ANY industrial worker who moves things by hand is doing work that electricity can do for about 2 cents an hour.

More than 60 percent of the mechanical power used by American industry is applied through electric motors. But the electrician's tasks performed by man power has hardly begun. Electric power not only saves dollars; it conserves human energy for better purposes and raises standards of living. Once men and women realize what electricity can do they'll consider how electricity can lessen the burden of industry and of farm and home life.
