CHIEF EXECUTIVE URGES THE PROBING OF STATE HIGHWAY

J. Edward Cox, eminent business leader of the State with headquarters in High Point, a man of keen understanding of industry as well as of agriculture, and other things appertaining to economics, has an informing article in the "Banker-Farmer" on the subject of "Agriculture and Industry," in which he tries to indicate their relations and to draw some conclusions from the comparisons that can be made of their present-day status.

Mr. Cox starts off by remarking that balanced agriculture and industry means largely that attainment for both which will assure those working in both of these spheres equal return in the way of compensation, encouragement, words, that the farmers shall receive for their labor and investment something at least approximating the returns that come to those who follow the industrial crafts.

Despite the increase of about 10,000,000 people in the United States in five years, 1920-25, the number of tiller farms decreased slightly, farm population lessened somewhat, and the production of farm products dropped 45-per cent from the high price year of 1910. Of these, we are disturbed over the great reduction in production of the crop in 1925. Ways must be found to either reduce the overhead expenses of agriculture or to secure for these products a higher price for their products or a larger share of the price now paid by the consumer, or both, says the writer.

"Now the agricultural situation is more satisfactory than in any other year since 1920, statistics showing an average profit of 7 per cent on capital invested in agriculture of 46 per cent. The disturbing factor now is the heavy burden of debt under which the farmer is laboring. His constant recurring losses have placed him in a position where ordinarily satisfactory returns are not sufficient. He must be given a better return than was required a few years ago if he is to regain his rightful position.

Farming is not a new business groping for standards which it may follow safely. Mr. Cox suggests that it is older than our Government itself, and those engaged in it know how it should be conducted. With that knowledge as a foundation, encouragement along several specific lines ought to produce very helpful results.

"Given a fair chance, the farmer promises to look out for himself. However, as bankers we can aid in eliminating waste, advice concerning credit, advice on investments, and other relations between the farmer and the advisory agencies maintained for his use, encourage good farm practices, and aid the farmer in carrying his crops until favorable markets appear.

"There should be the same common sense interest in banking and agriculture as there has been between banking and industry.

"Our efforts to foster that relationship will go along way toward enabling the farmer to accomplish his own rehabilitation and again gain his American independence. No other course would be more satisfactory to agriculture, and no other course offers greater benefit to the arguments advanced by Mr. Cox are sound and conclusive and it would be well for business men and bankers to pay particular attention to the grasp of this issue that the High Point bankers has and to concern themselves in the way forward bringing about in agriculture that delicate adjustment which is so urgently needed at this time.

It is a wellknown fact that there is no such thing as a balanced agriculture in the sense in which Mr. Cox has it in mind in this country as in this State.

Where do the returns of the soil go? and their investment in the way which is allowed industries or allowed those working in industries? YORK NEWS

Plans for the Yorkville Enquirer of More or Less Interest to Chester County People.

At a congressional meeting held in Yorkville, S. C., last night, a committee was appointed to supply the pulpit of the church until a regular paper may be secured to serve the congregation.

Clover Leaf Council, Jr. Order United American Mechanics, will present a Bible and a United States flag to the Beth-Shalom school, four miles north of Yorkville, on the evening of Feb. 22, Washington's birthday.

The machinery necessary to equip a fertilized mixing plant having a capacity of 100 tons of fertilizer per day, has been received by the Clover Cotton Oil and Ginning company, and will shortly be installed and begun turning out fertilizer for the farmers of Bethel and Kings Mountain townships, and elsewhere as the demand may require.

Manager P. W. Litchette, who has had the idea of installing a mixing plant for several years past, and decided several months ago to go forward with a try-out of the idea. He expects to specialize on formulas especially adapted to York county soils.

Mr. Litchette, of Charlotte, was in Yorkville yesterday afternoon for a short while. Mr. Litchette came over to look up the progress of the work with the erection of the power line between Yorkville and Sharon, which is to supply the latter town with electric current. The work, started as soon as a few kinks in regard to the right of way for the pole line could be ironed out, which would probably be within the next few days. All the material for the job is already on hand.

