SALLIE B. TANNAHILL LANTERN SLIDES

BIOGRAPHY

Sallie B. Tannahill, b. 1881, d. 1947, was an instructor of the fine arts at the Teachers College at Columbia University in New York. In this position, Miss Tannahill worked to spread through the United States the revival of interest in fine letter writing which was occurring in Europe at time. In particular, Miss Tannahill's interest and style of lettering was influenced by the English school of Edward Johnston and the German school of Rudolf Von Larisch, and she also had a friendship with the Czech typographer and illustrator Vojtech Preissing, who had been a professor of the arts at Columbia University during Miss Tannahill's service there.

Besides teaching courses about fine letter writing at the Teachers College, Miss Tannahill additionally wrote pamphlets, articles, and two books advocating for fine letter writing. These books were P's and Q's: A Book on the Art of Letter Arrangement (1923) and Fine Arts for Public School Administrators (1932). In the introduction to P's and Q's, Miss Tannahill wrote about her influences and her belief that "every craft should be based on the same fundamental principles as are painting, sculpture, architecture." Alongside these writings, Miss Tannahill gave lectures at art museums about lettering.

Miss Tannahill went on to have a few notable students, such as Stella LaMond, who went on to establish the Texas Printmakers organization. Miss Tannahill also presents the earliest record of the schools of Johnston and Larisch having an influence that reached the United States.

The Sallie B. Tannahill Lantern Slides collection is a good summary of the ideas and inspirations Miss Tannahill had, as many slides are in German, Czech, and French, showing the European influence Miss Tannahill received. Additionally, many of the slides are not of typography and letter analysis, but rather of textiles, woodcuts, architectures, photographs, and other expressions of art, showing that Miss Tannahill lectured about the fundamental principles she believed every craft shared.
