SIGRID ONEGIN TO SING AT WINTHROP

Well-Known Singer is Making Eighth American Tour—Is Versatile Singer

Mrs. Sigrid Oegin, world famous contralto, with a voice that ranges from contralto's lowest note to a soprano's high C, will be heard in a recital in the Winthrop College auditorium Monday evening, February 1, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. Oegin is singing in her eighth American tour.

Mrs. Oegin arrived in New York in January, where she gave two recitals to capacity houses. She is one of the few singers whose concerts are always crowded. Every paper, without exception, echoed the opinion that Sigrid Oegin is the world's premier contralto, a matchless musician, and worthy of the sold-out houses which greet her.

The Richmond News-Leader says of her: "She is the incarnation of the great art of song. Her voice is a noble and finely controlled contralto, with the range of a soprano and the fluency of a coloratura singer. In texture, it is deep and colorful as old velvet shod with gold, and its resources of power are limitless."

Mrs. Oegin's home is outside of Berlin in the beautiful suburb of Charlottenburg, where she lives with her husband, Dr. Frensdorf, and her small son, Peter. During the opera season Mrs. Oegin is busy in Berlin. Her American tour beginning in January lasts three months. She then returns to sing in the music festivals of Europe.

Mrs. Oegin made her debut in Berlin, singing in "Carmen." The third time she sang "Carmen," Caruso was the Don Jose. In 1922 she made her debut in America with the Philadelphia Orchestra at Carnegie Hall, where she was hailed as the greatest recital singer of the age.

On singer on the concert stage to-day is more truly international by birth and association than Mrs. Oegin. Her father was a French citizen of German extraction, her mother born in the Rhineland of Huguenot extraction. She herself was born in Stockholm. Her first husband was a Russian courtier, and Dr. Frensdorf is an Austrian. Mrs. Oegin speaks fluent French, German, Swedish, Italian, and English.

For her eighth American tour, Mrs. Oegin has arranged her usual general program containing numbers carefully selected to demonstrate her marvelous interpretative powers, the great range of her voice and her versatile artistry.

Literary Society Programs Held

Since the Buffalo trip has aroused so much interest, it was a fitting topic for the literary society programs Saturday night. Aside from the other good things this conference has accomplished, it has made Winthrop realize that it is related to the outside world, and that it is a real link in the chain of affairs.

As Mary Nancy Daniels and Martha Stuart were both representatives of the Querry Society, they will hold together all the interesting things that happened at Buffalo.

"The Trip to Niagara Falls" was the subject of Lucile Acker's talk to Winthrop Literary Society. After that, there was a vocal duet by Blanche and Rosa Carroll. Elizabeth Bell told of the beautiful pageant at Buffalo, as it is the most wonderful event from the standpoint of beauty.

Music Recital Given Wednesday, Jan. 13

A very interesting recital was given on Wednesday, January 13, in Music Hall auditorium. The following numbers were played:

- Suite in D Minor (D'Albert)—Edna Thompson.
- At Evening (Widor)—Eileen Pritchard.
- Dance Andalous (MacDowell)—Beth Knight.
- Scherzo (Polonogov)—Lillian Pitts Vales (Lortie)—Marie Taylor.
- To a Waterlily (MacDowell)—Sarah Olson.
- Nocturne (Schumann)—Zola Bishop.
- Op. 9 (Schumann)—Jeanette Perry.
- Poems in D Major (Schumann)—Mary Cobb.

The Johnscsonian will not appear during Examination Week. The next issue will be published February 6.

FIFTH GRADE GIVES PROGRAM ON HEALTH

Children Of Training School Class Express Views Of Health In Their Own Way

In chapel on Thursday, January 11, the fifth grade of the Winthrop Training School presented an enjoyable program on Sleep and Rest. The program was an expression of the things which the fifth grade learned about health during Health Week.

Helen Graham read the scripture lesson which Betty Bridges, Doris Keller, Marguerite Wannamaker, Marion Logan, Ethel Egan, Georgia Terry, Mary Sellers, and Rosa Sims sang "Slumber Song." The class then sang a health song.

Ed Bass, Jr. made an excellent chairman on the occasion. After the song by the class, he spoke on the importance of sleep and rest.

A number of the members of the class presented health rhymes which they had collected or written during Health Week. These were: Betty Bridges, Rebecca Sealy, Catherine Williams, Paul McCarty, William Bradford, Bobby Jones, Jr., Helena Graham, Rosa Sims, Marguerite Wannamaker, Martha Spenser, Harry Sturgis, Arthur Thrushkill, and Mary Sellers.

George Terry, and Betty Bridges, and Doris Keller recited poems on health.