Attracting the interest of many relatives, friends and acquaintances of the contracting party, the marriage of S. O'Connell, of Yorkville, to Miss Jones, of the same place, was celebrated at 8 o'clock Thursday afternoon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex. J. F. Patton, pastor of Trinity Methodist church and pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony. The bride, who was witnessed by a few close relatives and friends of the young couple, Mrs. J. E. Wilson, of Yorkville, and R. D. Alexander of East Jefferson street. An attractive young woman of winsome personality, Miss Patton, with a large circle of friends, was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. P. Wilson of Lincoln street. For some time past he has been engaged in the automobile repair business of Yorkville, in partnership with his father-in-law.

The report of the rural police chief of Rock Hill, at the meeting of his council on Monday night, to succeed J. M. Young, was that the Rock Hill police department for the past fourteen years, has informed Mayor Johnson that he will not accept the job of police chief of Rock Hill.

The report of the rural police chief of York county, Messrs. Hayes, Jackson and Davidson, for the month of January, shows that during the month the officers captured six illicit stills, and 500 gallons of mash. The amount of fines collected as the result of their seizures, was $1,300.00. The amount of fines collected during a single month since the police officers began their work is $1,300.00, which is one of the smallest amounts collected during any month since the police officers began their work.

Gov. Richards Calls South Carolina's New Governor

South Carolina's new Governor, Gov. James B. Edwards, called upon the general assembly today for a general review of salaries, including his own. A special message read in both houses, the chief executive recommended that his salary be cut from $7,600 to $7,000, "and that no official of this State, whether chief president or what, may be his official position, receive one dollar more than paid the governor."

Gov. Edwards said that he had a salary of $7,600 a year and that the general assembly should be given the opportunity to reduce his salary to $7,000 a year, and that the same reduction should be made in the salaries of all other officials of the State.

The general assembly will meet in session on Monday, Feb. 14, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. It will be in session until the 20th of the month.

WELL, MR. EDITOR, said Sam Snodgrass as he chased a paper drummer out of the office. I see they are doing this new game, I guess they call it Black Bottom these days. They had a big time of it over here in Atlanta and offered prizes for the flapper who could get the most Black Bottoms flapped. They say it is more strenuous and snappy and faster than the Charleston what and they call it Black Bottom, so they tell me. Well, I allow that folks what is hunting Snodgrass could get it soon between two plane holders with a note in the lead that they might catch Snodgrass. There will soon also be plenty of folk to look after and laws to keep in fit shape and some of the flappers could flap up against a lawn mower and Black Bottom all round the front yard, pushing that three lawn mower or swinging the law around that garage and beat path in the garden. They say folk are great on doing everything between an honest day's work to do it to me. "Well, what do you now say? This crowd of the South of South Carolina don't send a message to the legislature asking that honorable body of statesmen to reduce the salary of the Governor of South Carolina to $7,000 a year? It would reduce his salary from $7,600 per twelve months to look like to reduce it to the same $7,000. Now on his face that looks like doing your own best to get the crowd out of the legislature. And don't do that, you folks that the legislature can't reduce the governor's salary will be in a constant of this lot of common wealth known as South Carolina and more or less represented by a Palmetto Tree. Yes, I see they ought to put his feet in the mill without authority to do so. Give him something of a trial. If he did not know they could cut his salary then he should have known it, whether he did or did not. Insurance of the law excuses none—no, not even a Governor. "Look out, Mr. Editor, for an other bumper crop in Texas. This is getting on a movement down here to agree to get the average salary of the state down to $3,000 a year. Now I see folks is signing up right here. Now I watched this here pledge to cut average for several years and I find that every fellow who is expecting the other fellow to cut and he plants more than ever looking for a shortage and he is expecting to reap the reward. In order to reduce the average the proper thing to do is to start a campaign to increase the salary of the state. Let that man who says he will cut that and past history. "I know you is been a reading about the movement from the State of Georgia, and you folks has been leaving the boys and girls and hunting the bright lights and moving in. Now I see folks is signing up right here. Now I watched this here pledge to cut average for several years and I find that every fellow who is expecting the other fellow to cut and he plants more than ever looking for a shortage and he is expecting to reap the reward. PLANTING DATE AND SPACING AFFECT COTTON

Information on the planting and spacing of cotton, from a report by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, is given in the following article.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture, in a recent report, states that the planting date and spacing of cotton are of great importance in determining the yield and quality of the crop.

