CASCADIA ARRIVES WITH HERMINA.

The scene was the interior of the palace. The curtain fell, and the stage was smothered in darkness. The lights were slowly turned on, and the audience could see that the stage was decorated with a grandiose set, representing a royal hall. The audience could hear the footsteps of the guards as they entered the hall, followed by the sound of talking and movement. The king, dressed in his gold-embroidered robe, entered the hall, accompanied by his courtiers and guards. The king was followed by a group of nobles and scholars, holding scrolls and tablets, ready to present their reports. The audience could hear the king's voice, speaking in an imposing manner, as he welcomed the audience and spoke about the events of the day. The stage was illuminated by the light of the chandeliers, casting a warm glow over the acting. The actors were dressed in elegant costumes, reflecting the grandeur of the royal court.

TO DR. DUNNING

The Johnsonian staff expresses the heartfelt gratitude of the entire student body to Dr. Dunning, our resident physician, for the splendid work she has rendered the college in her fight against the influenza on our campus.

BUILDERS

How little we realize as we go from class to class and date to date, that we are building a structure that will be imperishable through all eternity.

Most of the importance of our college lies in the knowledge that in the realm of our culture, these little things do not count. We can not lead the world, but we can influence it. We need not worry about the real development of the college. We are ready to start life, our characters have been so thoroughly inured with this ideal that we can make up our daily life that we are building to be something good or bad, as the daily life has been.

Just as we make ourselves, we are helping to make those with whom we live stronger, if we are not stronger. We are not worse, but better.

This idea is wonderfully expressed in the work of building, and should be a challenge to all of us who are going to be a stepping stone for others:

"Isn’t it strange that princes and kings And even that epic in dust rings, And common folk like you and me Are of eternity? To each is given a book of rules. A block of stone and a bag of bricks And each must make life in its own restricted place."

ONE WORD TOO MANY

Goodness! What’s the matter with all of you? Every bloddy table is full of A new method of household Inlying not now used in 821 cities and towns. Piggly Wiggly The finest kind of food de- livered to you. For every meal.

RAMBLING WITH THE FEATUREISTS

BIBLIOGRAPHIC ART

The garb which the featureists of the last century wore and the garb which the featureists of the present day wear are fast approaching one another. It is well that the garb of the present day is not so much like the garb of the last century as it was considered to be. The garb of the last century was considered to be the garb of the present day.

FORTUNES AND FUTURE

What's the talk of travel and adventure when the world is so full of interesting things to see and do? There is no need to travel and adventure when you are at home. You can see and do as much as you would anywhere else.
