DESIRE FOR PROFESSIONAL IMPROVEMENT ANIMATES STUDENTS IN STUDY CENTERS

Twenty-Five Hundred South Carolina Teachers Fainted Last Year In Professional Improvement Courses-Ashley Johnson Resigned-Mrs. C. M. Adams Reappointed

If it could be set forth, the number of the South Carolina teachers doing something to keep in step with the rapid change in educational conditions, it would be a surprising number. At the present time, educational conditions are changing so quickly that no teacher can afford to sit still and take no part in the work that goes on around him. While teachers took courses in the past, the conditions under which they did so are vastly different from those under which they are now doing the same work. While teachers in the past took courses in the work of the day, they are now doing the same work in the work of the day. It is not enough for teachers to merely keep up with the work that goes on around them, but they must also be doing the work that goes on around them.

Nearly all of these teachers hold more firmly to their work than when the course was given. With this immediate interest in the daily classroom practice, it is essential that the county college graduates and teachers, of both the Johnson attended Spartanburg Ave. Dickerson School, Chester; Mrs. Emma Prosser, Florvuir. Mrs. R. A. Gentry, Anderson. Miss F. A. Pickens Legare, Charleston.

It is no boast to say that the best work is done in the present day. A thousand women have been army nurses in the world in the past six years. This is a tremendous accomplishment, and there is no reason why a similar accomplishment should not be made in the present day. The world is brought to each other through the study centers.

Another interesting feature is to be found in the fact that the study centers are not confined to the larger cities, but that they are being held in the smaller cities and rural districts as well. SHOULD STUDENTS PAY ALL?

The topic of educational cost has been much discussed of late. When President James Scoville threw the first brick in the new building of Wisconsin University, the President of the University of Vermont, who was also present, threw a brick and said that students should pay all for their education.

But we will argue that the public is paying for the education of the children of increasing numbers. The fact is that the educational system is dependent largely on the public for support. It is not fair to charge the students for the entire cost of their education. The question should be solved on a more equitable basis.

If students are to pay all, they should be given the opportunity to work while attending school. Many students cannot afford to attend school full-time without working. The system of charging all costs to students is unfair and should be changed.

Students should not have to pay all for their education. The public has a stake in the education of its children and should be involved in funding the system.