The final number was a play, "The Land of Never Sleep." The hero of the play was a little boy who never wanted to go to bed early and who wanted to go to the Land of Never Sleep, where he would never have to sleep. When his parents wanted to go to bed at 8:30, he insisted that his mother put him to bed in his own bed. Instead he sat down in a hard chair. And soon he was fast asleep dreaming of the Land of Never Sleep! He didn't like it at all, though, for there he was never allowed to rest or sleep and, therefore, soon became very tired. When he awoke, he realized the need of sleep and rest, of a nice warm bed every night, and other good habits of health, so he determined never to break the laws of good health again. Arthur Thrushkill played this play.

The other characters in the play were: Paul McCarty, Mary Sellers, Martha Hoffman, Tom Creed, Henry Jackson, Charles Jackson, Lily Whitely, Emeline Garrison, Marion Arcech, Marguerite Wannamaker, Bobby Jones, Jr., Ella Linsberger, Rosa Sims, Deva McCarter, and Hamilton Dix.

During Health Week a number of the pupils also made up the poem on Health.

Student Music Recital Held on January 20th

The program of the student music recital given on Wednesday, January 20, was varied and charming. Voice, violin, and piano numbers were rendered with splendid understanding and skillful technique. The following numbers were given:

- Ogiva in G minor (Handel)—Willis Sanders.
- Rigaudon (MacDowell)—Edith Gorsam.
- Winter Echoes (Hovell)—Mary Moss.
- Nocturns (Grieg)—Eileen Scott.
- Note and the Lonely Heart (Tchikowsky). The Sea (MacDowell)—Jehanna Duplay.
- Oriente (Op.)—Almeda Wyatt.
- Berendse (Driego)—Lucille Acker.
- Scherzo (Mendelssohn)—Dorothea Chasno.
- Central of Autumn (Barbour)—Lois Gordon.
- Absent (Baker)—Virginia De Anicchia.
- I Light the Blessed Candles (Proctor). Spring Comes Laughing (Grove)—Elizabeth Dentler.
- Freading in Berilla (Niemann)—Anne Thompson.
- Autumn (Moszkowski)—Olafsky Lee.

Winthrop graduates who have visited on the campus this week are: Isabel Byrd, who teaches in Clatskanie, Elizabeth Caldwell, Irene and Norma Kassel.

BISHOP FINLAY TO SPEAK HERE

Brought Here Under Auspices of the Senior Order—To Speak in Johnson Hall Sunday

At five o'clock Sunday afternoon in the Johnson Hall auditorium, Bishop K. O. Finlay will speak to a Winthrop audience. He will talk directly to Winthrop girls on subjects of vital interest to them. Bishop Finlay is well qualified to address students on such subjects. He will discuss religion in its present day application and with the idea of successfully facing the problems which confront us. All Winthrop girls are invited to hear this address.

Bishop Finlay comes here Sunday under the auspices of the Senior Order. His visit to Winthrop has been arranged by the Senior Order in an attempt to provide for all students something especially worthwhile on Sunday afternoon.

In connection with this endeavor, and previous to this occasion, two addresses have been made. Mr. John Thompson Brown talked on "The Women of the Bible," and Mrs. James P. Kinard gave a most interesting discussion of "The Present Day Woman."

After Bishop Finlay's address, Dr. and Mrs. James P. Kinard will entertain at supper in their home. The guests will be Bishop Finlay, the Senior Order, Dea. G. W. G. and Mrs. B. Y. Tyler, Miss Eliza Wardlaw, Miss Agnes Dibble, Miss Zana Wilson, and Miss Minnie Stollings.

DIETETICS CLASS IN NUTRITION PROJECT

During the past three months, the class in advanced Dietetics under the supervision of Miss Mary Bell has been carrying on some very interesting feeding experiments with white rats. These experiments were to show the effect of certain deficiencies in the diet upon growth and development of young animals. White rats are particularly satisfactory subjects for these studies, as they react to diet in much the same way as do human beings.

At the beginning of the study, the young animals were separated into groups of two, each group receiving a different diet. One group was fed an adequate diet, containing all factors known to be essential to normal growth and development. This was done in order that the effects of the deficient diets could be more clearly seen by comparison with normal animals of the same age. Each of the remaining groups received a diet which lacked some particular essential. Careful records were kept of the gain or loss of weight from day to day, and of the amount of food consumed by the animals during the course of the study.

One phase of the experiment of particular interest has been the development of pellagra in two of the rats after several weeks of a diet consisting of corn meal, molasses and salt pork—foods which are found to predominate in the diets of those individuals who are commonly afflicted with this condition. While this diet is poor in several respects, it is notably lacking in Vitamin B, the pellagra-preventive vitamin found in red meats, green vegetables, and milk. Yeast is a particularly rich source of this vitamin also. The two rats which received this "typical pellagra diet" lost weight gradually but constantly, and after six weeks of this treatment began to shed their hair in spots, finally to lose control of their muscles, and to exhibit (Continued on page four.)

