SERIAL NEWS FROM AMERICA

Speaking before the Lawrence County clergy at Louisville, S. C., Oct. 16, Dr. A. E. Winslow, prominent editor of the Journal of Education, South Carolina, entreated the audience to keep in mind that there is coming to be a grave and apparent dissipation among American students. Dr. Winslow rebelled against the treatment of scholarship in many younger institutions of the South, and he declared that there is a large proportion of students who are not only attending school, but are truly taking advantage of it. The time is at hand, he believes, when American students must be taught the value of their education.

Service Marches Nei\ America

"A recognized American went to Washington, and the American people grew up," is a saying that has been in circulation for several years. The American people have grown up and are now working for their own independence. The American people are not now content to be ruled by a foreign government, but they want to be free and to have the right to control their own affairs. The American people are now working for their independence, and they are determined to have it.

Sweepstakes

Sweepstakes remarkable, no doubt, but not a quarter of the credit has been given to an American of high standing for the accomplishment. This year there was no other person in the country who has performed anything approaching the American of high standing, and the American public has been very much pleased with the American of high standing.

The American of high standing is an American who has done something remarkable. He is a person who has done something that has been done by nobody else. He is a person who has done something that has been done by nobody else, and he is a person who has done something that has been done by nobody else.

An Appreciation
We have seen many changes in the last few years at Winthrop, and they have been due not only to hard labor in the shops, but also to the work of the faculty in the classroom and at the table. The State Fair for the spring is a big success, and the enthusiasm of all concerned has been enjoyed by all former editors of the Johnsonian. We have seen the "oil" pump, and we know how much better it is than the "oil" pump. The three years have gone by, yet the joy of the editors, and the other editors in the chain of men, have not diminished, and we are looking forward to more.
