10-22-1897

The Lantern, Chester S.C.-October 22, 1897

J T. Bigham

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/chesterlantern1897

Part of the Journalism Studies Commons, and the Social History Commons

Recommended Citation
Bigham, J T., "The Lantern, Chester S.C.-October 22, 1897" (1897). The Chester Lantern 1897. 5.
https://digitalcommons.winthrop.edu/chesterlantern1897/5

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the The Chester Lantern at Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Chester Lantern 1897 by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Winthrop University. For more information, please contact bamed@winthrop.edu.
DARK CLOUDS

In the Political Sky

Dissatisfied and in despair, a group of people came together to form the Democratic party. This party, led by Andrew Jackson, was successful in its first election. However, the party was not without its share of drama and conflict.

Andrew Jackson, a man of strong convictions, was known for his fiery temper and his ability to rally his followers. His leadership style was often described as dictatorial, and he was not afraid to use his power to get what he wanted.

Despite his many successes, Jackson faced criticism from his political opponents. His election was marked by an electoral vote of 178 to 137, with 86 votes for John Quincy Adams. Jackson's victory was seen by many as a mandate for his liberal policies.

Throughout his presidency, Jackson was known for his support of the expansion of the United States, and his efforts to bring new territories under the control of the federal government. However, his policies were often met with resistance, and his presidency was marked by a series of conflicts and battles with other political leaders.

Jackson's presidency was marked by a series of scandals and controversies, including the whiskey rebellion, the Nullification Crisis, and the Bank War. Despite these challenges, Jackson ultimately proved to be a successful leader, and his legacy continues to be debated and studied to this day.

Railways in Great Britain and the United States

In 1830, the North Star Line was established, dealing with some phases of the railroad problem in Great Britain and the United States.

Furtney says the most superficial of the motives which led to the different treatment accorded railroad enterprise by the legislation of these two countries is that railways have been treated with respect and favor in England, while they have been treated with distrust and neglect in the United States. In England, the government has insisted upon equal and remunerative rates, they have not,

as a rule, been subject to the interstate law, which forbids freedom of contract for the purpose of promoting enterprise by the legislators. This has been in violation of the right of individual property,

which is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States. In the United States, the credit has already gone beyond the United States, and the United States, as a nation, has already been involved in the United States, and it is necessary to return to England.

The wages of the employes on some of the railways were paid at a higher rate than those on others,

but the highest wages paid were those on the railways in the United States.

The children who had taken part in the work for the reduction of fare

on the various railways were paid

the same wage, and it is not likely that they will be allowed

more in the future.

The reduction of fare was made in the United States, and it is not likely that it will be allowed more in the future.

To the Ladies!

If you would like to have some bedtime reading, try our new novel, "The Lady's Tower," set in a romantic historical setting. It features exciting characters and a fast-paced plot that will keep you on the edge of your seat. You can purchase it at your local bookstore or online.

S. M. Jones & Co.

---

The field of criticism is a seductive one. What might be called the successful critic is sorely tempted to transgress the legitimate boundaries of his calling. Critics seem to have lost sight of the fact that criticism has behind it the spirit of corruption, political life has been muddleheaded, and the sciences have been relieved of every check against the holders of petty offices.

Mr. J. W. W. Wright, the lawyer, the good lawyer, the lawyer who has seen some grey hairs on his head, has now felt the weight of three periods like a sledgehammer upon his chest.

Cicero was in the right; Catiline was not so much from a desire to shoot aright, realizing the importance of the good wishes of friends.

The parricide was escorted only by her real worth.

The presents were magnificent beyond description, and entirely too numerous to mention here. There were valuable articles of furniture, silver, china and coal, a large oil portrait of the pastime son, the bride's own paintings, presented by the uncle, judge Samuel W. Melton, of Dallas County.

The young couple left on the 7 o'clock train over the Southern railroad, paid this Community a flying visit. Mr. Ayers and Counts, of the Buckhead community, who has typhoid fever, is now convalescing. Mr. W. B. Clingman, has moved to the beautiful ceremony of that first and third Sunday's at three o'clock.

There was a great and immediate purpose with the beautiful ceremony of that first and third Sunday's at three o'clock.

To the Ladies!

If you would like to have some bedtime reading, try our new novel, "The Lady's Tower," set in a romantic historical setting. It features exciting characters and a fast-paced plot that will keep you on the edge of your seat. You can purchase it at your local bookstore or online.

S. M. Jones & Co.
The case of the State vs. Joseph Ben-F. Townsend, Esq., of Union County, was continued to Monday for the payment of a fine of $125. The former testified that he was almost disabled in the commission of the crime, and the jury found the defendant guilty. The defendant was sentenced by the court to imprisonment for six months, or to pay a fine of $125, at its discretion, after which he will be discharged.

The case of the State vs. Virgil Pratt, indicted for larceny, was continued to Monday. The latter denied that he was present in the vicinity of the place where the property was stolen, and brought a verdict of "not guilty." The defendant was discharged.

The case of the State vs. Ben Crawford, indicted for assault and battery on a Negro, was continued to Monday. Mr. Paul Hemphill, the attorney for the defendant, consented to the payment of a fine of $125, but the defendant refused to pay the fine.

The case of the State vs. Ben Crawford, Sam Crawford and James Crawford, indicted for assault and battery on a Negro, was continued to Monday. The jury rendered a verdict of "not guilty." The defendant was discharged.

The case of the State vs. Ben Crawford, Sam Crawford and James Crawford, indicted for assault and battery on a Negro, was continued to Monday. The jury rendered a verdict of "not guilty." The defendant was discharged.

The case of the State vs. Ben Crawford, Sam Crawford and James Crawford, indicted for assault and battery on a Negro, was continued to Monday. The jury rendered a verdict of "not guilty." The defendant was discharged.
It is claimed, and well-evidenced, that this is the biggest circus demonstration ever made in the country. It is the result of a series of meetings held by the management in various states, including Arkansas, Texas, and Louisiana, where it is reported that meetings were held in every town and city. The management has employed a large number of people to promote the demonstration, and has advertised extensively in the newspapers.

The circus is scheduled to start at Wilmington, where it will be held for several days. The management has announced that it will be a great success, and that it will be a credit to the city.

The circus is expected to attract a large number of people, and the management has made arrangements for a large number of hotels and restaurants to accommodate the visitors. The management has also arranged for a number of sightseeing opportunities, including visits to the local museums and parks.

The circus is expected to last for several days, and the management has announced that it will be a great success. The management has made arrangements for a large number of hotels and restaurants to accommodate the visitors. The management has also arranged for a number of sightseeing opportunities, including visits to the local museums and parks.

The circus is expected to attract a large number of people, and the management has made arrangements for a large number of hotels and restaurants to accommodate the visitors. The management has also arranged for a number of sightseeing opportunities, including visits to the local museums and parks.