THE LANTERN.

HOME OF THE HAMPTONS.

In the Home of the Day Wade Hampton Was a Millionaire But He Died Poor and Honest.

The people of South Carolina love Wade Hampton. Not because of his gallantry in the service of the Confederacy, not because of the way he turned in the dark afternoons of the war to lead them from chaos to a stable form of government. But they love him because in his old age, property gone and children, some of them, dead on the field of battle, he bravely endured unaccounted privations and was more here in this hour of quietude and because of his uncomplaining fortitude than he was when flushed with victory on the field of glory.

Admission prompted the gift of a home to Admiral Dewey when he came back, but love made the people of South Carolina give Wade Hampton a home for his declining years. Though not elected to his seat in the United States senate, Gen. Hampton was still held in honor and in reverence by the people of his state, and he was and is the ideal of the generation passing away.

When his cottage in the suburbs of this city was burned in 1901, and his special library burned when the ruins with no insurance money to provide duplicate copies of the works of his friends, the authors, the people of the state started to suggest a donation. There was a spontaneous movement to provide a home for the old hero.

To trace a characteristic of Gen. Hampton that in his humble home was burning he climbed a ladder, hampered as he was by his oak leg, and fought the flames for hours, and overcome. It was more characteristic of him that his noble nature revolted at the idea of his being the recipient of the people's offerings. But he was assured that love and gratitude prompted the people of South Carolina, and that his state owed him a debt which could not be liquidated with money or with the aid of his friends.

The women who loved the Cause in which he had led, gave cheerfully to him end, and thrust upon him, protesting in the Senate street, was bought and the home was built. On May 28, 1901, his body was laid to rest in the city and he was presented to him, and through his tenure of life was not long, it was all the happier because of the esteem of his state which in this way he was made to know.

From castle to cottage. Such has been the change which time has wrought. Before the war, Wade Hampton lived, resplendent at Millwood. This grand estate four miles east of Columbia was surrounded with acres of garden and park where the magnolia and the bay sweetened the springtime and the fir and the cedar made the winter bright. This palace was destroyed during the war. The Woodlands, the home of the Hamptons for generations, also went down in ruins then. The third of the homesteads in chronological order was in the hands of the city of Anasley Hall—and it was spared from the general ruin because of its use as an army hospital. This latter home was once the estate of a merchant in this state, and was sold to be used as a female college.

When Millwood and The Woodlands had been destroyed and Anasley Hall had passed into other hands, Gen. Hampton made his home at the Southern Cross, a modest cottage of three rooms, to which he moved in 1892 until it assumed the shape of a Maltese cross. It was here that he was spending a quiet old age upon the old "fire-eater" house, a fire-fighter—had this home, too, gone.

Before the war Wade Hampton had been a landed estate, or in the vulgar idiom of this day, he was a millionaire. His tenure of office as governor and as United States senator brought him no income other than the salary which was withheld from him because no acknowledgment was to be that lavish hospitality for which the Old South was noted. There were no perquisites and no emoluments, and he went in to horse, he remained honest and he came out poorer than when he first stood before the bar of the senate to take the oath of office. He did not die in poverty. But it was provision for him not to be able to receive his friends with that hospitality which war and reconstruction have made a tradition.

Gen. Hampton was one of the few southern commanders of distinction who had not received a West Point education. Pluck and daring and brilliance and strategy rather than skill have made him stand in the hearts of his people. His sense of fighting stock. His grandeur, the End Wade Hampton was a colonel in the Revolutionary army, a major in the War of 1812 and he died in this city.

The second Wade Hampton was a man who had and gathered some of the best of his state's talent and was named at New Orleans. Those who

Responsibility for the wreck at Denton, Columbia, November 19, 1906. Two of the injured were killed, and one of the injured was killed in the collision near Denton.

But it is not the wreck at Denton, S. C. that is the subject of this article. It is the wreck at Denton, S. C. that is the subject of this article. It is the wreck at Denton, S. C. that is the subject of this article.

At a meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held at the residence of Captain Wirz, keeper of the Andersonville prison, who was hanged by the federal authorities, in Washington, on the charge of cruelty to Federal prisoners.

