Mr. E. L. Barton, of Charlotte, was a Chester visitor Wednesday.

Are you taking advantage of the clean-up sale of ladies' ready-to-wear at The S. M. Jones Co.

Misses Charlotte and Virginia Brantly have returned to their home in Lenox, N. C., after visiting Misses Aileen and Irene Hough, in Chester.

We are Operating the only strictly cash and carry grocery store in Chester and this fact enables us to sell the same merchandise for less. No bad accounts, no book-keeping, no drays, no draymen. The only man who can sell 4 for less than we do is the wholesaler. Cash Down Grocery Co.

A number of Chesterites who had life insurance Wednesday got the required amount of rain and will collect their insurance.

Mr. M. R. Clark spent Tuesday in Charlotte on a business trip.

Greatly Reduced prices on Ladies' Ready-to-wear at The S. M. Jones Co.

We again call Attention to the fact that the County delegation will be at the Court House, Tuesday, to hear from the citizens with reference to proposed legislation. This is the usual annual meeting.

Few Fresh Fish and Oysters call Elliott's Market.

The Civic League will meet at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church next Monday afternoon at four-thirty o'clock.

One-Top Ladies' coat suits to close out. Values up to $18 to be sold for $7.50. J. T. Collins' Department Store.

County Engineer H. H. Kester has received a telegram from the State Highway Department stating that plans for the building of the sand-clay road from Hickory to Fort Lawn has been approved and it is expected that work will commence on this road in the early spring. The estimated cost of the road is $328,000.

We are Operating the only strictly cash and carry grocery store in Chester and this fact enables us to sell the same merchandise for less. No bad accounts, no book-keeping, no drays, no draymen. The only man who can sell 4 for less than we do is the wholesaler. Cash Down Grocery Co.

The attention of our readers is called to the fact that 60¢ tax is due this month and is payable to the county treasurer. Those who pay their tax are given a tax stamp to be worn by the dog at all times. Failure to pay the tax makes the owner of the dog liable to prosecution.

The county auditor's office is now busy with the auditing of the property owners' returns for the year ending February 20th to make their returns. Those who fail to make returns during this time will be required to pay the same.

Mr. T. H. Hays, of Fort Lawn, has accepted a position with the Catawba Lumber Company, at Rock Hill, and with his family will move to that city early next day.

WHITE MAN IN JAIL CHARGED WITH RAPE

White Man from Great Falls, in Chester Jail Charged With Rape—Victim Said to be His Twelve Year Old Daughter—Promises to be a Sensational Case—Array of Prominent Attorneys Being Engaged.

What promises to be one of the most sensational trials in recent history of Chester county will probably come up at a next term of criminal court.

A white man, who has been living at Great Falls, is now in the Chester county jail having recently been arrested by officers at Great Falls and brought to Chester, being charged with statutory rape, the victim in the case, according to the warrant being his own eleven or twelve-year-old daughter.

Information coming to The News is to the effect that the daughter has made a confession of the matter before witnesses, some of them being officers of the law. It is also stated that a physician of Great Falls, or the Great Falls community, was called into the matter to make an examination of the supposed victim and that the physician's testimony would be inordinating to the man who is now in jail in Chester.

It is also stated that the father made an effort to get testimony in his own defense some time ago and that the daughter and other children or stepchildren who had information of the man in the case, but who they come forward and say that what they had to say previously was had in their reaction for falsifying was due to the fact that threats had been made against them if they told the truth. It is also further rumored that an effort was made to spirit the twelve year old girl and other children of Great Falls and that officers of the law overtook the parties between Great Falls and Columbia.

It is also further stated that there are older girls in the family who have told of the horrible treatment to which they had to submit when they were several years younger, and this testimony has also been given before witnesses, including officers of the law. The News has had information of the past history of the man who is charged with this horrible crime. His nativity is not known locally nor have been able to find out how long he has been a resident of Great Falls. However, from a reliable source late yesterday afternoon The News heard that this man had stated that he had been tried for the same offense previous to this, more than once.

