London, Jan. 20—There are no signs here that England expects her young men back in a short time. There is no indication that there will be any reduction of military establishments, and the "fighting man" still means soldier. An atmosphere of war prevails here, as in any other capital, and the people are fully aware of the financial burden imposed by the war. London is as busy as any other capital in times of peace, but the war has added a new element of tension to the city's life. The financial transactions of the day are dominated by the war, and the credit of London is no longer just a question of the city's finances; it is now also a question of the nation's. The war has brought with it a new set of problems, and London is trying to solve them.

The following is a letter from a London newspaper:

"London, Jan. 20—The London government is urging the people to continue saving money. The war is not going to be over quickly, and the money saved now will be needed later. The government has set up a scheme to encourage saving, and people are encouraged to keep their money in the banks, and not to spend it on unnecessary things. The government is also urging people to buy war bonds, and the money will be used to help finance the war.

"The war is going well, and the government is confident that it will be over soon. The people are very patriotic, and are doing their bit to help the war effort. The London government is doing everything it can to keep the people informed, and the newspapers are full of news of the war. The government is also doing its best to keep the city running smoothly, and the people are doing their part to help. The war is going to be over soon, and the people are looking forward to the day when it will be over."

Episode II, June 3

Plan traffic after War.

Improvement of the Delaware River

South Jersey.

Paul Frederick, as the Secret Kingdom, makes his first appearance in this important picture for New York and New Jersey.

MAC NEILL, as General Sherman, has decided to make a bold attack on the Confederates, but is his plan to be successful?

F.W. CASHMAN, as General Lee, has heard of his enemy's movements and is determined to frustrate his plans.

HANS EDELS, as Mr. Lincoln, is determined to support General Sherman and is willing to risk everything for the success of his plan.

It is not long before General Lee discovers the plan of the enemy and is determined to counteract it.

But General Sherman is too clever for him and his plans are carried out without a hitch.

The Confederates are defeated and the Union is saved.

The war is over and peace is restored to the nation.

A Round the World in 80 Days

Thursday, February 1st

The story in brief.

Phileas Fogg is left heir to a fortune on condition that he circulate the globe and return married in 80 days. His colleagues at the Reform Club in London exclaim "The Tour of the World and a Wife in 80 Days—It cannot be done!" A wager of 200,000 pounds between Phileas Fogg and members of the Reform Club is immediately made and signed. About the same time Detective Fix is put on the trail of the traveler whom it is thought that the journey is going to be made by the celebrated Phileas Fogg. Fix is determined to get the man and his wife, if he can, and he will not let anything stand in his way.

The adventure begins in London and the traveler and his wife set out on their journey. They are followed by Fix and his men, who are determined to catch them.

The couple travel around the world, encountering many adventures and difficulties along the way. They are often forced to make hasty decisions and take risks to get to their destination.

Finally, they arrive at their destination and Fix is at last caught.

The couple are married and the wager is settled.
