PRISON AND DEATH FOR READING NEWS

Russian Paper, Dropped in Austria
Costs 6 Lives and 9 Years in All Countries—Vienna Publication
Exposes Cruelty of Military
Courts That Fought Austria

Washington, Nov. 4.—The cruelty of Austrian courts-martial against which the people of Austria-Hungary rebelled, facing a general amnesty proclamation by Emperor Charles, is revealed in an article translated from the Post of Munich, Bavaria, on Aug. 19 last, given to the press today by the Committee on Public Information.

This article, which the Munich paper copied from the Vienna Arbeiterzeitung, (the Vienna Workingman's Gazette) which is printing a series of "terrible" papers, discloses that six persons were confined to death and thirty-three others, serving long terms, received prison sentences according to their years for merely reading a forbidden paper.

The "forbidden" paper contained proclamations of the former Czar, Nicholas, and General Rennenkampf, which had been dropped by a Russian airplane over the Austrian territory, and which she had picked up from the floor of a hospital where she had been wounded.

The girl was condemned to death on account of this copy. The article copied the proclamation into his notebook and read it aloud one day to one Hadick, an employe at a division of the Directorate of the Land Army Company.

It was, however, found that the girl was likewise condemned to death.

"The employe made three copies and passed them to two of his acquaintances. He was condemned to death for this, and some of his friends who had merely read the proclamation and had immediately buried the copies were condemned to five years in the penitentiary. This third friend, Parat by name, had copied the copies for his friends, who immediately made two copies. Parat was condemned to death for leaving his copy. Parat, an employe of an iron company, was also held, and his papers, which were red, were destroyed on this occasion. He was condemned to three years in the penitentiary.

"Bregagny gave one copy to a woman employe named Paola, the other to his friend Tomka, a confecturer. Bregagny's papers were destroyed, Tomka read the papers through, and, fearing harm, destroyed them. He was condemned to three years in the penitentiary.

"The woman read the first proclamation aloud to her landlady, named Tibka, and Tibka, who had not understood the purpose of the proclamation she became excited at the insult to the Czecha contained in it, and struck the head of Paola, who was lying on the floor. Tibka was killed in a candle flame after a short time. On the ground that she had unintentionally contributed to the indignation against these proclamations she was not condemned. Although she had read the proclamation, Tibka was sentenced to prison for long terms. The article concluded: "And so the copy which the Austrian courts-martial were so careful to confine in the penitentiary were brought about."

NIGHT RAIDS IN BOATS ON GERMANY TRENCHES

Belgians Also Use Portable Bridges in Attacks on the Flooded District

Washington.—Night trench raiding on the part of Belgian troops in the flooded district is not an infrequent occurrence. A report from the Belgian press states that the Belgians have been making frequent attacks on the German trenches.

"In order to see what was in the German trenches," says the dispatch, "the Belgians have been using portable bridges in attacks on the flooded district."

Major Sharp has been wounded five times and bears a mark in each limb. It is expected that a short while later British instructors in gas fighting and machine guns will come here.

Sharp will be instructor in the use of swords, bayonets and physical training; Capt. H. Johnson is an expert in sharp-shooting and sniping and in the use of trench mortars. The officers have been here from the trenches because of their special fitness for the work.

GERMAN MAN POWER GIVES OUT

Washington, Nov. 6.—Cable reports reaching here from Switzerland, say Germany has reached the crisis, so far as her man power, is concerned. For three years, according to these dispatches, Germany has lost an average of 1,200,000 men annually, and this number will be at least equal in 1918. It is contended that to continue the war on the same scale for another year, Germany must have at her command a reserve of at least two million men, whereas she virtually has no reserves of any kind left.

GOVERNMENT OF RUSSIA FALLS

Premier Kerensky Forced to Leave Capital—Radicals Seize Reins of Power—Will Dissolve. Make Separate Peace With Germany.

Petrograd is again in turmoil.
The provisional government has been thrown out of power by the extreme radical leaders by Nikolai Lugnini; Premier Kerensky has fled the capital; several of the ministers have been placed under arrest and the Winter Palace, the seat of the government, has been bombarded by the guns of the cruiser Aurora and of the St. Peter and St. Paul Forts, recessed and forced to capitulate to the revolutionists.

