THE LANTERN

TWO DOLLARS A YEAR, CASH

FRIDAY, NOV. 8, 1907

Even wild nature more than when we were a boy - Southern Lumberman

But they always did more than they were worth

About all the gratification the democracy got out of Tuesday's election was in the decision of Tom L. Johnson mayor of Cleveland, Ohio

So slow, and so uneven now. It is late, but a stand is still reasonably sure if the voting is properly done if harvested in on bare land they would stand a poor chance

Next year will be a good time for the democratic party to stand square upon a wide field

The indications are that there will be nothing to lose by fighting principle and nothing to gain by flurrying with compromise

President Roosevelt was represented as displeased with the national constitution on account of the prohibition provision

No doubt this was a groundless supposition. At any rate, he is now said to have assured a man from that state who had a preference with him that is the feature of the constitution with which he is most pleased

Don't forget your road to market and other roads you have to travel

It is time now to be looking forward to the time when the grain will be selected to mechanize

By starting in time almost any section of the country can reap this award

They will all be in time to reap the benefit that they agree to furnish and perhaps much more for profit, with out missing the time a little here and there will be a great blessing to your neighborhood

Some of the farmers who think wheat will not pay, and who are troubled every spring with empty barns and hay racks should try sowing some wheat to cut while the grain is in the dough state, to be used for feed straw and grain together

Horses and mules are not partial to ripe wheat straw, but it is said that they are very fond of it when cut green

Certainly there can be no cleaner hay and a small area will make a large quantity

We want some farmer who is a devotee of hay to try this plan of sowing the wheat

The city council still has the hog ordinance pending

As we believe we have intimated before, we think the hog law needs but, little tinkering with

Of course there are some who object to hog pens in the thickly settled portions of town where they might cause unwelcome scenes to trespass upon

At the atmosphere of the town, and the flies, but we believe this is already provided against

Perhaps it would be well to prohibit the keeping of hogs in floored pens, or in alleys and rear-facing yards of which a hog pen is ever guilty the limit is reached

The sewerage, concentrated in the presence of this under the floor, is the hog's living quarters

Then it is very easy to keep a hog on a floor without liberal bedding in close quarters, and that is the worst of it

We are very much interested, and have been trying to interest our readers in, diversified industry, and especially stock raising

It is a fact that the city council discourage this line of endeavor when it can be prosecuted without detriment to health and happiness

Accepting the disclaimer of the municipality that result from eating the flesh of swine

And this suggests the fact, as we have no doubt is, that a hog and swine people have been eating pork for every one who has been

But to get back on the main line, there are hundreds of people within the corporate limits of the town who can raise a good hog or two every year without feeling the expense, and hog raising is a good thing

It is not worth the bother, and it is not worth the trouble, and it is not worth the expense

For Resulting Arrest.
On last Tuesday afternoon Tom Carter went to the home of Mrs. Smith Darby in the Eureka Mill village and frightened her by entering the house after she had forbidden him coming in. She ran down the railroad track to where her husband was working and told of the occurrence, carrying a pistol with her. Darby and the latter at this time turned to flee. Darby discharged his pistol attempting to stop the fugitive. Mr. W. T. Hedgpath, constable at the Eureka, hearing the shooting came up and joined in the chase after Carter. Carter fled to a house and entered. The house was full of negroes and when Darby and Hedgpath arrived they were shown Carter by the negroes. Hedgpath attempted to arrest Carter but he resisted. Carter's mother joined in the struggle, getting a painful flesh wound in the hand by a pistol, which was, in some way, discharged in the struggle. After the woman's hand was dressed, she and Tom were taken in jail on the charge of resisting an officer. On Wednesday the grand jury returned a true bill against them on the above charge and they'll be tried at this term of court.