The report states that the planting date should be chosen so as to give the cotton a long growing season. The best time for planting is in the middle of the rainy season, when the soil is moist and the temperature is warm.

The report also states that the spacing of the cotton should be chosen so as to give the cotton a long growing season. The best spacing is one plant per 100 square feet of ground.

The report concludes that the planting date and spacing of cotton are of great importance in determining the yield and quality of the crop.

THE WASHINGTON CANNERY FOR LEXINGTON

Lexington, Feb. 7.—A cannery of from 12 to 25,000 cans daily capacity will be erected here in time to care for this year's crop, according to Mr. L. Rawls, the owner.

The cannery is to be built on the site of the old mill, which was destroyed by fire in 1924. The building is to be of brick and will have a floor space of 10,000 square feet.

The cannery is to be equipped with the latest machinery and will be able to process all kinds of fruit and vegetables.

The cannery is to be owned and operated by the Lexington Cannery Company, which has been organized for the purpose.

PERMITS FORMER SOLDIERS TO BORROW MONEY ON CERTIFICATES OF SERVICE

Washington, Feb. 4.—After a conference here today, Congressmen have agreed to pass a bill which would permit former soldiers to borrow money on certificates of service.

The bill is part of a larger bill which would provide for the relief of former soldiers and their families.

The bill would allow former soldiers to borrow up to $100 a month on certificates of service, for a period of 10 years.

The bill would also provide for the payment of interest on the loans.

A VITAL NEED.

Orangeburg, has introduced a bill in the Legislature purporting to be the last session providing for the erection of a new state penitentiary. It even states that it is a new plant of this kind in the South. It is the name of "Humbug" common sense and common sense should be passed and actual work of construction begun as early as practicable, despite the peculiar conditions prevailing at the present through South Carolina and the cry of hard times and business stringency.

This slight cannot dodge or pass the responsibility of having its criminal population, humanly housed and cared for along proper lines of health, hygiene and sanitation. And such conditions do not obtain at the present penitentiary, according to physicians and experts who are not who are deterred, but who are thoroughly conversant with things as they are and who should be in this one measure from which politics should be divorced, it is humanly possible. The only way in which this bill can be changed for the better is for the General Assembly to provide the appropriation for the penitentiary and the money that is done the better for the state.

DELIGHTFUL OCCASION

Actna Life Insurance Agents Here from Pea Dee and Pine Bluffs. Delivered—Three Million Gall Spots for this Year—Next in Sparta or Florence.

On Thursday, February 3rd, Actna's connection with the Actna Life Insurance Company, comprised of twenty-nine counties of the northern part of South Carolina, met at the office of the General Agent, Mr. C. C. Edwards, for an agency meeting. The purpose of the meeting being to set individual quotas for each agent and to arrive at a goal for 1927.

A most interesting and inspirational meeting was held at six o'clock P. M. in the office of the General Agent, presided over by Mr. S. M. Carson, of Actna Life Insurance Company for the State of Georgia, which is one of the most successful of agencies. Mr. Carson brought before this group of Actna-ites some very interesting facts, impressing in his most eloquent and convincing manner the importance of the agents realization of the responsibility of their vocation. In speaking of service the agent has to render, Mr. Carson compared the insurance business with the ministry of the gospel.