It has been proved that Capt. Wirz was a humane man; that he treated the prisoners kindly, giving all he could for them; that the large death rate among the prisoners—smaller really than that of Confederate soldiers in northern prisons—was undeniably due to the fact that the Federal government had made medicines, contraband of war, and the Confederates could not get medicines for themselves or their prisoners.

The truth of history should be vindicated, and the Georgia women are entitled to the credit of having taken to vindicate the name of a worthy son of Switzerland, who while practicing medicine in Louisiana joined the Confederate army and fought bravely in defense of the south. If General Wirz the predecessor of Capt. Wirz at Andersonville, had not died he would doubt have been the fate sent to Capt. Wirz.

The records prove that every effort was made by the Confederate government to get medicines, that President Lincoln was returning to allow medicines to come through the lines for Federal prisoners only they would be used exclusively for them.

It is the duty of every citizen to know the facts of this history. It is the duty of every citizen to know the facts of this history. It is the duty of every citizen to know the facts of this history.

The most famous strike breakers in the land are Dr. King's New Life Pills. When they are used, they quickly, settle the trouble, and rid the system of all impurities. Best cure for constipation, headache and dizziness. 50c at the Chester Drug Co. and Standard Pharmacy.

The dead body of Mr. Thos. H. Bidwold was found in a well on the premises of Mr. P. E. Smith, at the corner of Congress and Jefferson streets, about 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The discovery was made by persons who went to the well to get water.

He was a member of the grand jury but had not been present by any means for some time. On the afternoon and was not at home that night but was seen at 9:30 o'clock and seemed to be in good spirits.

He was employed by the Yorkville B. & M. Co., and was quite popular. There is no reason known why he would commit suicide and the suggestion is he went to Smith's yard to work on his way home and as the curbing was low and the ground wet and slippery, he lost his balance and fell into the well.

He was a member of the grand jury but had not been present by any means for some time. On the afternoon and was not at home that night but was seen at 9:30 o'clock and seemed to be in good spirits.

MONUMENT TO WIRZ.

To Build All Steel Coaches. Philadelphia, Nov. 19.—The Pennsylvania Railroad has called for bids for the construction of 2000 all-steel passenger coaches. This will be the first lot of such equipment to be made in accordance with the company's intention to build no more unencumbered by the progress of the New York tunnel, through which the company will not run anything but absolutely fireproof cars.

Bids are to be asked of the American Car and Foundry Company and the Pressed Steel Car Company. One experimental passenger car has already been built by the Pennsylvania, but the new cars will embody many improvements upon this one.

The company's shops at Altoona will also complete now very shortly the all-steel baggage car, which is in course of construction there, as well as a small steel postal car. The first to be constructed by any railroad. This will be delivered about January first.

The Pennsylvania has agreed with the postoffice department to construct a car of 90 feet in length so that in length and suitable for use as either letter or paper cars. The present pay for railroad postal service is based upon a car of 60 feet in length, so that the new cars an extra 30 feet will provide for compensation. The new cars will add greatly to the safety and convenience of railway mail operators.

The motive power department has also just approved designs for an all-steel dining car, and an experimental car of this character will be started at once. The Pullman Company, at the instance of the Pennsylvania Railroad, is at work upon a new non-inflammable sleeping car. Some 300 such cars must be completed and prepared for service by the time the New York terminal is ready for operation.

It is the expectation of the company's motive power officials that the new dining car to be given the berth will be completely fireproof and conform to the latest code of modern engineering science as yet rendered possible.

Byproducts.

The annual value of the byproducts of the packing industry, all of which are manufactured out of what was considered waste materials, during years ago, is approximately $200,000. Cotton seed not very long ago was waste matter, giving considerable trouble to get rid of, but in 1900 the byproducts from cotton seed were valued in this country at more than $12,000,000 which has probably doubled by this time.

Well made bricks are most durable building materials. In the British Museum are bricks from the ruins of Nineveh and Babylon which show no sign of decay or disintegration, although they were neither burned nor baked, but simply left to dry in the sun.

Cough Remedy

The Children's Favorite
Coughs, Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough.
This remedy is famous for its power over all coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. It is so effective that it is used by all the best physicians. It is a household remedy for all coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. It is a household remedy for all coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough.

