Gladys Swarthout Will Present First Concert Tuesday, October 8

Leading Met Star to Address Program to Audience
Gladys Swarthout, leading and most popular Metropolitan Opera star, will address the program to students at the State University College November 30th, in the College auditorium, New York, 1948-49 Artist Series. Miss Swarthout made her memorable Metropolitan debut in 1920

The role with which she is most closely identified is that of Mimi of Puccini’s “La Boheme.”

Since her initial appearance, her success has been established beyond the rankling of all critics and music lovers.

Miss Swarthout will begin her address by reading a passage from the “Prayer” of “Messiah” by Handel, which will be sung in the intravention of the concert.

The theme of the address is that of the search for an ideal life, which may be lived through the study and action of music, if followed by instruction in the music school, one’s knowledge of music will be increased.

The role of music in the search for an ideal life will be illustrated by the following examples:

1. Young people and music
2. Music in the search for an ideal life
3. Music in the search for an ideal life
4. Music in the search for an ideal life

On Dating Rules

This week’s letter to Campus Town Hall will probably stir up various viewpoints among the student body on the subject of dating. We hereby earnestly urge all students to consider carefully the principles which would be beneficial to the entire student body.

In the fine arts, there is no other subject until an instructor can be found and the student body is sufficiently motivated to keep up with the course work. It is, and has been the practice at Winthrop.

When the entire student body makes a change in a certain matter, it should be done in such a way that each student body is involved with the others.
