TUESDAY, DECEMBER 5.

In our opinion there can be no question but that the merchants of Chester are in a position to sell merchandise cheaper than they can by merchants in cities within a radius of one hundred miles.

The expense incident in conducting a mercantile business in Chester is less than in most towns of the same size or larger. The city tax levied in Chester is less than most towns of the same size and the merchants of this city are not required to pay an annual license to do business.

The merchants of Chester should bestir themselves and get after this business which is daily being sent to distant cities.

It is a very common occurrence to hear Chesterites talking about our excellent railroad facilities; our beautiful location; our low cost of electrical power. Yes, we have these things and many others.

There is soon to be established in New York the first diagnostic hospital in this country, which will perform in the highly specialized medicine of today the services of an old family physician of fifty years ago.

It will look over a patient suffering from an unidentified ailment, find out what the matter is with him and direct him to a specialist if he can afford it. If not, he will be sent back to the general practitioner under whose care he has been, with a complete diagnosis of his disease, a plan for treating it suggested by competent specialists, and references to recent literature on the subject.

There are about 300 physicians and surgeons among the associate members, and almost as many lay members. About $100,000 has already been raised by the Building Fund Committee, of which David Franklin is Chairman. The buildings and grounds will be in a central part of Manhattan.

other persons were less seriously hurt near the end of the Union Truck automobile race at the Triplex Speedway late this afternoon. Herbert Smith, a Pittsburgh newspaper man; Montgomery McCormick, a constable on duty at the track; and Donald Beamer, a spectator, were among the others who were injured.

Among the spectators who were injured were Richard Adams and Edward P. Kovel of New York, Richard Spain of Pittsburgh, Elmer Putnam of Uniontown, J. J. Daugherty, and E. J. Myers of Pittsburgh. Mr. Adams suffered severe injuries about the head and body.

Hughes had run his car into the guard rail near the center of the speedway in the fifty-second lap of the race because of engine trouble, and had walked to the press stand, when Chubb came tearing down the track. When almost opposite the stand, Galvin seemed to lose control of his car, and it shot with lightning speed toward the center of the track.

Hughes saw his danger, but had no time to escape. For he, with Galvin and Weaver, Galvin's mechanic, were instantly buried in the wreckage. Persons on the stand were thrown to the ground, and some were caught in the apparatus, and others. When the men were picked up it was found that Hughes and Weaver had been fatally killed and Galvin was seriously injured. It was feared he could not survive.

The Record is mighty sorry to see that the York county Yarn Association has seen fit to bring a ravine excavation here to help put the Yarn Association on a level with the financial base. We feel that the directors of the Association have made a serious mistake. We believe that the business end of the city are in opposing the bringing of this carnival show here. Very much rather would the Record see the Yarn Association show here. It is temporarily bolstered by the aid of a carnival Rock Hill Record.

NEW YORK PREPARES TO USE BOYCOTT
New York, Dec. 3.—An organization of housewives, through which every consumer in the city is reached "whenever it appears necessary to establish a boycott on articles of food" will be formed by January 1, it was announced today by Joseph Hartigan, commissioner of weights and measures.

The plan, Mr. Hartigan said, is to have at least one woman assigned to each of the 42,000 square blocks here, whose duty it will be "to keep in touch with the residents of that block and keep them posted as to the prices of the various articles of food."
In addition to the boycott on eggs, started several days ago, the commissioner announced that he expects within three weeks to begin a boycott on butter.

California voted in favor of the $15,000,000 bond issue for the further extension and improvement of the State's highway system. TEN ROAD DISTRICTS
FOR FEDERAL AID SYSTEM
States Must Pledge Participation for Federal Aid System
First to Meet the Requirements

For convenience and expedition in handling the engineering work in connection with the distribution to the States of the $30,000,000 Federal aid money, the country has been divided into ten districts.

The Secretary of Agriculture has interpreted the law to mean that in accepting the terms of the act, a State, as a matter of course, pledges its faith to a five-year program. Because the Federal Government will furnish aid during a five-year period, this he regards as important because it makes possible the arrangement of a comprehensive scheme of road building. He holds that the expenditure of the entire amount of money contemplated under the act should be dispersed at the earliest possible date, and road systems conceived accordingly. This does not bind the State Legislature to make an appropriation at the first session for the five-year period; indeed, this is precluded by the Constitution in some States. It merely involves a pledge of the State's faith to continue, as far as possible, and road systems conceived accordingly. This does not bind the State Legislature to make an appropriation at the first session for the five-year period; indeed, this is precluded by the Constitution in some States.