There is real pleasure in chewing the best tobacco grown where the best tobacco grows—in the famous Piedmont country

CHEW WHAT YOU KNOW ABOUT

Only choice selections of this well matured and thoroughly cured tobacco are used in making SCHNAPPS. That's why SCHNAPPS and other of the Reynolds' brands, as shown by the Internal Revenue statistics for a fiscal year, made the wonderful growth of six and one-quarter million pounds, or a 75 per cent gain of one-third of the entire increased consumption of chewing and smoking tobaccos in the United States.

AND KNOW WHAT YOU ARE CHEWING

SCHNAPPS is like a cup of the Java coffee, sweetened just enough to bring out its natural, stimulating character. SCHNAPPS pleases all classes of chewers; the rich, because they do not find it a mere filler; the poor, because it is an economical treat, at larger 10c. or 15c. price; and they get their money's worth from the rich, stimulating flavor of SCHNAPPS. They are made that way to keep you properly pleased.

SCHNAPPS

Evidently, chewers cannot resist the flavor and they cheer SCHNAPPS because SCHNAPPS chews them more than any other chewing tobacco and every man that chews SCHNAPPS becomes a good thing—more cheer makes other chewers until the fact is now established that there are many more cheerers and smokers of SCHNAPPS tobacco than there are in the States where SCHNAPPS has not yet been offered, to the trade.

Income Taxpayers.

Columbia is doing very well, indeed, in fact, remarkably well, but do not claim to be so rich as Charleston. The fact that Columbia pays three times as much income tax as do the citizens of the City by the Sea is due principally to the progressive activity of Richmond's tax collector. It is the official who has the virtue—Columbia State.

The Men Who Rode with Hampton.

Men who rode with Hampton in grey coat or red suit—also how few of them remain! will gather about the edge of their great leader tomorrow in Columbia and recall again the glorious days of their chieftain. If they think, too, upon the day in South Carolina turned in his leadership and counsel, it will not be with sorrow for him.—Charleston Post.

Blindness Quickly Cured.

A few weeks ago I had a bit of a tick in my eye as severe as I was able to go to the office for two days. Failed to get relief from my family physician's treatment. On the third day I felt Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and the next day I felt better. I was cured in a few days. These tablets are for sale by all druggists.

We cannot understand why all the powers of the government, the federations of labor and the northern press should be directed toward stopping the progress of the Indian reservation grants for this section of the country. It is jealousy, have we gotten a slice of anybody else's pie? We are not inclined to have Chamberlain's Cough Remedy turned into a new cattle garden, but we want our rights.—Florence Times.

Chapped Hands.

Wash your hands with warm water, dry with a towel and apply Chamberlain's Salve just before going to bed, until a speedy cure is certain. This salve is also unequalled for skin diseases. For sale by all druggists.

The Wreck at Denton.

The railroad commission has fixed Dec. 4 as the day for a hearing into the cause of the recent wreck on the Southern near Dentonville, about five miles north of the city. In this wreck two were killed and two seriously injured. The officials of the Columbia division and the train crew, or such of the latter as are able to appear, have been summoned.—The State.

For a Burned Kettle.

If in preserving the fruit it is burned or caught on the bottom of the kettle, cover the burned portion at once with fresh fat and heat rapidly until absorbed, and the substance will peel off, leaving the kettle unharmed. The fat must be strictly fresh, as salt would cause it to adhere.—Ex.

Anna's Consistency.

"My lots, my what, my what, my what?" cried the Count; "without you I said it!" "I won't let you do that," replied the Countess; "I will allow you to do a week for your board, and 30 cents more for your laundry bills, but I refuse to let you do any more. The money which was accumulated by my old father's spent on flowers for that horrible Mrs. B. Anything—anything but that!" "The money from would turn over to their graves if they knew that the cash they worked so hard for was being spent for such a base purpose. We must have some other way to give you this one, but me conscience cries out on it!"

In Time of Peace.

In the first months of the Russo-Japan war we had a striking example of the necessity for preparation and the early advantage of those who speak. I have shined their boots in dry weather. The individual preparation has made history and given to our best men. The individual preparation has made history and given to our best men. The Red Man's Signature.