McCormick Winthrop Chapter Is Organized

On Monday, January 18, at 3:30 o'clock, Miss Lella A. Russell, secretary of the Winthrop Alumnae Association, met with a group of Winthrop graduates at the home of Miss Julia Brown in McCormick, B. C., for the purpose of organizing a chapter of Winthrop Daughters there.

Miss Russell talked to the group about the advantage of a chapter of the Alumnae Association, after which officers were elected.

Mrs. Frank Mathison (Dulles Cooper) was elected president; Mrs. C. B. Brown, formerly Annie Walker, was chosen vice-president, and Miss Elsie Dorn, secretary and treasurer. Miss Elizabeth Johnston was elected gleaser.

A. A. U. W. MEETS IN INTERESTING SESSION

Miss Anna Stevens and Miss Helen Diller Are Speakers at January Meeting Held Thursday

The Rock Hill Branch of the American Association of University Women held its January meeting Thursday afternoon in Johnson Hall, with Mrs. Maggiana, the president, in the chair.

After the business session an interesting and instructive program on "England" was given by Miss Helen Diller and Miss Stevens. Miss Diller spoke entertainingly of her trip to England, recounting some of her personal experiences, stating some of her impressions, and describing some of the "hot spots" in the maddest covered, yet rich in literary associations. Some of the places mentioned by Miss Diller were: Woodbury Hall, scene of the famous Greenhill Fair in "Par From the Madding Crowd"; Coris Castle, where the "Red Rover" was captured by his stepmother, Elfrida, in "Hob"; here also was the hunting lodge of King John, who liked to stay there; Dorchester, the birthplace of Thomas Hardy; Dorchester, mentioned by Keats; Dartmouth, which still bears traces of early Saxon occupation; Talnoek home of Sir Francis Drake; the supposed birthplace of Arthur; Shelley and Harriet Westbrook's home; Neither on the Wye; Goodrich, where Wordsworth wrote "We Are Seven"; home of John Keats, celebrated by Pope in one of his moral essays; Kew-wood, made famous by Southey; Wordsworth, Coleridge, Keats, and Coleridge; and Mrs. Stevens gave a brief but interesting sketch of the educational system of England. Some of the schools of the twelfth century, she said, the speaker, are provided and maintained by the local board of education; some are provided by private groups and friends and are maintained by the board of education, which secures its grants from Parliament. The elementary schools, said Mrs. Stevens, are established for children from five to fourteen years of age. There are also three grades of school for the mentally defective, schools for the totally blind, for the partially blind, and for the totally deaf, and non-graded schools for tubercular children. Central schools, offering either a commercial or an industrial training, are established for those who are unable to attend ordinary schools and who begin work at an early age. Public schools—a manse—where are boarding schools, like Rugby, Eton, and others, are for boys from twelve to college age. These schools are primarily boarding schools, maintained, with the speaker, and lead to college entrance. Miss Stevens stated that there are eighty-seven Training colleges for prospective teachers in elementary schools. Two-year and three-year courses are offered; academic and professional subjects almost equally divided. According to the speaker, some of the best training schools for teachers of kindergarten and of home economics are found in England.

Miss Stevens said that seventy-four per cent of the elementary teachers are trained in these residence training colleges, which are connected with universities, such as University of London, University of Exeter, and others, twenty in number. These new universities developed during the last century as a result of the popular demand for education after the industrial revolution, and are attended largely by women. These training centers offer a two to three-year course for elementary teachers, and a three to four year course for secondary teachers. They give the regular bachelor's degree and one year of professional training.

In England, education is compulsory for children from five to fourteen years old. In London alone there are three hundred attendance officers to enforce the law. Despite bad weather and epidemic, attendance is from 85 to 90 per cent.

The teachers, said Miss Stevens, are drawn mainly from families of the higher artisans, retail traders and minor professional classes. These teachers are usually very healthy and very capable. Their position is more stable than that of teachers in this country. Capability and proper decorum insure (Continued on page four.)

Marionettes Perform Here This Afternoon and Night

Students Adopt New Study Hour

Virginia Smith Reads Request on All Student Government Meeting Friday Night

The new plan for "Quiet Hour" was again the topic at the student government meeting Friday, January 22, at 8:30 in the college auditorium. Dr. Kinard was present for this meeting. The Minutes Committee, headed by Virginia Smith, president of the Student Government Association, presided. All members of the board were seated on the stage.