Yesterday The News was also advised that the prisoner was attempting, if he had not already done so, to get in touch with former Governor Cole L. Blaise with a view of getting Mr. Blaise to defend him.

Yesterday one or more of the most prominent lawyers in Chester were seen with the view of getting them to assist the Solicitor in the prosecution.

With these things brewing it begins to look as if Chester county is going to have one of the most sensational trials in the history of the county.

Several of the most prominent and well known lawyers already having been solicited it would be hard just at this time to estimate the amount of money which will be expended in the case.

The man, we understand, has been in the Chester county jail for several days but The News only learned of his presence early yesterday and the entire day was spent in investigating the matter in so far as we were able, in order to place it before our readers to-day.

For various reasons The News, just at this time, thinks it advisable not to mention the man's name. Developments within the next few days will be such as to justify publication of the party's identity. We understand that the prisoner is a man of about fifty years of age.

Mr. H. H. Kester, county engineer, spent yesterday in Columbia on business.

The Rest Room, which has been conducted under the auspices of the Chester Chamber of Commerce on Main street for a number of months, was discontinued on the first of January. A Rest Room will be a part of the new community building which is to be erected on the corner of Center and McAlley streets in the near future.

Mr. J. M. Lathan is still displaced at his home on Saluda street. Mr. Lathan has been in for about three weeks.

DEATH OF MRS. MOSELEY.
Mrs. Julia B. Moseley of Orangeburg died Wednesday night at 7:20 at the residence of her son-in-law, John C. Roper, in Chester, after an illness of seven weeks, becoming ill while on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Roper. The body was carried to Orangeburg yesterday and funeral services held at St. Paul's Methodist Church there this afternoon at 3:30.

Mrs. Moseley, prior to marriage, was Miss Julia Bull, a direct descendant of the distinguished Bull family of South Carolina. She was a devoted member of St. Paul's Methodist Church, Orangeburg, and one of that city's most highly esteemed and greatly beloved women. Seven children survive: Mrs. T. A. Jeffords, Orangeburg; W. L. Moseley, Orangeburg; H. W. Moseley, Greenville; S. B. Moseley, Barnwell; Mrs. J. C. Roper, Chester; R. C. Moseley, Columbia; and J. P. Moseley, Orangeburg.

Wants Every Teacher Present.
Parity Presbyterian Sunday School wants every teacher in his seat at 9:45 Sunday morning, January 7th, next present to help in conveying and cannot venture out, notify your substitute. Each teacher or substitute is requested to bring a member of the class, so that each class, with full membership, will be on time for first New Year. We want to begin 1923 with 400 in attendance. Will the members of the church please take notice if you will just get up and come there to see our new year. We will start the New Year with an open and enthusiastic. If all will read over the lesson it will be seen how appropriate this selection is for the first Sunday of the New Year. Don't make a resolution and then break it, just decide to begin to do your duty for 52 times this year. Jesus tells us in this lesson how to keep the Sabbath day and how to be cheerful about it. He declares "the Sabbath was made for man, for real man, for spiritual, and W. T. Ellis declares that it is a rest day, a worship day, a remembrance day, a friendship day, a home day, a day for helpfulness to all who need it. Will you will be thankful that God has saved you to this good home and come and share your gratitude.

NOTES FROM OGDEN.
Ogden, Jan. 2.—Mrs. C. H. Hollis entertained her Sunday school class at a Christmas party last Friday afternoon. There were twelve Juniors present to enjoy the pleasures of the occasion. They first engaged in playing on the lawn, after which they were invited into the home and were agreeably surprised to find a beautiful Christmas tree, laden with fruits, candy and other gifts that Mrs. Hollis had prepared for their pleasure. A Christmas child left with a happy heart and expressed themselves as having enjoyed the occasion immensely.