A congress of the workers' and soldiers' delegates of all Russia has convened in Petrograd and will discuss the questions of organization of power, peace and war and the formation of a constituent assembly. A delegation has been named by the congress to confer with other revolutionary and democratic organizations with a view to making peace negotiations "for the purpose of taking steps to stop the bloodshed."
As yet the details of the congress which followed the assumption of power by the radical element are vague, but it is known that from its meetings in the Neva the cruiser Aurora fired shrapnel and solid shot against the Winter Palace for four hours with the guns of the great fortress and machine guns stationed in front of the palace keeping in accord with the salvoes from the cruiser. Delegates from the workplace at various points inside the city. It is possible that the casualties among the military were slight. Reports as to the whereabouts of Kerensky are various. Some of them say that he has sought safety in Moscow. Others assert that he has gone to the front in an endeavor to obtain the backing of the troops to forestall a debacle of his government. Considerable attention has been already to have announced their readiness wholeheartedly to support the government on condition that to compromise with the revolutionists is made, but on the other hand it is asserted that delegates from the Black and Baltic Sea fleets have declared themselves in favor of the radicals.

There has been no cessation in the retreat of the Italian Army. The Venetian plains toward the new line of defense on which it is intended to stand and face the invading Germans. Considerable fighting has taken place in the hills of Vis-torio.

The Berlin war office says that on the middle Tagliamento River Italian troops who were still standing out against the invaders, were captured. A general and 17,000 more Italian troops are reported to have been captured, bringing the total prisoners since the retreat from the Bresna began to more than 350,000
according to Berlin.

Along the line in France and Belgium the British did not raiding operations by the French and British forces are taking place.
Additional ground has been gained by the British troops against the Turks in Palestine and along the Tigris River.

Making Mistakes.

The average fair-minded man admits that he makes mistakes at times, but there always is the extenuating "but" when we seek to excuse our failures, he believes, even if circumstances that the mistakes that others make are bigger mistakes than his. Deep down in our hearts the roots of self-complacency strike, so deep, in fact, that with respect to it is useless to try and pull them out. At those rare times, when we see ourselves as others see us, when we begin to understand that we are at fault to a larger degree than the other man, we may make an honest effort to overcome the disposition to yield to self-satisfaction, but unless we work hard and patiently and perseveringly we will find ourselves ever falling back into the old habit. It is so easy to criticize something that another person does that fails to meet our approval, and so entirely natural to think that we would never be guilty of a like weakness. We might have made a mistake. We agree, but we would correct the error in time to correct it, and certainly we never would have blundered of the extent of our neighbor. How did we know what we would have done in similar circumstances, however, and why should we assume a position of superiority which our truth we are not entitled to assume. It is enough for us to concern ourselves with our own failures, our own mistakes, our own shortcomings, and to leave to others the rejudgment of their own lives. Granted that there are times when others make mistakes that are far more serious than we make it does not follow that we are immune forever from making such mistakes. If we look out for ourselves, and watch our own actions, and direct our own energies to the best of our ability, we shall be too busy to pay much attention to the weaknesses and mistakes of others.

The inclination to judge other persons by their weak points grows upon them by their good ones grows upon us unless we take hold of it in time and steel it down. Where the average person makes one serious unnecessary mistake he will probably do right in time, but unfortunately in many cases, the mistake of its evil side is emphasized the most. It may be that as a rule we take it for granted that a man is going to do right as far as he is able to do so; that is to say, we try to make ourselves believe in the better side of human nature, and we consider the influence upon the race, and therefore, we look for right to predominate. We do not take into consideration the weakness and inclinations to wrong-doing which are inherent in the human family, and when temptation and sin are added and mistakes, make their appearance they give a deeper impression, and are perhaps unconsciously, emphasized to their limits. That is why, probably, that some of us are so much tempted to form our opinions of others not because of their good points, but because of their bad ones. We do not know anything of the good that such objects of our criticism may have worked, nor do we know the circumstances and conditions which prompted the mistakes they made or the sin they committed. All we know shows on the surface, and without consideration, we take it at its face value and condemn the sinner unheard. There is not such clarity in such a procedure, to be sure, nor is there any realization on our part that we have not been fair. We choose to believe the worst of others because the worst has been brought to our attention, and we forget that the best is also entitled to consideration. We do not realize the stand we take in such matters until we appear before that bar of friendly, omniscient ourselves, and then we discover that those in whom we naturally abhorred our necessities have failed to do so.

We make mistakes of course, and naturally find they are more numerous as they might have been, on the other hand, this fact should not tempt us to excuse them on the plea that other persons' mistakes are greater than ours. It is rather the greater who finds comfort in the thought that there have done worse than he has done, is the brave man who thinks God that he sees his errors in time and is able to correct them. We cannot make progress if we persist in condoning our mistakes because they are not as serious as those that others make, but we can make rapid progress if we seek with all our strength to overcome those weaknesses which have been the cause of our shortcomings.