Miss Smith read the following resolutions concerning "Quiet Hour":

1. "Quiet Hour" is to have, first, a period of trial at Winthrop.
2. The privilege of this new method of observing "Quiet Hour" may be removed from any one or more dormitories in which it does not work successfully.
3. "Don't Disturb" signs are to be observed. It is polite and kind to recognize the "don't disturb" of your friends.
4. A board member may enter a room with a "don't disturb" sign.
5. Students must be careful to remove these signs when they are not in use.
6. Unnecessary noise in the hall or in a room may be a call-down.
7. All people in a room at the time of the unnecessary noise receive a call-down.
8. "Three call-downs within a period of two months means a call-up before the board. The two month period is to date from the first call down of the individual.
9. Students having the privilege of "Quiet Hour" removed from them must stay in their rooms from 6:30 till 9:30. No girl may visit these students.
10. Proctors: The function of proctors to change and the board member is to have charge of lights. The proctors are to assist in the observance of order and quietness during "Quiet Hour."
11. The 10:30 bell is to be both the light bell and the room bell. The bell at 10:30 is to continue to ring as a warning.
12. Students must be in their rooms and have lights out when the 10:30 bell rings.
13. Lights not being out at 10:30 will mean a call-down.
14. There must be no sitting on trunks or in doorways after 10:30.
15. Miss Smith said she thought all students would agree that this plan was an improvement on the old one if only for the reason that the student body was given an opportunity to show itself responsible.

A vote was taken on the plan which the students adopted the new "Quiet Hour" unanimously.

Cards with "Quiet Hour" printed on them are being given out today. The new plan will go into effect Monday night, January 23, since this is the first night of examination week, it will be an excellent time to prove the value of the new arrangement.

There will be a matinee performance at 3 o'clock this afternoon in the auditorium featuring Tony Sarg's Marionettes in "Alice in Wonderland," and an evening show at 8 o'clock presenting "The Rose and the Ring."

All holders of entertainment course tickets may attend both plays. Adults not holding the course tickets will be charged 50 cents for each performance. Children will be charged 25 cents for matinee.

Both of these Marionette performances are filled with delightful humor and will keep the audience bowling with laughter. Students and faculty are promised a recess from examination worries and "depression" thoughts. The Marionettes consist of two of the puppets and the "Tender" illustrations of "Alice in Wonderland," set some of the most illustrious passages of modern civilization juggling and speaking—Alice of the white apron, blue dress and good company manners; the White Rabbit and the Duchess, teary folk; the Walrus and the Carpenter, whose singing has a Gilbert and Sullivan flavor; the Mad Hatter, whose heart was on the right side, and the tortoise Queen, such strange people! To hear them talk brings astonishment. The Fish Footman is deep Bloombury. The Griffin is cockney. The Carpenter continues a super-Harvard accent whenever he has to say "cabbages." As for Alice, she is a very polite little girl who says "oh" in high soprano tones when her sock expands to alarming proportions, and who suffers with well-learned restraint into a dew-kicker, and calls off with the Mad Hatter.

In "The Ring and the Rose," Thackeray's delicious nonsense takes place at the court of King Valorous XXIV of Prilegnau, a personage of that name, who has usurped the kingdom from his pliantive nephew, Prince Bulbo. The fairy Blackstick, refused entrance to the christening of Valorous's daughter, the Princess Angelfish, turns the porter, Jerome Griffinsuff, into a dew-kicker, and nails him up at the palace portal. Angelfish possesses a magic ring which invests the wearer with beauty; woeing her comes Prince Bulbo with a rose that makes him attractive to the ladies.

How the ring passes from possessor to possessor and how the gentlemen follow it finally to have it settle on the hand of the most unexpected young lady. All these are diverting high-light in this amusing romance.

Three Marionette performances are as entertaining as a Broadway play and as funny as a circus.

College Orchestra Presents Programs

The Winthrop College Orchestra, having presented two highly appreciated programs in chapel before the holidays, has settled down to serious work on their annual concert, planned for the first week of April. Outstanding among the numbers on the program are "Concerto" in four movements, by Paganini, a beautiful work in the old classic form dating back 200 years; and "Overture" to the Messiah by Handel, a stately introduction befitting that famous oratorio. Mary Dorothy Clawson will be violin soloist and Marie Taylor piano soloist. An especially interesting number will be "Miserere" by Mr. Core, which he has dedicated to "My Winthrop Orchestra."

MUSIC TEACHERS OF STATE TO MEET

Lecture, Round Table Discussion To Be Features Of Gathering Here February 1

The State Music Teachers Association will hold a meeting at Winthrop on February 1. The president of the association this year is Mr. Mayfair Scholten of English. For the past two seasons Mr. Robert, Director of Music at Winthrop, was president. The association will hold its meetings in Johnson Hall.

The morning session will be devoted mainly to a lecture by Mr. Percy Scholten, an English musician and authority on the appreciation of music. At noon, a banquet will be served in Johnson Hall.

In the afternoon, round table discussions, or clinics, on voice, violin, piano, and public school music will be held. Students will sing or play for the various clinics, and the teachers will discuss their work.