Friends and relatives of J. H. Kidd, who suffered a stroke of apoplexy last Saturday, will be glad to know that he has rallied from the stroke and is fast improving.

Mrs. William Newsome, who has been on the sick list, is able to be out again.

Mrs. Oliver Newsome and two children of Kenaville, N. C., are visiting relatives here.

Rev. W. F. George spent Monday night at the home of W. T. Hollis. Little Miss Ruth Strait of Smith's is the guest this week of her cousin, Miss Pearl Lee.

Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Workman, who have had rooms with Mr. Workman's father since their marriage last fall, have moved into a little cottage of their own to begin house-keeping.

E. A. Workman and Carl Newsome are spending this week with relatives and friends at Westville and Great Falls.

COLONEL HARVEY IN WASHINGTON

Ambassador to Great Britain Slips Quietly Into Capital.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Colonel George Harvey, American ambassador to Great Britain, slipped quietly into Washington tonight on the Congressional Limited from New York and sought immediate seclusion in the apartment of President Harding at the White House.

It was a summons from the president and Secretary of State Hughes that brought the colonial burglar back from Europe to report personally on conditions as he saw them. The self-styled "errand boy" also is expected to make recommendations based on the results of his observations during two years at the Court of St. James.

Colonel Harvey's entry into Washington was made with circumspection. "Officially," in fact, he considered himself to be passing the night in New York and not at the White House, where he regarded his presence as purely "social."

It was also the ambassador's view that his first act following his "official" arrival in Washington should be to confer with the president and Secretary Hughes, so he denied himself to would-be interviewers. The colonel and his retinue even went so far as to register themselves en masse at a local hotel and the fact that he and his personal valet went immediately to the White House, unaware of the ambassador's presence at the White House, numerous persons sought to reach him at the Harvey hotel suite, only to be informed that he had retired and would "see nobody until the morning."

Judging from his appearance the colonel was much refreshed by his sojourn in New York over the turn of 1922 year.

Major O. N. Sobert, military attaché at the embassy in London, and Chandler Cobb, assistant commercial attaché, accompanied the ambassador to Washington.

A. C. FISCHER, Auditor Chester County, Chester, S. C., Dec. 2, '22. T-1 no.

LET THE FRESH AIR IN.

Pneumonia has begun its harvest already, with all of winter yet ahead. This should serve as a warning and should stimulate one to precautionary and preventive measures. Pneumonia is a cold weather disease, though cold weather is not the cause of it. Respiratory diseases increase in cold weather as a result of overheated and insufficiently ventilated houses and offices; because we rigidly exclude all fresh air and bask all the moisture out of the air which we breathe; because we permit the vitality of the process to be lowered by over-eating and the lack of exercise in the outdoor air; in other words, the chief cause of pneumonia and the lesser respiratory troubles is our fear of fresh air.

Excessively dry air in pneumonia's most efficient aid, and baked winter atmosphere is one of the cardinal sins of our people. The high temperatures maintained in homes, offices and hotels is notorious, and it is unusual when precautions to insure a proper moisture content in the atmosphere are taken. It is a crime against human nature to sleep in air tight heated rooms at night, as so many people do. It is an equally grave offense not to have adequate ventilation during the daylight hours.

Keeping the windows tightly closed to save fuel is poor economy. In fact, it is no economy at all, as the doctor's and the druggist's bills testify. In the treatment of tuberculosis, pneumonia and other respiratory diseases fresh air—the open air—is considered invaluable. If fresh air is good for the sick why is it not also good for the well?

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, health commissioner of the city of New York and senator-elect from the state of New York, in some remarks on the subject of fresh air and pneumonia recalled the true saying that the greatest enemies of good health are over-heating and over-eating. "This is the truth and common sense," says Dr. Copeland. "Over-stocking the furnace and overstocking the human machine make for inefficiency."