California is the only State as yet which has not every requirement of the law Georgia and Maine have complied with all requirements of the act. California is the only State as yet which has not every requirement of the law Georgia and Maine have complied with all requirements of the act.

PRACTICAL TEST
AT JACKSONVILLE
Dealings Directly Between Producers of Farm Products and Household Bought.

Washington, Dec. 3.—The announcement made yesterday that the postoffice department had practically selected Jacksonville, on the request of Senator D. C. Fletcher of Florida, as one of the experimental offices where a retail commodity plan would be made of dealings directly between the producers of farm products and the householders, is viewed here as of more than ordinary importance.

This step has been taken, following work that Senator Fletcher did at the last session of congress, when he had a section placed in the post office appropriation bill providing that three cities should be selected where experiments should be carried on to see whether a better agreement could not be reached between the man who produces the thing he eats and the consumer than would reduce the cost to the consumer but which would not eliminate the margin of profit to the producer.

If it is found to be a success, and Senator Fletcher and the officials of the postoffice department do not doubt that it will be, then the plan will undoubtedly go into effect generally throughout the United States, and at all of the larger offices there will be special departments operated as the connecting link between producer and consumer. In this way a practical and beneficial method will be established, through the parcel post, to effectively reduce the cost of living.

TURKS TYPHUS SMITTEN
Army Losses 1,000 Men Daily Syrian Relief Committee Says.
Soldiers of the Turkish Army in Syria are dying from typhus fever at the rate of 1,000 a day, according to a dispatch from the committee forwarded through the American Committee for Armenia and Syrian Relief. In addition to the families from which the people of Syria are being reported to have been suffering, ep-demics of both typhus fever and cholera are sweeping over that country. The type of cholera is mild, but the typhus fever is a sudden, fatal kind, which spreads so rapidly that many houses swiftly are depopulated by the ravages of the disease. As many as a thousand dying in a day. It is not confined to any one region, but extends from Aleppo, in the northern border of the Syrian desert, to the Arish River, on the Egyptian coast. The doctors have not attempted to combat it, as there are no drugs nor remedies in the country.

The committee announced that it had increased its orders for drugs and chemical supplies to be sent on the naval collier Casper, leaving here for Beirut about Dec. 20, but added that there was imperative need of the speedy sending of more adequate material with which to fight the epidemic.

The Micawber spirit of "waiting for something to turn up" has kept many a business in swaddling clothes and landed many another in limbo. The merchant who is waiting for "better times" will eventually realize that the "best time" is past.

NOT A COMMAND BUT ITS EQUIVALENT

The Federal Reserve Banks are limited by law in their redemptive power for member banks to "notes," drafts and bills of exchange arising out of actual commercial transactions. "Notes," drafts or bills covering merely "investments" are excluded.

The last definition clearly includes the Treasury bills now offered by the British and French Governments in this market. These are nominally ninety-day bills, as they usually they are sold conditional upon repeated renewals, which makes them as much a permanent investment as the bonds of these governments already sold here.

Subject to this bar against redemptive power, member banks can load up with such paper as they please within their reserve requirements. The national banks, always have exercised this privilege and often with bad results. Some of them have already invested or planned to invest in these foreign Treasury bills.

When the Federal Reserve Board, therefore, cautions them against this policy it expresses an opinion, and does not issue a command. It views such a tying up of liquid funds as dangerous to the future and advises against it.

Nevertheless, this advice will go to the member banks and to all others with the force of a command. It will be accepted as the expert voice of the public authority charged with an advisory duty.

Under the old system it was every bank for itself all the time and the devil for the country every little while. The only practical advisory control known either emanated directly from the banking powers of Wall Street or indirectly through a national Secretary of the Treasury. The present view will improve the country anew with the magnitude of the reform suggested by the Federal Reserve Act—New York Times.

PEANUTS AND SOY BEANS FOR OIL

Some Interesting Information in regard to the Use of These Crops by the Oil Mills—Feeding Peanut Meal to Hogs.

In addressing the feed control officials of the country at Washington, D. C. on November 17, Dr. B. W. Kilgore, State Chemist of North Carolina, gave out some very timely and interesting information regarding the crushing of peanuts and soy beans by the cottonseed oil mills. Peanuts are crushed both in the hulls and after being hulled. The presence of the hulls seems to prevent extraction of the oil more satisfactorily. The Spanish or small peanuts are chiefly used. One ton of peanuts in the hulls gives about 10 to 20 gallons of oil and 1,300 to 1,400 pounds of meal or cake. The balance, around 100 pounds, is waste or loss.