The evening will be devoted to the recital, an artistic course number, by Mrs. M. Oegin, famous contralto.

Dean Tyner Speaks To Education Club

At the regular meeting of the Secondary Education Club, Thursday afternoon, January 21, at 4:45 in Johnson Hall, Dean Tyner gave a report of Southern Association of Secondary Schools, which proved very interesting.

Included in the program was a round table discussion, plans for the year's program and jokes by Emily Brothers.

EDUCATION VS. INFORMATION

She's educated now. Thus do some people designate a college graduate. But let's check up. How many are really educated? And how many are merely "informed"?

DISARMAMENT

Four billion, one hundred fifty-seven million dollars—are those figures significant to you for other reasons than their vastness? They should be. That is the sum which armaments now cost the nations annually.

Within ten days delegates from sixty-three nations will meet in Geneva, February 2, for the purpose of reducing the cost of armaments. The opinions of those delegates must be representative of the peoples they represent.

Regardless of what the outcome of this World Conference will be, resolve in your own mind to take a stand on disarmament. This occasion will not end the question.

Students the world over are in verbal arms against arms of war. They are vitally interested in each issue that will be raised in Geneva. Vassar girls have adopted the custom of wearing green skirts to symbolize their peaceful war and campaign against modern warfare.

"Nationalism was very useful in an old world, as feudalism was useful in a still older world, but now that the world has become so small the narrow kind of nationalism is out of date. It must be fundamentally improved though not abolished altogether, like feudalism.

QUIET HOUR

The administration, which is always working to make study facilities better for the students of Winthrop, has, with the assistance of the president of the Student Government Association, Virginia Smith, presented a new plan to the students concerning the study period at night.

This new plan, which was accepted by an overwhelming majority vote of the students Friday night, allows students to go to each other's rooms at night provided that a "quiet" sign is not on the door they wish to enter.

Of course, as was to be expected, there are many on the campus who are predicting failure; they are crying that it "won't work, that bedlam will reign, and that we will never do any work."

But this plan of having a "quiet hour" will work! We, as college students, have intelligence enough to know how to accept a change and how to adjust ourselves accordingly.

RAMBLING WITH THE FEATURISTS

DEFEATING DEPRESSION

Do you remember what the College Cat said about the time for "making music"? Now there is something of a "first aid" to the situation: clothes. They are so essential to femininity as pride and beauty. Clothes—the right type gives a person a comfortable, poised feeling, while the wrong type makes one feel miserably unbecomingly, self-conscious, and conspicuous.

Victi Baum says that "If a man has to make his choice between two women, he always chooses the one who is always—even if he seldom does it consciously. Not only in love, but also in the business world."

SHADOWS ON THE WALL

Shadow on the wall! Did you ever stop to think how much you have little that phrase may mean? The other evening as I sat at my desk between the lamp and the wall, I suddenly felt that there was someone in the room with me.

But, honestly, haven't you had somewhat the same experience? I've heard of children being scared of their shadows, and now I know there must be something to it. Shadows are funny things. When I was a little girl, someone told me that my shadows were reflections of me in the past and in the future.

All of us can not traverse the globe like—well, let's say George Bernard Shaw—but we can see the shadow of what he has seen by reading what he has written. Now can we by any means turn back the curtain of time and live again the life of a Henry Edmund, but we can enjoy Thackeray's pictures of it.

plantation days of old Carolina. But Thomas Nelson Page helps us to enjoy the experiences of the "old darbies" by telling the stories as he knew them. Then there are the friends we know and the acquaintances we make in this land of shadows.

WITCHCRAFT OR NOT?

(This article, written in the vernacular, sets forth the results of a complete census among forty average Winthrop girls.) Do you know, ungentle reader, that Winthrop girls practice a sacred and honorable branch of witchcraft? Yes, sir (or should I say "mam," since this is Winthrop, no man's land and every woman's province?), the cosmetic art, which was in dark antiquity, was probably your ancestor's religion, and, later, quite the reverse—erect; by the twentieth century estimate it is a feminine art.

According to statistics (be not afraid—I shan't quote a too formidable list of dry-as-dust figures), Winthrop students use 810 pounds and five ounces of powder every year; almost a ton and a half of cleansing cream; 770 pounds of face cream; 2,220 pounds of skin cream, lotion, etc.; 1,586 pounds of soap; 1,817 pounds of bath powder; and 1,265 pounds of rouge.

There, the worst is over; the medicine wasn't so bad as you think. Apparently, can absorb and "assimilate" almost unlimited quantities of powder—and don't forget that a uniform requires a generous quantity of white, too, during each session with your powder puff.

The girls spend time and effort in the upkeep of the famous Winthrop beauty. The average Winthrop girl powder her nose seven times a day, at least twice a face twice. In scrupulous regard for personal appearance, she "makes up" twice a day. She usually acquires a finger-wave about once a week—it only costs her 10 and 3-4 cents. Other investigations show that this normal creature ordinarily doesn't use perfume—but, when she does, it's Coty's (and probably her roommate's!).

