

11-20-1917

The Chester News November 20, 1917

W. W. Pegram

Stewart L. Cassels

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/chesternews1917>

Part of the Journalism Studies Commons, and the Social History Commons

Recommended Citation

Pegram, W. W. and Cassels, Stewart L., "The Chester News November 20, 1917" (1917). Chester News 1917. 91.

<https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/chesternews1917/91>

This Newspaper is brought to you for free and open access by the The Chester News at Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. It has been accepted for inclusion in Chester News 1917 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. For more information, please contact digitalcommons@mailbox.winthrop.edu.

NEW DRUG STORE

To Open Soon

Watch this space for announcement of the opening of

WHITE'S PHARMACY

Opposite Postoffice.

Wanted To Buy

Any and all kinds of second-hand furniture and stoves.

Will be located in the Douglas Building on Gadsden street next to A. H. Wherry's garage.

O. K. FURNITURE & STOVE CO.

PHONE 459

VULCANIZING

We are now in position to vulcanize your automobile tires. All work guaranteed to be first class and at reasonable prices.

It is much cheaper to have your automobile tires than it is to buy new ones.

We are located in the Glad-den Building on Valley Street.

CHESTER VULCANIZING WORKS

VALLEY STREET

What Detroit Will Do For You.

Detroit is the city without a rival in the "Flavor of the Cities," the series running in The American Magazine. In the December issue, the writer says:

"If you want to be President of the United States you will find it encouraging to open your campaign here as Mr. Hughes did or deliver one or two 'non partisan' addresses here as Mr. Wilson did—we feel every body here know every in the game what you think of them, as Mr. Roosevelt did. If you are a poor foreigner, unlettered in the language of the land, unskilled in the art of making a living, and over-taken by unemployment, you will find a board of commerce here whose members will make it their business to see that you are 'com'fortable if they cannot get you work, and will show you why and how. It becomes a good American. If you are an advertising man, which seems to be customary nowadays, you will be greeted by many of your own kind who will pay attention to what they say and whether you like it or not and in either case you are after the laugh of your own kind. If you really must have some of the stuff that others, they will take you to a place with a sign that says 'one foot on which they explain to you that Billy Sunday is a great and good man, and why they voted for prohibition in Michigan."

Germans Then Like Germans Now.

The world is suffering as it has never suffered before and we of this day and generation stand aghast at the spectacle. There have been wars and wars but never one of such tremendous compass as the present one. We who have been silent observers of the ruin and devastation, the martyrdom and butchery of the past few years are beginning to view conditions differently now that we have been swept into the whirlpool. We know that the world's pain is growing; that its sufferings are reaching more deeply into our own lives. That its pain agency has entered within the last two weeks into quiet homes close at hand and that at any moment thousands of other loyal Americans whose gallant sons are answering their country's call may be forced to share the anguish of the world. What is it all for, we ask ourselves? Why is it that we have to endure the horrors of a war that is not of our making? Has God forgotten us, we say, that we must bear the sufferings of a world's war? It is the time-honored, everlasting question that forms in every one's heart in time of trouble—has God forgotten us and left us to ourselves? We know that when some other trial comes to us and we realize that we must endure it, the inclination is to cry out against the punishment which we believe God is inflicting upon us. Indeed the majority of people fall entirely to see God's hand in adversity in any other way than as an instrument of punishment, and we cannot at least for the time being conceive of the real motives beneath the trial.

That there is something better, higher, purer in all of God's motives we must acknowledge, or else lose our faith in Him. The material side of life counts for very little with Him, and we use it for our own development, and these things, for which He most cares, those spiritual phases of existence which make us better men and women, are often lost sight of by us in our anxiety to succeed in life. It may be that He saw this and is sending the sorrow and hardships and afflictions of the war upon us, not as punishment for our past offenses, but as a wonderful test of our faith and to lead us back into the narrow, humble way from which we had strayed. There is no doubt any conscientious person's mind that God mourns for His world in pain, that He yearns to be free from its anguish and to take it from its martyrdom, and that He is not yet for us who have not learned the truth He would teach us. It may be that He has chosen this method to deliver us from our false impressions, just as we feel that He has chosen war as the means of delivering the world from the oppression of the mighty power which seeks to stamp its blighting influence indelibly upon the land and sea.