Indian chiefs treating with the Government now prefer to the document instead of cross-marks hitherto. The reason is that chiefs have frequently repudiated the cross-marks and the obligations involved. The first document was recently signed by thumpkin. It was a treaty between the Government and the Omattila Indians of Washington. The also gave to the cross the Indian reservation unharmed.—Chicago Journal.

Sell More of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than of All Others Put Together.

Mr. Thos. George, a merchant at Mr. Ripin, Ontario, says: "I have had the local agency for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy ever since it was introduced into Canada, and sell as much of it as I do of all other medicines on my shelves put together. Of the many dozens sold under guarantee, I have not had one returned. I can personally recommend this medicine as I have used it myself, and also for my children and always with the best results." For sale by all druggists.

Where It Belonged.

A Baltimore man interested in the education of the young recently visited a kindergarten in that city. After the first exercises the visitor was asked to put a few questions to the pupils. To a boy of 5 the caller said: "Have you ever seen a lion's skin?" "Yes sir," came in ringing tones from the youngster.

A Family Laundry.

The Greenville papers announce that Greenville is to have a laundry different from any other city, and this it will be a family laundry. The promoters declare that the prices on all articles will be so low that it will be cheaper to send to them than to patronize the washer-men. This new company will employ only the most skilled labor and will do its best to give satisfaction.—Greenwood Journal.

Character in The Tongue.

German says that the pastime of reading character and telling fortunes by the tongue. Somebody has been making study of the organ with a constantly acting lens. It is full of indications. A long tongue is said to denote openness of character, it suggests gentleness and free handedness. In a pointed tongue, many friends and enemies alike but doesn't save money.

When the tongue is long and thick, the optimistic person is a tendency to go off and suicidal. The future of the owner is beset with troubles and it should be kept at a distance. Short tongues indicate secretiveness and dissimulation. Their owners make good detectives and attorneys.

The owner acquires some money by economy and guile, but has not largeness of spirit to make a great fortune. Very thin pointed tongue is a sign of a person who is likely to deceive and betray, whatever effort he may make to keep straight.

The vibrant, quivering tongue denotes an ardent and generous nature. A long, pale pink tongue denotes both weakness of character and delicacy of constitution. "If it's all true," says a German newspaper, "it is lucky that it is only at the doctor and not at our friends that we detect our tongues."—News and Courier.

A Cold taken at this time of the year is generally hard to get rid of, but it will not be able to withstand Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and Tar.

The Dollar that Never came back.

A neat little story is told of a farmer who ten years ago put his initials on a dollar bill and sent it with a merchant in his home town. Before the year was out he got the dollar back. Four times in six years the dollar came back to him for produce, and three times he heard of it in the pockets of his neighbors. The last time he got it, four years ago, he sent it to a man order house. He has not seen that dollar since, nor ever will. The dollar will never pay any more school or road tax for him; will never build or bridge the homes of the community. He sent it entirely out of the circle of usefulness to him.

There is something more than a pretty little moral in this story, there is a ring of truth that the most incredulous can't get round. There is a practical example in it, that needs no argument. If the resident of the small town would realize this and confine himself as much as possible to his own district, notwithstanding the fact that the catalogue for his mail order house quotes prices at an apparently lower rate; he will be the gainer.—The Furniture Worker.

Use and Meaning of "Claim."

The London papers are continually lecturing without the use of English. The London Chronicle says that our misuse of the word "claim" is so shocking that really "Mr. Roosevelt ought to be called to the attention of the word in the erroneous sense of 'to say' or 'to contend.'" But this use of the word was quite familiar in England centuries ago. Chaucer wrote, "What man that claigneth gentill for to be." The word really means to say something in a loud voice hence, to say it emphatically; and it is very probable that the so-called, American use of it will become the recognized use.

Hang Out Mother's Clothes Line.

A writer in a western paper makes a capital suggestion when he says: "Some young fellows who sing 'Throw Out the Line!' make a good beginning by offering to hang out mother's clothes line for her." This remark was made a little less than twenty years ago. It is now a common sight on the part of the young men and women, and more time put in at home helping the mothers would be very comforting to the mothers. If they will!"

Recently, and we have noted that some of the most unscrupulous advertisers of medicine and other nostrums spend a great deal of time railing over the country telling other people how to do it, presented in the management of their own business affairs, the most admirable examples of how not to do it.—Greenwood Journal.