The meal contains from 30 to 35 per cent of protein and 6 to 10 per cent of fat.

When hulled peanuts are used 100 to 115 gallons of oil are extracted and there is 1,100 to 1,200 pounds of meal. This meal contains 40 to 60 per cent protein.

The cold process of extracting the oil seems best. Not quite so much oil is obtained, but it is of a better quality. Some have first extracted the oil by the cold process and then cooked and repressed the material, getting an additional quantity of oil of a poor quality.

The cotton oil mills of North Carolina crushed about 123,000 bushels of soy beans in 1915. We understood Dr. Kilgore to say a ton of beans yielded 30 gallons of oil and 1,650 pounds of meal, but this would only account for 1,875 pounds. The waste is not usually over 50 to 75 pounds.

Authorities usually give the oil yield from 25 to 35 gallons.

A most remarkable statement was made by Dr. Kilgore regarding the use of feed-grade peanut meal to hogs on the firmness and quality of the carcass.

It is a well known fact that when hogs are fed on peanuts the carcass is soft, the lard being so soft and having such a low melting point of temperature that the buyers discriminate against such hogs to the amount of a cent a pound or more.

Dr. Kilgore stated that when peanut cake or peanut meal was fed the pork was as firm as when corn is used.

While it is known that the feeding of some corn while the hogs are on peanuts, or the feeding of corn and cottonseed meal for a period before sale or slaughter, will greatly harden and improve the carcass and raise the melting point of the lard, if the feeding of peanut meal does away with all the bad effects along this line which are experienced when whole peanuts are used, the fact opens up a splendid field of usefulness for this Southern legume crop.

We need a protein feed for hogs other than any other feedstuff, and if peanut meal supplies this and the mills can press out the oil without change in machinery there ought to be a large increase in the peanut crop, especially in those sections having light soils, where the peanut is known to do well.

It is to be hoped that further investigation will confirm this most important statement. If the meal does not produce a soft pork, while the whole nut does, it would seem that it is not the character of the oil but the excess of it which produces the undesirable effect.

Injured Man Laughed When Simple Treatment Was Suggested. But He Thanked His Comrade Later.

Once upon a time word came to Henry A. Voehl, of Plainfield, N. J., that a close friend had been injured, and full of anxiety he visited the afflicted man, who was suffering from a sprained ankle.

"It was no bad that the leg had turned black," said Mr. Voehl in relating the story. "I told him I would have him out in a week and he laughed at me. But I took him a bottle of Sloan's Liniment, that night he put some on and noticed the ankle felt better. I told him to use it every day, and in three days his ankle was practically well. In four days he was working. He gladly admits that Sloan's Liniment helped him on his feet."

A Christmas Letter to Discontented Wives.

Ninety-nine women out of a hundred feel rebel, envy and complain, without advance of the cause, if without an iota, or gaining happiness for any one concerned. The hundred women makes herself with beauty and richness that falls naturally in her way, makes good men and women of bad little boys and girls. She is a kind and dependent man that he is king of the world, makes flowers grow where barrens was, and cleanliness reign when there was dirt. And then when her hands and heart are full, she says the world waits her. It may be that she has "some little secret in her pocket" that she is king of the world, or perhaps a little story of hers has caught the public fancy, or she can present the button she invented for a self sump, or sell the sketch she made to amuse a sick child. Then comes the money and the fame, and everything else for which we will quite naturally long.

But the point is, that this hundred women was busy and happy first, and that they change so completely and discontented and so to this she is in the dark, pushing out feet, pushing down roots, and she was so made that they can do the same. The life of the average husband and father must be a supremely monotonous existence. But men seem to be so made that they can do the same things over and over again endlessly without complaint. Perhaps it is their nature, perhaps the result of long generations of patient bread-winning.

Women are different. I suppose most women would like everything in their lives changed once a year, and I know some who would tear up all sorts of often that. One thing that holds us so tenderly to the children is that they change so completely; last year's camera pictures are not this year's, and the pictures of a first love do not jump from happiness and discontent and envy to this she is in the dark, pushing out feet, pushing down roots, and she was so made that they can do the same things over and over again endlessly without complaint. Perhaps it is their nature, perhaps the result of long generations of patient bread-winning.