We know in our hearts that the Creator made this wonderful world for the use and enjoyment of all the nations of the earth in free and brotherly intercourse, and that the world domination dreams of any one power are impossible of realization. If such dreams run to madness, if they are strong enough to bring ruin and devastation and to cause the sacrifice of countless lives; if they are cruel enough to sanction unbecomingly and licentiousness; if they are so big and bold as to present a menace to the freedom of the world, we must prove ourselves equal to the task of standing up by aiding in the struggle to crush the power of an evil government, prove our abiding faith in the survival of the better things, our unwavering belief in the justice of God and our firm determination that right, no matter how oppressed among the civilized nations of the earth.

The pain of the world and the suffering of our children, are tests of the soul and of the purity more than of the body. Unless a man is actuated by the highest motives, unless he cares for those things which, while counting for perhaps the least on earth, reach into high Heaven at the end, he is not in position to understand the need for such tests as are exacted at the present time. But having entered into the peril and hardship of the struggle, we have a duty to God and country, he will soon realize the necessity for perpetuating the high ideal essential to our country's existence and accept the test unflinchingly.

The World's Pain.

The world is suffering as it has never suffered before and we of this day and generation stand aghast at the spectacle. There have been wars and wars but never one of such tremendous compass as the present one. We who have been silent observers of the ruin and devastation, the martyrdom and butchery of the past few years are beginning to view conditions differently now that we have been swept into the whirlpool. We know that the world's pain is growing; that its sufferings are reaching more deeply into our own lives. That its pain agency has entered within the last two weeks into quiet homes close at hand and that at any moment thousands of other loyal Americans whose gallant sons are answering their country's call may be forced to share the anguish of the world. What is it all for, we ask ourselves? Why is it that we have to endure the horrors of a war that is not of our making? Has God forgotten us, we say, that we must bear the sufferings of a world's war? It is the time-honored, everlasting question that forms in every one's heart in time of trouble—has God forgotten us and left us to ourselves? We know that when some other trial comes to us and we realize that we must endure it, the inclination is to cry out against the punishment which we believe God is inflicting upon us. Indeed the majority of people fall entirely to see God's hand in adversity in any other way than as an instrument of punishment, and we cannot at least for the time being conceive of the real motives beneath the trial.

That there is something better, higher, purer in all of God's motives we must acknowledge, or else lose our faith in Him. The material side of life counts for very little with Him, and we use it for our own development, and these things, for which He most cares, those spiritual phases of existence which make us better men and women, are often lost sight of by us in our anxiety to succeed in life. It may be that He saw this and is sending the sorrow and hardships and afflictions of the war upon us, not as punishment for our past offenses, but as a wonderful test of our faith and to lead us back into the narrow, humble way from which we had strayed. There is no doubt any conscientious person's mind that God mourns for His world in pain, that He yearns to be free from its anguish and to take it from its martyrdom, and that He is not yet for us who have not learned the truth He would teach us. It may be that He has chosen this method to deliver us from our false impressions, just as we feel that He has chosen war as the means of delivering the world from the oppression of the mighty power which seeks to stamp its blighting influence indelibly upon the land and sea.

We know in our hearts that the Creator made this wonderful world for the use and enjoyment of all the nations of the earth in free and brotherly intercourse, and that the world domination dreams of any one power are impossible of realization. If such dreams run to madness, if they are strong enough to bring ruin and devastation and to cause the sacrifice of countless lives; if they are cruel enough to sanction unbecomingly and licentiousness; if they are so big and bold as to present a menace to the freedom of the world, we must prove ourselves equal to the task of standing up by aiding in the struggle to crush the power of an evil government, prove our abiding faith in the survival of the better things, our unwavering belief in the justice of God and our firm determination that right, no matter how oppressed among the civilized nations of the earth.

The pain of the world and the suffering of our children, are tests of the soul and of the purity more than of the body. Unless a man is actuated by the highest motives, unless he cares for those things which, while counting for perhaps the least on earth, reach into high Heaven at the end, he is not in position to understand the need for such tests as are exacted at the present time. But having entered into the peril and hardship of the struggle, we have a duty to God and country, he will soon realize the necessity for perpetuating the high ideal essential to our country's existence and accept the test unflinchingly.

How and When to Make Suggestions.

Edith K. Lippert, the great dress store owner, has had some interesting things in his article in the December American Magazine. He says:

"There is a funny thing about making a suggestion. Unless it is timed just right, it does not lead to any more sales. It should be made within a few seconds after the customer has made his first purchase. If we take the customer's money, get his change, hand it to him, and then suggest something else, it is likely to be too late. He doesn't want to go through the whole operation of buying and getting change again. Unconsciously he regards buying anything as a closed incident for the time being. Neither is it likely to be about selling him something else before he has finished selecting his goods. If a woman asks for a tooth brush, if we instantly say, 'And will you need tooth powder?' before we even show her the tooth brushes, she is justified in being annoyed. But having satisfactorily provided her with the tooth brush that she sought, we may, before ringing up the sale, tactfully call her attention to a special sale of facial soap. One of our best clerks thinks that this kind of suggestion is most effective when made within eight seconds after the completion of the first sale."

