•r shrieks came from the "Candy Store"—"We want more!" and "Give us more!"—"You can hardly believe your eyes when you hear the prices!"

"It's too bad it's only one night," said one of the janitors. "But I'm glad it's over!" And then he went back to work, satisfied.

"Why, you're a stranger," said one of the janitors. "What do you want here?"

"I'm looking for my wife," said the stranger. "She's in the candy store."

"Oh, I see," said the janitor. "And what is your name?"

"My name is Charles Okey," said the stranger. "I'm from the south and I'm looking for my wife."

"Well, I hope you find her," said the janitor. "Good luck to you!"

The stranger walked out, satisfied. He had found his wife and was on his way to meet her.

"Who's I I around here?" asked one of the janitors. "I'm looking for my wife."

"Oh, I see," said the janitor. "And what is your name?"

talents" are uncovered and bringing forth to carry on the "wonderful work" of the college magazine which you did not know you possessed. A new initiative was led by Prof. John C. McCain.

Let's change our minds this month and see how much closer we can get to the inimitable sketches by Samuel Lewis. We must have a creditable showing by fire, flood or famine. No argument can be made against having "All Hands in for the Red Cross week." We're preparing for a long fight, but we're not yet at war. The Red Cross rosie does housework, helps supplies and offers of kind to the cause of humanity. Thousands of love stories and other news which will be of help to the magazine are being property have been arranged in the directories and published in the college magazine. With this organization, then, a new chapter in the American Red Cross will be held at the turn of the century. The second issue for the current year will be "Your Magazine," and the third for the coming year will be "Your Magazine." Black Flags for Danger?

The letters are signed "Black Flags for Danger?". The first two basement floors will be held for the college magazine and the third for the "Red Cross House." Here we could be considered very close to the 'T'-tally for the Red Cross!

"EVERYONE SANG"

Eating the joy that swept over the world when the Armistice was signed, a captain in the Royal Canadian regiment led us in a stirring chorus of "Everyone Sang." As the chorus built up, everyone sang with joy and enthusiasm. The joy that filled the faithful who sang with us.

In the streets, British boys were singing "Your Magazine," and the crowd was delighted at hearing the British soldiers singing their song. It was a beautiful moment. It was a moment of triumph for the British.

Leaves now since the Armistice has been signed, the war is still continuing. The headlines of the newspapers are filled with stories of the war. The British are fighting valiantly to hold the country.

Across the Atlantic, the British are fighting bravely to hold their country. The British are fighting valiantly to hold the country.

The British are fighting valiantly to hold the country. The British are fighting valiantly to hold the country.

The world's greatest war, the war that is still continuing, is over. The peace that is coming will bring a new chapter in the world. The peace that is coming will bring a new chapter in the world. The peace that is coming will bring a new chapter in the world.

SIDEARABIAN DEATH

The British, in the fight for the safety of the people in the Middle East, have suffered many losses. The British forces have been fighting bravely to protect the people in the Middle East.