The meeting was held at a higher calling than the insurance agent for whereas the minister insures the souls of his flock, the insurance agent insures the safety of the family, home, business and country. Mr. Carson also gave some general instructions to the agents. The representative of the company, expressed upon his personal experience as a General Agent, urging each agent to thoroughly understand himself with his business.

The quotas were next set and a goal of Three Million Dollars for 1927 was set. This meeting was brought to a close by a dialogue between Mr. Carson and Mr. James E. Rappala, Actna representative for the district. Illustrating an interview between an agent and a prospect, relative to the solicitation and selling of a monthly insurance contract. This was very instructive and much enjoyed.

After the adjournment of this meeting, the agents and their families gathered at the Chester Hotel where they were tendered a most delightful and appetizing banquet. The evening was spent as toastmaster. After a few appropriate remarks, he introduced the speakers of the occasion, Mr. M. M. Carson, Captain J. C. Glenn, Jr., of Chester, and Mr. George D. Brown of Greenville, former agency supervisor of the Chester General Agent.

Mr. Carson again delivered his listeners with a fine address of hope which the spirit of optimism pervaded, urging loyalty, hard work and honest efforts as an antidote for the present business depression throughout the country. He spoke out the need for protection and spreading cheer and inspiration to his audience.

Captain Glenn in his courteous and pleasant manner, extended welcome to the Actna representatives to Chester, speaking of the appropriateness of Chester being the office of the General Agent for the upper part of South Carolina, telling of the railroad center, highway centers, and the fact that Chester is an ideal location for just such an office, centrally located between the Piedmont and Pee Dee sections of the State. Captain Glenn also struck the keynote of optimism and loyalty, commending the organization for their fine work and the confidence placed upon them by the insurance giving their best to their work.

Mr. Brown, in a few words, spoke of his pleasure of meeting with the agency organization, and recommended to each agent hard work, fair play and a clean, life, and important to the success of the business. He urged each agent to meet only reaching their goal but living the life worth while as a citizen of their country.

These three addresses brought to a close the convention, the next to be held at either Spartanburg or Florence, the place being set as a result of contest now under way between the Pee Dee section and the Piedmont section.

The Actna meeting is under the supervision of Agency Supervisor Edwin F. Brooks, of Florence, and the Piedmont section is supervised by Agency Supervisor S. Leard Huggins, of Spartanburg, the losing side to give the winner a banquet.

FARMER WRITES.

An Old Farmer Told of His Tosses and Tribulations of Farming—Says Now Selling About the Styles.

Mr. Editor: I have been thinking some time of writing you an enjoyable paper. I am now enjoying reading Sam Snodgrass' views on public matters. I see he is writing on subjects close down here in Columbia to represent Chester county but I am sure that you are in the way of tax reduction. I am sure you can do much to help the farmer in the way of tax reduction. I know each of them well and they are interested in farming like myself.

I see our Governor says he is going to carry out his campaign promises as best as he can. Now, Mr. Editor, I believe I have John G. H. going to do that. I have known and admired him for many years. I am sure he will do as good as he can. I am sure he will do as good as he can. I am sure he will do as good as he can. I am sure he will do as good as he can.

Some farmers for one reason or another have missed several years of farming. I see lots of empty tenant houses. Lots of farms are not going to be worked this year. I see the land is a loss with the ministry of the gospel.

THE CHESTER NEWS

J. M. Ferguson Dead. Says The Rock Hill Herald of yesterday: John Mills Ferguson, 76, residing near Rock Hill and community as "Dad" Ferguson, died at a local hospital about 3:15 o'clock this morning, following a period of ill health for several months, his condition becoming critical yesterday. He was taken to a hospital Friday here to receive medical treatment without success.

Mr. Ferguson had served as Community Demonstrator of the United Fruit Company for thirteen years, where he was held in high esteem. Funeral services will be held Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at West End Baptist church, of which Mr. Ferguson was a charter member. Rev. T. A. Snyder, assisted by other pastors of the city will officiate.

