Endure Trench Handicaps in Anticipation of Victory—Grateful for American Gifts.

Elliot Norton, Director of the American Volunteer Ambulance Corps in France, which Richard Norton, his brother, is field commander, has received a letter from Phillip O. Mills, now on active duty with the corps in France.

"Today," it reads, "we have been hospitalised rather a lively time at all our camps."

"The weather is and has been vilely cold—a mean, piercing kind of rain and mud all over everything."

"To give you a picture of it: Imagine yourself in a trench in a cold rain and no waterproof; then get up and stand in icewater and mud up to your middle in the same prospect of a shell landing on you."

"Before I left home I used to wonder sometimes if the men and women who were going to the Lafayette kits and under what surroundings the gifts from America to the French troops as they go into the front trenches."

"One day last Friday I strayed into one of the central offices of the Lafayette Society in New York and there saw some of the girls who had been dancing the night before, sprig and packing the kits."

WHY N. Y. STATE DAIRYMEN GROW POORER AND POORER

Products Pass Through Too Many Hands Before Reaching the Consumers—Added to This High Price of Feed Controlled by a Cartel This Is the Finding of the Wicks Committee.

That many dairymen in New York State lose from $250 to $400 per year, that practically all are tied hand and foot, and that producers and consumers must be brought closer together by the elimination of the middle man, are facts established by Senator Charles Wicks, according to a statement issued.

As head of the Wicks investigation committee the Senator has been touring the farming district of the State to get actual facts pertaining to the dairy business and to discover, if possible, why farming is decreasing.

FAIRFIELD MEN ARE ACQUITTED

Lynching Upheld by Cole Blaise in Speech for the Defense.

York—"Not Guilty" was the verdict returned at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon by the jury in the case of the State vs. Ernest Beaslee, Jesse Morrison and James T. Rawls, charged with the murder of Sheriff D. Hood, on the steps of the Fairfield court house, Wincboro, on June 14, 1915.

The case went to the jury at 1 o'clock shortly following which the adjourned for the noon recess. The verdict was returned immediately upon the reconvening of court for the afternoon session.

The verdict which marked the ringing down of the curtain on the aftermath of the widely known Fairfield tragedy was heard in silence by the 100 persons present in the court room, there being no semblance of a demonstration of any kind. Since the beginning of the trial Monday morning the auditorium was filled with spectators. When the finding of the jury was read by the clerk there fact that hundreds, who had followed the progress of the case with unflagging interest, had not yet gathered in the court room, many thinking that the verdict would not be rendered until later in the afternoon.

As a matter of fact, it is said, that there was no division of opinion among the jurors all being for acquittal. After the reading of the verdict all three defendants were given permission to shake hands with the jurors.

All the testimony in the case was finished Tuesday afternoon and at 2 o'clock yesterday morning the arguments began, each side being allowed one and one-half hours for this purpose. Thos. E. McDow of York made the opening argument for the State, followed by Ex-Governor Cole L. Blaise of Columbia, J. W. Hanahan of Wincboro and John B. Hart of York, for the defendants.

The closing argument for the State was made by Solicitor J. E. Henry of Chester.

Content for the defendants argued from the testimony that the shots responsible for the death of Sheriff Hood were fired by Clyde Isenhour, who lost his life in the affair, which contention was controverted by attorneys for the State, who maintained that the bullets that ended the sheriff's life were fired by the defendants.

Ex-Governor Cole L. Blaise leading counsel for the defendants, openly advocated lynching in his argument, insisting that the only mistake made in the affair was the failure to lynch the negro John Smith before he was taken to the State penitentiary in Columbia for safe keeping.

If the negro "brute" had been promptly lynched," he declared, "Sheriff Hood, Clyde Isenhour and Raleigh Boulwars would have been alive today, the defendants here at the bar would have been at their homes and everything would have been all right."

Mr. Oscar A. Love, of Lowryville Route 2, and Miss Angie McChesney, of Cornwall, were married Wednesday afternoon, Rev. R. Roy Brown officiating.

HOW THE TRUITS FOUGHT THROUGH WESTERN WALLACHIA

Berlin, Tuesday, via Saville.—After a long silence imposed by the direct wish of Gen. Falkenhayn, who did not wish to have any hopes raised by premature accounts of his operations, descriptions of the momentous victory of the Teutonic forces in the battle of Tzirjitz which broke the resistance of the Russo-Rumanian army in Western Wallachia and opened the way to the Rumanian plain, are now available.

The battle was fought from November 16 to 17 after the German and Austro-Hungarian forces in a week of steady combats had forced their way from the summits of the mountains on the Rumanian-Transylvanian frontier to the foot of the Alpine regions, mastering the strongest fortifications of the permanent frontier fortifications with few mortars and breaking the Rumanian resistance wherever it was encountered. Ejected from the wild, mountainous regions to the rolling foothills beyond the Rumanians, who by now had received heavy Russian reinforcements, elected to stand on the range of hills of Tzirjitz, the first important town south of the mountain. The position was naturally strong and a heavy fog enabled the Rumanians to take up their position unmolested by the pursuers.

The German cavalry had been held in readiness behind the line and the squadrons now poured through the breach and raced down through the valley towards the railway thirty miles away, driving before them the fleeing Russians and Rumanians and breaking the efforts at resistance of all but the strongest units which still held together. These were hustled on by the pursuing infantry columns which, like the cavalry, made all possible speed to utilize their advantage so rapid and unrelenting was the pursuit that on November 19 the cavalry had reached the Orsova-Craiova railroad line on a breadth of twelve miles from Strehia station to Pitulitch, an important railroad junction where the line running north toward the mountain passes branches from the Bucharest line. The pursuing forces of Gen. Falkenhayn continued to sweep like a flood down the valley and now have reached a point just outside of Orsova, one of the important towns of Rumania.

BANKRUPT PROPERTY IS LIABLE FOR TAX.

Comptroller General Gives Ruling Upon Request of Richmond Sheriff.

Property in the hands of a trustee in bankruptcy is liable for taxes in the same way as property in the hands of any other individual. This was the opinion given by Carlton W. Sawyer, comptroller general, in a letter to John C. McCain, sheriff of Richmond county.

The letter follows: "Answering your letter of the 27th, I beg to advise that under the State law, taxes constitute a first lien upon the property assessed, and under the bankruptcy act it is made the duty of the trustee in bankruptcy to pay them before distributing any proceeds of sale among creditors. The act also provides that all persons interested in the sale or purchase of the property, must take notice of its existence. An adjudication in bankruptcy does not affect such lien or impose upon the State or county the duty of proving its claim in bankruptcy, like an ordinary creditor.

"Unless, therefore, the trustee in bankruptcy obtained an order from the court authorizing him to pay the taxes due upon this specific property in question, or somebody else shall pay them, it becomes your duty to seize the particular property under a writ execution and sell it for the payment of these taxes.