Open the windows and let the fresh air in! If it is not feasible to keep a window open continually open them wide occasionally, and thus change the atmosphere of the house or the office. What if it does take a little more money for coal? The added cost will be repaid in better health and in greater freedom from annoying colds and danger of the dreaded pneumonia. Fresh air is humanity's best friend, and it costs nothing. Do not shun it, therefore, but rather invite its blessed ministry.

THE SELFISH PAT.

By H. Adinburg Bruce

Selfishness has long been inviolable of moralists. Rightly they denounce it as a vice that makes for the unhappiness of others. In the light of modern scientific knowledge they would also be justified in condemning it because of the misery it brings to the selfish themselves.

Never do you find a selfish person who is really happy. Selfish do you see the man who can boast of really excellent health.

Selfishness, in fact, may exert adverse influence on the processes of digestion, the processes of circulation of the blood and of the mind. So true is this that in the case of certain maladies—the so-called functional nervous disorders—physicians nowadays recognize selfishness as among the commoner causes.

Again and again they find it necessary to say to patients, in effect: "The ill of which you bitterly complain would no longer trouble you if you would only learn to think less of your own comfort, and to do more for the good of other people."

"Actually your disease is rooted in selfishness. There is little that can be done for you until you acquire in larger measure the virtue of unselfishness. It is imperative, therefore, that you give up your expansive, self-forgetting sentimentality. This is the best medicine we can prescribe for you."

Of necessity the selfish, because they are selfish, are perturbed when and of the little ordinary mishaps of existence—constipation, sleeplessness, headache, dyspepsia, etc.—befall them. They pay undue attention to these, thereby both exaggerating and perpetuating their troubles. So that all unconsciously they drift into a condition of nervous invalidism, from which they would have been exempt but for their unfortunate habit of thinking too much about themselves.

Indirectly, also, selfishness contributes to the production of ill health. Unless exceptionally thick skinned the selfish are not happy because of the unpopularity their selfishness gains for them. Besides which, consciously or subconsciously they are in some degree tormented by realization that they are thwarting and repressing social impulses which should find expression in part at least in the common good. Hence results an uneasiness—sometimes a bitterness of mind—that reacts unfavorably on the whole organization.

Selfishness, in a word, divestifies. It may so divestify as greatly to increase susceptibility to the contracting of disease, and to increase also the liability to succumb to any disease that may be contracted.

Whereas the unselfish, on the opposite, by the very fact of their unselfishness may have their natural resistivity to disease greatly augmented. In part at least this explains the curious immunity which physicians and nurses so conspicuously possess even when infectious diseases are epidemic.

If only in the interest of physical health, accordingly, one's prayer should be "Save me from selfishness." Of all personal shortcomings few are so dangerous, few so costly.

Create A Demand

If every person in Chester county would confine their expenditures to the absolute necessities of life, many mercantile establishments would have to close their doors.

The amount of business done in a community depends upon the demand of the people. Thousands of dollars are being spent throughout the country giving publicity to various articles, with the view of creating a demand.

Merchants should advertise their business thereby creating a demand for the various articles they sell.

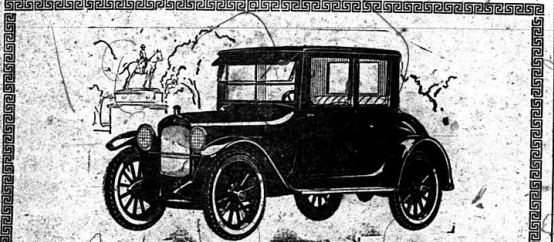

Eskimo pies are a luxury, yet the manufacturers made millions by advertising and creating a demand.

The less advertising merchants do the less demand they have for their goods.

One Reason For Mounting Sales

Humbmobile reliability, dashing performance, long life, low costs, these are all important reasons for the unprecedented sales records which the Humbmobile is making.

There is another reason, even more important.

