THE CURSE OF CALVARY, obliged to uphold the law. It only renders the man who made Sent to Kershaw to investigate be lynching of John T. Morrison, felicitor J K. Henry has mede a public attention. It is a candid, an intelligent, and withal a damning public document. Solicitor Henry shows a condition of affairs which shocked him beyond expression.

Be-fore its echoes died out a deed had fore its echoes died out a deed had been dône which was unspeakably brutal, and hopelessly criminal. It is the fatuous defence that digraced rumanity before Calvary that Solicitor Henry finds is being put forward once more by people at Kershaw: "His blood be upon us and our children!" Who are "war" and who are "our children!" Is not Kershaw and we children!" Is not Kershaw and Wester of South Marchan and Careful South Marchan and Kershaw part and parcel of South Carolina and South Carolina civili-Carolina and South Carolina civili-zation? Is the law that has been outraged and trampled on Kershaw law or South Carolina law? Shall the murderers of the murderer John citizens of an entire commonwealth? As little as has been said about t, the county road force has done great amount of work during the ummer that is of incalculable valit involved the building of bridges aver two creeks. This required the hauling of earth from the hills and building embarkments across the bottom, the tedious work of hauling rock in large blocks and the companies of the bridges over two creeks. This reamply protect the setting and the streams and would support the heaviest locomotive. The fills that make the approaches to the bridges Eutawville Lynching, which make the approaches to the oringes are supposed to be above high are surfaced with crushed any provocation. It looks as if rock. But there is a third stream justice is looking up a little, on the ôld road; is it bridged? Yes

The town of Conway, w and no. It has been engineered out of the road. It and one of the other streems pass under the same free embarkments, the abutments and the bridges are all up now, and the remainder of the work off the tion laid out will now be com paratively rapid. The heavy, ledi ous work is done. Now the questions arise, is it orthit? Who will be benefited?

As intimated above, the value is beyond calculation. We canno estimate the value of an investmen that will return benefit beyon computation for indefinite time People who are acquainted with the old road know that about four miles of it is a succession of hills, some of them rocky and rough the year round, others a bed of red clay that becomes almost impassable in winbecomes almost impassable in win-ter, not to mention the streams. The hills have been eliminated; so have the clay and rocks. The streams flow on in their channels, while travelers can pass high above. leasant Grove to town more eas: ly than he could have pulled the empty wagon at times before.

Parmers in the south eastern por tion of the county, when coming to town, have been in the habit of loading their wagons for the four miles of hills and miry clay between Pleasant Grove and the railroad crossing at Mr. M. E. White's. Now they can disregard this section of road and put on all they can pull to the point where they strike it.

Or they can load two wagons to the full capacity of their teams and when they reach the six-mile post ease to man and beast.

But who will receive the benefit? The Walkers and Whites and Millers? Yes, and all their neighbors and tenants. But add all the peo along the main road and all along tributary roads that ramify the south-eastern quarter of Ches-ter county. The people within the area bounded by the Southern and tar county. The pengle withis the prook field crop. Messrs, Jay area bounded by the Southern and large and J. L.
