boarded the Seaboard train for Wilmington, N. C. on a holiday tour. Of the bride and groom the correspondent of the Charlotte Observer says: The bride, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Nunnery, and grand-daughter of the late Mr. J. M. Nunnery, Mexican war fame, and of Mr. Joseph Nunnery, belongs to one of the best families in South Carolina. Gifted with a winning personality and possessed of the charm of manner which attracts and holds, she is one of the most accomplished and popular young women in the State. Her groom, James Adams, is one of the last of the Davis family, of Greenville, S. C., and of the Edgemont Adams, and is a young man of ability and promise. He is principal of the Fort Lawn graded school, at which town he and his bride will reside on their return from their present tour.

On account of the serious illness of Mr. J. K. Bosh, of Rock Hill, the marriage of that gentleman to Miss Nellie Thornwell, of this city, which event was to have taken place today, has been postponed until a later date. The latest report from Mr. Bosh's wife is to the effect that there is a little, if any, improvement in his condition.

Hawking Machines. Catarrh Sufferers are Nothing But Hawking - Spitting - Blowing Machines, Says an Authority.

It is possible that in these days when cleanliness and hygiene are being preached in the churches, schools and at public gatherings, that the fact of people who come to suffer from catarrh, when there is an absolute certainty remedy, is a pity. Hyonal (pronounced High-Sone) is a pleasant, medicated and antiseptic. It is in and it will cure catarrh, will stop foul breath, watery eyes and breathe in the nose, in a few days. It is a sure cure for all cases of catarrh; tried numerous remedies which failed; used one and one-half bottles of Hyonal and am entirely cured. H. L. Lindsay, 407 East First St., Mitchell, S. C.

The people who hurt the Republic with the workmen and with their business men. On the other hand the general fact that Mr. Bryan's prediction that the election would be a close one or delay the return of prosperity will give Mr. Clark more votes than the Democrats.

The New York Herald thinks that Taft will carry New York, but admits that the most sanguine Republicans do not expect much of a majority. The Herald is inclined to believe that Chandler, the Democratic candidate, will beat Hughes for governor.

OPERA HOUSE

"Human Heart"

If there is any virtue in newspaper commendation, and if the endorsement of the public at large for the past ten years is to be taken as a criterion, then "Human Heart" which will be presented here on Thursday, Oct. 15th, is certainly entitled to take rank as the "Great American Drama." During the many years that "Human Heart" has been presented in this country the praise accorded it by newspaper critics and the general public has been universal. There has been no dissenting voice; the verdict of approval has been unanimous. Even rival managers have graciously acknowledged that "Human Heart" is a "mighty good play." Logically the same company which presented the play here last season will again appear this time.

"Uncle Jack Jenkins" pleased a good sized audience at the Open House Wednesday night.