Owners of cars whose first cost is less, are finding that they can obtain much more motor car economy and enjoyment in the Humbmobile for a slightly higher original price.

Owners of higher priced cars are discovering that the Humbmobile gives them all the practical advantages that costlier cars can give.

Humbmobile value makes powerful appeal to both classes of buyers

40 PER CENT OF COTTON STORED

South Carolina Crop Field Way Into Warehouses Run by State.

Columbia, Jan. 2.—More than 40 per cent of the entire cotton crop raised in the state during the past season has been stored in warehouses operated by the state, according to the annual report of J. Clifton Rivers, made public today.

The number of bales stored from the new crop was 217,235 and brought in a revenue to the state in the amount of approximately $135,000.

Believing to the advantages offered the farmers of the state by the system of state owned warehouses, the report says: "There have been seasons when cotton could be sold readily at given prices, and at other times there was hardly any demand for the staple other than for speculative purposes. Cotton growers have taken advantage of the facilities offered by the state warehouse system for tiding them over these periods, and have been enabled to carry cotton at a minimum expense and price when the demand and price were best."

The total loss from fire of cotton in state warehouses amounted to 1,113 bales of a valuation of $115,123.00. Insurance cost the farmers who stored their cotton under the direction of the state $215,644.

Storage charges amounted to $35,909.51 and bonds of the managers of the warehouses totaled $7,456.40, making the collections from all sources an aggregate of $259,138.30. Operating expenses for the department were less than $75,000.

The report also calls attention to the fact that during the year storage facilities for sweet potatoes, peanuts, cowpeas, velvet beans and hay have greatly increased in all sections of the state, and farmers are rapidly taking cognizance of the advisability of furnishing themselves added curing and storage plants in order that they may make sales at the most advantageous season.

Ask ten men who have become rich how they made their money, and you will get ten different answers. Each succeeded upon a wide variety of different methods. No two are alike. The method that will bring success to one man will bring disaster to another. No two may work successfully upon the same plan. Many fail in undertakings that have made others rich. The reason is obvious. The plan may be all right, but the men are not constituted alike. They do not think alike on all topics under like circumstances.

The successful man chooses his own methods, and often does so in the face of adverse criticism, yet he sees clearly where his critics can not see at all, and he sticks to his text and wins.

Nearly every man in the country is figuring on the problem of how to get rich. This is as old and as new as life. In all ages men have longed for riches, yet few have the fact and the ability to accumulate great wealth. Many become prosperous, but few reach the goal of their ambition. Those who succeed, do so by various systems. There is no royal road to wealth. Every man must choose his own path and proceed along lines of his own selection. To imitate another is to invite disaster. One man may see a way to succeed, and pick it with a vim and a determination that wins. Another, seeing the success of the first, tries the same method and fails. It may seem strange that the second man, who stored their cotton under the direction of the state $215,644. Storage charges amounted to $35,909.51 and bonds of the managers of the warehouses totaled $7,456.40, making the collections from all sources an aggregate of $259,138.30. Operating expenses for the department were less than $75,000.

To imitate is frequently to fail. To imitate is to succeed when the man, the opportunity and the method coincide, and all three of those must function to bring success. The man who wins upon his own initiative is termed the self-made man, and he is in fact self-made. He followed the dictates of his own mind. He executed in accordance with the plans and specifications which he had drafted before he ventured upon the undertaking which brought him success. It is true, he made provision for emergencies, but it is also true that he had a reserve force to meet whatever opposition might obstruct his way or cause him to turn aside. Other men might have gone back on his plan, worked out his system, solved upon his course, and he went ahead, overcoming all obstacles until success crowned his efforts.

The self-made man is the farthest man; the man who does not give up; the man who sticks to his path, however rugged it may be, declining all help or advice not coordinate with his plan; and in following his own initiative, he does not have to share his success with any other, or to blame any other for his failure. Generally failure does not come to the man who begins upon his own initiative, for the success which he hopes to achieve.