Mr. Ferguson was married to Mrs. Rebecca Ann McCollough of Chester county, who survives with the following children: Hall Ferguson, Earl Ferguson, Mrs. Charlie Stolt, Mrs. Day Waddy, Mrs. E. M. Gregory, Mrs. E. J. C. Nunn, all of Rock Hill; Mrs. J. A. Broadnax, of Mt. Holly, N. C., and Mrs. L. W. King, of Clinton. He is also survived by the following brothers and sisters: R. H. Ferguson, Spartanburg; Mrs. E. L. McCullough, Rock Hill, and Mrs. J. H. McArthur, Miami, Fla.

He was born and starting for the western part of the city. The nurse's screams attracted attention at the spot. Wood road. As it reached the end of the street car line she leaped from the flying machine, striking her head against the pavement. Physicians say that while she received grave injuries about the head she has a chance to recover. It is also reported that a reduction in acreage will take place in keeping with the price of the staple.

The answer is a simple one, namely that he who is concerned is not found that he had been drinking. Beam abandoned the car and caught a taxi back to the city after the accident. It was learned.

COTTON

13.00. The cotton market reversed its upward course at the opening Monday under influence of easier Liverpool cables and absence of bulls over weak end news, and values were trimmed moderately.

Opening levels at New York were 8 to 11 points under Saturday's close, while New Orleans opened 2 to 10 points lower and Chicago opened 8 to 12 points lower.

After the call selling tapered off and the market rallied a few points in New York, with March selling at 12.75 and May 13.00. July sold at 14.25, and December and January sold at 14.61.

J. S. Bechtel & Company, in their latest summary of the cotton situation, comments on the acreage question as follows: "We have had considerable inquiry regarding the probable reduction, if any, in acreage, from our friends on this side and also from our friends abroad. This question is causing considerable apprehension and concern among the trade. We find many of the leading cotton growers in the United States at 14 or over will not help to bring about the reduction that the trading world and the trade facts militantly stabilizing future contracts at these or higher levels."

The summary of the reports to the committee of the Southern Cotton Conference, show with few exceptions that committees widely distributed throughout the belt are using the best efforts available in their power to bring about a banking source to bring about a drastic reduction. While their reduction appear greatly exaggerated as to 25 to 35 per cent acreage, it is also reported that a reduction in acreage will take place in keeping with the price of the staple.

"COST PRICE EDUCATION"

Are the colleges of America making a mistake in selling education to students at far below cost? Trevor Arnett, said to be an authority on college finance, thinks that they are. At a meeting of the American Association of Colleges in Chicago last week Mr. Arnett, who was formerly vice president of the Chicago and who is now with the Rockefeller Foundation, urged that college tuition fees ought to be raised for a number of reasons.

At present, Mr. Arnett said, student fees in American colleges are only 21 per cent of the tuition for current expenses. The colleges must get two-thirds of the money they require from endowments or from some other outside source, such as State appropriations. What Mr. Arnett recommends is that the tuition fees should be gradually raised, until they approach the actual cost of education. Special arrangements being made to lend the money they need to educate students who are unable to pay in full.

The plan undoubtedly has merit and its adoption would have wholesome results in many ways. As Mr. Arnett says, both parents and students would better understand what "college" education costs, and since they would have to pay for it or make arrangements to do so, the desire to obtain education would more likely be a serious one.

The Christian Science Monitor quotes Dean Randall of Brown University as offering this summary of the "unhappy result" of the present method of financing colleges: "We are turning out the most valuable product in the world for one-third cost. The world will not appreciate the product until it pays a price comparable to that of other desired things."

A bill has been introduced in the South Carolina General Assembly which would abolish the State Tax Commission. The bill is said to be the most unpopular part of the government.

The idea of the bill is to put the duties of the Tax Commission's office on the Comptroller General. This plan, it must be admitted, will make the office one of "naughty politics." The News feels to see the wisdom of putting "the duties" of the Tax Commission off on someone else it will be the same thing only different, to use a common expression.