Life Was a Misery

Mrs. P. M. Jones, of Palmer, Okla., writes: "From the time I entered this world, I looked with dread from one month to the next. I suffered with my back and head-ache, and pain, until life to me was a misery. I would not endure the pain any longer, and I gradually got worse. Nothing seemed to help me, until, one day, I decided to

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

"I took four bottles, Mrs. Jones goes on to say, and was not only greatly relieved, but can truthfully say that I have not a pain. It has now been two years since I took Cardui, and I am still in good health. I would advise any woman or girl to use Cardui who is a sufferer from any female trouble."

If you suffer pain caused from monthly trouble, or if you feel the need of a good strengthening tonic to build up your run-down system, like the advice of Mrs. Jones, Try Cardui. It helped her. We believe it will help you.

CHANDLER SIX
Asking You To PAY More Wouldn't GIVE You More
A THREAT to add two or three hundred dollars to the price of the Chandler wouldn't make the car better. And actually adding to the price wouldn't make it better. The definite Chandler policy, consistently followed throughout the history of the Chandler Company, keeps Chandler value highest and Chandler price lowest. No other car selling for less than $2000 offers you so many distinctively high-grade features of design and construction:
Bosch High-Tension Magneto.
Solid cast-aluminum motor base extending from frame to frame.
Annular ball bearings in transmission, differential and rear wheels.
Silent chain drive for motor shafts.
And the famous Chandler motor, in its fifth year now, refined from time to time in the past but without radical changes, continues as the greatest of all sixes. The Chandler has passed and left behind a long line of other makes of sixes because it does give so much more for so much less.

A Chance for All to Help.

President Wilson's appeal for a wise economy in the use of food by everybody in the country stands with the earnestness that the importance of the subject justifies, and his words demand to be undertaken as well as heeded. The understanding will make the heading easy, for who would deny the appeal with care will see that what is asked is not that we should go hungry—that we should endure suffering or other hardships—but simply that we should use a reasonable discretion in the choice of food instead of following our usual custom of ordering for each day whatever sort of food paraded taste or fancy at the moment demands.
The first thing for us to do is to get clearly in mind the sort of food that we what may be called military or "distinguishable" food, and in addition to the ordinary staples, certain meats and certain grains have the qualities of preservability and transportability to a higher degree than others, and they are, therefore, to be avoided to some degree as articles for hoarding consumption in order that they may be available in greater quantities for sending abroad where they are as much needed as both by our cities and by our soldiers in the field. Enough will be left of other things on which we can live, and live well, and surely it is better for us to complain if it is the variety of our diet is lacking, or very considerably, decreased. The President's other objection is that we waste food of any kind. Such waste is a habit of long standing here, and it has been carried to an extent that was always provocative of more or less indignant comment by foreign critics. Many of these exaggerated views in this direction, but there has been a basis of fact for their charges, and now it is as much a privilege as a duty for us to reform. A conviction that in the past we would have viewed as little better than meanness now wears another aspect, for it will enable us to see those of us who in the military sense, are least efficient to do our part, and a most essential part, in the conduct of the war.

PROBABLY FATAALLY HURT.
Charles Farris Victim of Ford-Motor-Cycle Collision.
Greenwood, Nov. 6.—Charles Farris, aged eighteen, is believed to be fatally injured as the result of a collision yesterday while riding a motorcycle, with a Ford car driven by Mr. Henry Rush. The accident happened in the public road south of Greenwood and appears to have been unavoidable, both parties turning and flying back as they approached until they actually collided. The old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hudson of Columbia was knocked down by a street car Wednesday and the right leg so badly crushed that it had to be amputated just above the knee. The little fellow was not otherwise injured. The accident occurred near the middle of the 1600 block, Main street, the boy crossing from the east side, where his parents reside, to Bruno & Little's store. Mr. Hudson is a country storeman.

Most of the folks who are hauled into the police station on drunkenness charges use lemon extract, Jamaica ginger or some like liquid to satisfy theiraching void in their geographical centers. The man about town and the city police officer in the statements that liquor is extremely scarce in Greenville, now, and is becoming scarcer each day. Truly, the seven-day thirst of the whisky camel seems a "good" business in comparison. The only thing that the toppers have here is a lasting memory of the old days when liquor was a "good" and of the old days when it was a "bad" thing. The law brought only 10 cents—Greenville, N.C.