Her preferred powder is Coty's, also, with Armand as a close runner-up. She adores "Etude Lipstick"—but records show that a blondest state exists in one-twentieth of our number—the condition of unruined lips! She proves her sense of thrift in her choice of perfume as her favorite cleaning cream—if she uses that article. She scorns foundation cream for Jergens' or Hind's lotion. She applies Armand's rouge with loving little pat, and she is careful to soothe those bony cheeks in a lotion at least once a day.

Since these figures show the overwhelming popularity of cosmetics on our campus, let's, Winthrop daughters, powder—and paint! L. A.

"BULL SESSION"

"Please Do Not Disturb" blazes forth in commanding letters on a door from which tones issue suggesting revelry and high spirits. "Beware the Bull" would probably tell the tale. Behind this closed door the all famous "bull session" is being carried on; and the intention of this modest article is to expose the innermost secrets of this mystery of mysteries.

our supper, dinner, or breakfast, I once had." This speech always carries in its wake a very "moving" effect; everyone immediately adjourns for a few minutes' recess at the "little store."

Now—our session has changed into a Truth Meeting. It first begins with a series of "honest confessions." Now the members have grown animated, and their cheeks glow rosily. Each is the leader of the time novel scores heavily in this mighty combat. But, horrors! The subject has changed again. They are now telling the faults of each other. The session is fast becoming unmanageable. Research this meeting, and surgery, battle of mentalities arises a barb of sharp fury.

Probably you are wondering where all the powder goes: the human skin, apparently, can absorb and "assimilate" almost unlimited quantities of powder—and don't forget that a uniform requires a generous quantity of white, too, during each session with your powder puff.

CABINET MEETS

Since Tuesday was a holiday, the Y. W. Cabinet met Thursday afternoon at five o'clock in Johnson Hall.

FACULTY-STUDENT GROUP HOLDS FIRST MEETING

The Faculty-Student group, which has reorganized for this year, held its first meeting Wednesday night at 7 o'clock in the Music Room at Johnson Hall. The purpose of the group remains the same as last year: to discuss problems on the Winthrop campus. Faculty members are: Dean B. Y. Tyler, Dean Scudder, Miss Lincoln Todd, Carl the Pardue, Marie Jackson, Sarah Dorrith, Iva Gibson, and Olive Nettles. Miss Wardlaw was elected chairman of the group, Irene Todd secretary. It was decided that the group should meet at least once a week.

An interesting discussion was led by Dr. Allen.

WHAT EINSTEIN THINKS ABOUT WAR

(Because Albert Einstein is so well known as a scientist, his ideas on war are of unusual interest.)

"All the nations of the world are talking about disarmament. You must lead them to do more than talk. The people must take this matter out of the hands of statesmen and diplomats. They must grip it in their own hands."

"Those who think that the danger of war is made as living in a fool's paradise. We have to face today a militarism far more powerful and destructive than the militarism which brought the disaster of the Great War."

"You must call upon the workers of all countries unitedly to refuse to become the tool of death-dealing interests. There are young men in 12 countries who are resisting conscription by refusal to do military service. They are the pioneers of a warless world. Every sincere friend of peace must support them and help to arouse the moral convictions of the world against conscription."

"I appeal especially to the intellectuals of the world. I appeal to my fellow-scientists to refuse to co-operate in research for war purposes. I appeal to the preachers to seek truth and renounce national prejudices. I appeal to the men of letters to declare themselves unequivocally."

"I ask every newspaper which prides itself on supporting peace to encourage the people to refuse war service. I ask editors to challenge men of eminence and of influence by signing their bluntly, 'Where do you stand?' Must you wait for everyone else to disarm before you put down your weapons and hold out the hand of friendship?"

"This is no time for temporizing. You are either for war or against war. If you are for war, you must encourage science, finance, industry, religion and labor to exert their power to make your national armaments as efficient and deadly as they can be made. If you are against war, you must encourage them to resist it to the uttermost. I ask everyone who reads these words to make this great and definite decision."

"Let this generation take the greatest step forward ever made in the life of man. Let it contribute to those who follow the inextinguishable light of a world in which the barbarity of war has been forever renounced. We can do it if we will. It requires only that all who hate war shall have the courage to say that they will not have war."

"I appeal to all men and women, whether they be soldiers or humble, to declare before the World Disarmament Conference meets at Geneva in February that they will refuse to give any further assistance to war or to the preparation for war. I ask them to tell the governments this in writing, and to register their decision by informing me that they have done so, at War Resisters' International, 11 Abbey Road, Ebury, Middlesex, England."

