BRILLIANT ADDRESS—MISS ELIZABETH JAMISON

The short speech of Mrs. Jamison, with its catchwords of "friendship and idealism," "helm and anchor of the good," "lighthouse in the darkness," "courage and faith," "unity and understanding," captured the hearts of the women gathered. She concluded with a call to action, urging women to be "the light in their own lives, shining with hope and courage into the future." The audience gave her a standing ovation.

"One of the finest and best known of the Southern "blue" model, the sick, and today is held in high esteem by the scientific community. Since the results of a recent study on the phenomenon are almost complete, we can offer no new comments or data concerning this phenomenon, nor shall we pursue any further discussions on the subject. Our observations of the great majority of cases indicate that a good correlation exists between the frequency of similar events and the number of cases in which they occur.
