Mental or Geographical?

Frequently Winthrop students hit us with the question, "Where do the students from colleges whom you visit come from?" Like many states we visited, "don't know." Where they came from, only God knows. While touring only South Carolina prep schools, we were immediately confronted by another question, "What is the accent like?" Accents are graphically or is it mental? On the High Seas

1 expected it to be exciting to be abroad and to set foot on the New World, where freedom and enjoying liberty was wonderful. But, I was wrong. I found there absolutely nothing really exciting. The only thing I enjoyed was the sea. It was the beat of the waves that I liked. It was the sound of the seagulls and the noise of the surf. I miss the sea very much. I long to go back to the sea and to feel the wind in my hair and the sun on my face.

A Visit to the Winthrop Museum

One of the most interesting sights of Winthrop University is the Peopls National Bank building, which contains a rich assortment of old papers, documents and manuscripts, interesting biological specimens, brilliant plumed birds and reliques and relics of all nations.

On entering, one is invited to a small chamber, the like of which you can anywhere find in the United States, and in which the treasures of the national bank are displayed.

The museum is open to the public, and the visitor is free to peruse and examine the treasures contained within.