(From letter to War Resisters' International Conference, August 1, 1915.)

Collegiate Exchange

We wish to correct a statement appearing in last week's exchange. The University of Mexico City, founded 1551, is the oldest in America instead of in the world.

Winthrop University announces that its department of sleeping juniors and seniors to control their own attendance at certain classes has resulted in a satisfactory scholastic showing, with as high grades as in the years when presence in class was required.—The Spectator, M. S. O. W.

The Davidson says that it would not be much of a gamble for some people to stake their past against their future. Well, the future does seem dark.—

The English may poke fun at our system of m. a. education, and say that examinations remind one of a group of sheep jumping a hurdle with the professors in the role of volitive snapping up the weas' (minded?), but we still hold that examinations do a lot of good. From personal experience we know that examinations stimulate a great deal of study that would otherwise be lost.—The Yellow Jacket Weekly, Randolph-Macon College.

The Boston University News states that fifteen years ago students voted a desire for military drill, and a well-esteemed current magazine (historical) tells us that today students renounce war methods.

The Indian, of Newberry College, says when a boy trades his fraternity pin for a girl, there must be something wrong with the pin. We're saying that when a boy doesn't trade his pin for a girl, there must be something wrong with the boy.

With two football games to write-up the sports writers turn to the picking of all-American, all-Southern, all-State, and other kinds of representative teams.—Davidsonian.

A reporter, interviewing prominent members of the student body received, among his answers, these: "A girl with bobbed hair is equally attractive to one whose hair is not bobbed. The lassiness that will come about in a girl's face when she has had her hair cut is efficiency"—Carl Gill. "A girl with bobbed hair is a wing-clipped chicken. She can never soar so high in man's estimation again."—E. D. Campbell—Ring-Tum Plo.

However, we may still exercise freedom in the flight of our fancy even though we are "wing-clipped chickens!"

According to The Carolinian, the National Student Federation of America is making plans for a limited number of students, under the personal leadership of prominent American educators, to tour Russia this coming summer. The purpose of the trip is to observe the Five Year Plan in industry, agriculture, and education. Information about the trip may be obtained from The Open Road, 20 West 43rd Street, New York.

Queens-Chelsea celebrated Founder's Day January 14, the 161st anniversary of the institution.

Massachusetts' commissioner of education urges formation of a Board of Education at Boston University. No cause for alarm—that was fifteen years ago.

"The Year Ago" day was observed at Carolina Monday. Everybody at the University was invited to contribute their ages in pennies on that day, in an effort to secure funds to continue building walls.

Forty thousand bricks and three hundred and fifty sacks of cement have been used already, and just as many more will be used yet before the program is completed. Although sponsored by a number of organizations and individuals, the project is a collective undertaking in the fullest sense.

From the Enkine Mirror we learn that the American Committee of International Student Service, in collaboration with the National Student Federation, is to make a survey of the field of student self-help in this country during the coming year.

The "hit-or-miss" American method by which individual students work their way through college on their own fails to meet the increasing need under the present economic conditions.

The Swanee Purple says it is high time that we found out what this business of college really is. It doesn't cost a thing to think precariously, at least it is the cheapest thing one can do at Swanee, and still there is a positive correlation between business depression and mental apathy.

Purman will have no debating team this year.

During the last ten years the "Hot Air Hurricane" scheduled 51 intercollegiate debates, traveled 9,000 miles, and rolled up 23 victories for one of the best records in the south.

Emory students have officially voted Norma Shearer their favorite movie actress. Greta Garbo received second choice, and Joan Crawford third.

The entering students at St. Thomas College, St. Paul, Minn., take out insurance policies against being called on in class. For a down payment of 25 cents they may collect $5 if the professor calls their names.—W. E. P. A.

Although the elections were held before Christmas perhaps some of you may be interested in a list of the class's favorites. Best League won two most coveted honors, best all round and most popular. Joe Dukes has four titles: most accommodating, most courteous, most unselfish, and most dependable. The rest of the list is as follows:

Last Friday at Presbyterian College, Fred Hambricht of the University of South Carolina was awarded the W. P. Jacobs trophy, for the best blocker and interference man in South Carolina intercollegiate football during the past season.

Miles Blunt, runner-up in the trophy competition and retiring captain of Carolina's team, and the coaches of the state, were present.

The following were in Laurens for the holiday: Clemence Thurg, Elizabeth Ballinger, Katherine Gandy, Irene Todd, Dorothy Horwood, and Sara Fletcher.

Seeing is Believing Judge—So your only defense is that you were drunk when you kissed this lady. How can you prove that?

Defendants—Well, just take a good look at her journal, judge.