There are doubtless many things in connection with the Tax Commission which are not popular with the people and the thing to do, as the News sees it, is to straighten out the Tax Commission but to do so, let's keep politics out of it as much as possible.

Cleveland, O., girl, twice rescued from drowning in Lake Erie, was drowned in a bath tub...

Perhaps the law-making bodies think we need an assortment of new laws because the old ones are being broken so rapidly.

Cincinnati meat vender did not give bandits a very warm reception so they locked him in his icebox.

Even in these days of prohibition, a man may become intoxicated with his own egotism.

Model husbands, so a satisfied wife tells us, are not built for speed.

Babies and rations seldom perform when you want them to.

Don't take your business troubles home or your domestic troubles to work, says an efficiency expert.

We read that a man wore his wife's garter by mistake for necktie, and there are other men who have their wife's halter around their neck.

Even if you have to "stretch a point," you shouldn't hesitate to stand by anything that is an asset to your home community.

It's always the part of wisdom to beware of engaging alliances, as Edward Browning and Charlie Chaplin will testify.

Political differences are the life of representative government. It's political indifference that is the cause of the country.

Americanism: Increasing the death rate by disease and increasing it with automobiles.

It's not so long ago that no one was ever accused of being crooked except the umpire.

BIG THINGS IN LIFE.

A study of the life of any successful man shows that he achieved great things because he kept steadily before him fixed principles by which he was guided.

They were the persistence of the pleasure of working, the clarity of simplicity, the worth of character, the power of kindness, the influence of example, the obligation of duty, the wisdom of economy, the virtue of patience, the improvement of talent and the joy of originating.

There is nothing extraordinary about a man who adheres to such a life program. A community with a fair sprinkling of men of this kind would soon stand ahead of all its competitors and stand out as a model for all others to emulate.

Nothing retards a community so much as selfishness and other negative characteristics that are destructive among its leaders.

DR. WALKER DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Venerable Head of Cedar Springs, S. C., died suddenly at his home at Cedar Springs, Feb. 4.

Dr. Walker, 72 years of age, was apparently in good health yesterday and this morning was about his duties as usual when he was suddenly stricken.

As a result of the untiring efforts and the interest in the welfare of the nation, Dr. Walker brought the South Carolina Institute for the Deaf and Blind to rank among the foremost of the United States and as a reward for his efforts had been signally honored not only by his own state but among the leading educators throughout the nation.

Dr. Walker was born in Spartanburg, January 13, 1845. He received his early education in the common schools of the county and was prepared for his sophomore year at the South Carolina college at Cedar Springs Academy.

Mr. Poultry-Man:

If you are interested in Chickens, if you have only one chicken or a thousand it will pay you to read every word of this.

If you have ever bought dairy feed the very first thing you want to know is what per cent of protein the feed contains, because the higher protein feeds produce more milk. It's the protein that counts and the protein that counts.

Are you getting what you are paying for? All feed manufacturers make a wide difference in price according to the amount of protein a dairy feed contains.

This same thing applies to Laying Mash. The higher the protein contents of a bag of Laying Mash the more it should cost the consumer. Most manufacturers make a wide difference in price, depending on the protein contents of the Mash.

Read what Mr. C. L. Morgan, head of the Poultry Division, Clemson College, says: "Protein issued by the hen to produce a large part of the solid material of the egg and grow feathers and make muscle and bone-pan." Therefore you can readily appreciate the value of the higher protein feeds.

Does it require a different mash for the North than South? There has been quite a lot of discussion recently about this. Here is what Mr. Arthur Gannon, Manager of the S. E. Egg Laying Contest, McCormick, S. C., says regarding this: "I do not believe that it requires a different mash in the South than that used in the North, but I do believe that the proportion of scratch to mash will be different. This scratch grain which is made up largely of corn, is an energy and fuel producing feeds.

"In very cold weather the hens will naturally eat more scratch grain. Therefore in the north where the weather is much more severe, it is only natural to expect that the proportion of scratch grain to mash for the year will be greater than in the South."

These are facts, and we are willing to leave the