AN ORDINANCE

Be It Ordained by the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Chester, in Council Assembled and by the Authority of the Same, That Section 489, of Code of Ordinances of the City of Chester, relating to fire limits, be and heretofore is amended by inserting after the word "kind" on the fourth line of said section the words "within two hundred fifty feet of the site of any railway passenger station or"

Done and ratified in council this 13th day of November, 1917.

Z. V. DAVIDSON, Mayor.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children. In Use For Over 30 Years Always ready.

New Seaboard Schedule.

The following schedule became effective on Monday, Nov. 12, 1917.

Southbound	No. 21	12:55 P. M.
Southbound	No. 22	12:52 P. M.
Southbound	No. 23	12:13 A. M.
Northbound	No. 24	8:30 P. M.
Northbound	No. 25	8:52 P. M.
Northbound	No. 26	4:22 A. M.

New Headquarters For The Red Cross

The local Red Cross Chapter is indebted to Mr. A. M. Allen for new quarters, and next Tuesday morning the Red Cross Work Room will open in Room 19, on the second floor of the Acme Building.

Although no work is yet available for the Chapter, this is only one of the many departments of Red Cross work, and every interested person can find other useful ways of aiding in the work either in the work room or in their homes.

Delegates from this chapter are in Columbia today attending the Red Cross Convention now in session in that city, and they continue to bring back with them many additional ideas and plans of work.

The Chester Chapter feels that much fine work will be accomplished this fall and winter in Virginia, very comfortable quarters now at the disposal of the Red Cross.

NOTICE

Our new garage is now open, and we are ready to take care of any work that may come. Have a complete line of genuine Ford parts, and an expert Mechanic. When your car needs to be given attention or any adjustment made bring it in and give our man a trial. Prompt, efficient service at all times. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Vestal Motor Co.

Ford Automobiles, Supplies & Accessories

Columbia Street
Chester, South Carolina.

The Big Chester County Colored Fair

CHESTER, S. C.

FOUR DAYS

Nov. 21, 22, 23, 24, 1917

BIGGER and BETTER GREATER & GRANDER

Something doing all the time. Plenty of Music—Lots of fast Races—Live Stock Exhibits—Display of Field Products—Ladies' Department etc.

Watch for the Premium List. Everybody Come

Chester County Colored Fair Ass'n.

J. R. PARROTT, Pres. B. W. WRIGHT, Chmn. Adv. Com.
M. B. WILKS, V-Pres. W. H. PRATT, Gen. Supt.
F. M. BOULWARE, Sec. W. M. JONES, Treas.

EDGEMOOR NOTES.

Edgemoor, Nov. 19.—The Harmony Baptist congregation have called their pastor, Rev. R. T. Dobson, for his entire time, for which he has accepted. It is thought they will sell the present parsonage, including lot, in the near future, and if so they will build a new parsonage near the church. We are glad to have him and family in our midst, for we feel sure it will add much to our neighborhood.

Harold Glass of Virginia is now spending a few days with home-folk at Edgemoor.

Misses Mary Lynn Collins, Mildred

Nunnery and Wilmot Garrison were guests of Nannie and Julia Kilian yesterday.

Our hearts were very much saddened by the death of Mrs. Katie Lytle. She was one of the most faithful in her church and society work. We feel sure that our loss is being gain. We extend our deepest sympathy to her bereaved ones.

NEW SOUTHERN SCHEDULE.

As stated in The News Tuesday the Southern Railway will put trains Nov. 28 and 30 back on the schedule next Sunday, November 11th. Effective Sunday the schedule at Chester will be as follows:

Southbound	No. 27	6:45 P. M.
Southbound	No. 31	8:17 A. M.
Southbound	No. 33	6:38 A. M.
Northbound	No. 28	5:40 P. M.
Northbound	No. 32	6:14 P. M.
Northbound	No. 34	7:43 A. M.

No. Six-Sixty-Six

This is a splendid young company for MARYANN OF CHILES A. SEVER. This set of stone will bring you, and when you are a male, the price set them. If you are on the floor, please call Edward and don't miss it.