DIETETICS CLASS IN NUTRITION PROJECT (Continued from page one) other items of general instability. When it was evident that their condition was serious, they were placed in a sanatorium and treated by different methods, some receiving a small amount of penicillin, the other having milk and green vegetables added to its diet. As a result, the most potent source of the vitamin, the fat reducing it has shown marked improvement in a sanatorium during the time. This is evidenced by a rapid gain in weight, as well as by a generally improved appearance and renewed vigor. The antacid receiving this method in a few days, due to the fact that these foods, while good sources of the vitamin, do not contain it in such large amounts as does the yeast. Another phase of the project has shown the effect on growth and on bone development of a diet lacking in Vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin," which is necessary for the normal formation of bones and teeth. The rats on this diet show the typical bone demineralization of rickets—swollen legs, enlarged joints and general lack of firmness. FOOD FOR THOUGHT Dr. Allen reports a number of interesting answers which were given by students to the questionnaires presented in the Physical Education Classes during Pasture Week. Among the 1,241 students who answered the questionnaires, 645 said that they had no bad habits of posture known to them, and 596 claimed in have good sitting positions. Only 147 were high heels during work hours, but, unfortunately, 463 claimed to have calluses, 362 hantches, and 149 painful aches.

On questions relating to fatigue, only 156 said they became fatigued before the average student. 174 said they did not feel rested when they awoke in the morning. With the exception of sixty students, Winthrop girls have good appetites. There were 101 girls who answered "no" to the question, "Do you sleep well?" That means there are 1,140 good sleepers at Winthrop.

In addition to the questionnaire on general health, there was one on personal hygiene. Answers to the questions reveal the following facts: there are 1,241 girls at Winthrop who eat three meals daily; there are 1,028 who eat between meals; 1,184 eat fruit every day; and 1,238 eat two vegetables a day, exclusive of potatoes. Only 831 report that they eat sweets in moderation and 955 admit that they eat too fast.

Among the 1,241 students who responded to the questionnaire, only 945 said that they get 9 hours of sleep every night; 1,429 said that they obtain at least a half hour outdoors daily; 1,421 said at least ten hours per week in recreation. Almost one hundred per cent of the Winthrop girls sleep with windows open at night. Only three girls sleep with their windows closed. This 141 of it a student body is guilty of worry. 833 girls said that they worry and 433 stated that they have some period fear. Among the fears listed, the fear of darkness is numbered high.

KNOXY-KLATTER "If winter comes, spring can't be far behind." What about spring coming first? It's another case of oh, yeah! It's everywhere—up, down, and to the side!

Six, no, seven vice croon, rape, and three out—mostly that "Good night, Sweetheart!" Flaming and nervous girls reach a limit in the peak in the mid-air ball. The cry for rearranging has made another attack—the lodges show seem unable to get the beds in a collective corner, and they're still snoring away. Another bell, and howling can be heard. It's hopeless. It is still yelling for Mary; one thing certain—she's either out of town or dead! Romance has lost her other shoe again, and has happily seen this stamp she just bought! Bang-whang go more noise and trunk!

It's everywhere—noise, noise, noise! Ears, poor things! "D'you—mind under construction," "Till I see on the way, and let the way be in another direction." "Waiting hours later," "Studying, go thou and do likewise." Another proof of the approaching exams. Anyhow, we have more bull-dozers, February 1, to look forward to.

Epidemic—manila-complex, whatever you call it, Winthrop girls have it for cutting hair. Quite a number of wavy-man "balls" have disappeared in the last week. Is it for the sake of appearance or for time in which to study? T. M.

Let's hope that figures do lie in some cases. The following statistics don't sound so good to us: "The college girl lags, whether in business or love," says Dr. Roy M. Anderson, of Columbia university. An article from another college paper show some of his statistics on marriage and professions. College girls have 20 per cent less chance than non-college ladies to get married, and that girls with degrees receive salaries ranging from $50 to $1,000 with business and professional women earning from $905 to $2,375. The professor urges the hearing of a profession to make up for their reduced chances to marriage. Approximately 30 out of 100 women marry and follow the vocation of home maker.

And then in Boston University News we hear: "College women as a whole are willing to share expenses with the men they love in order that they may get married at an early age and still obtain the necessary education." So states Mrs. Julia Phillips Rupp, wife of Prof. Harold W. Rupp of the School of Theology faculty. She secured her information through questioning over 300 Juniors and seniors at a Midwestern co-educational college.

More Effective First Bad Boy—Let's put a mouse in teacher's desk. Second Bad Boy—No, let's put some cheese in her desk and the mouse will come of its own accord and we won't be blamed for it.

FLEETING THOUGHTS AT NIGHT Some time when you can't go to sleep, and it does not do any good even to count sheep, do you ever let your thoughts ramble—let your imagination play on the keyboard of wonder? It is better than listening for the strange noises you often hear at night, and then some day you may be a philosopher.

It seems to me that all the world's a store and you pay dearly for everything, especially when you are bargaining over an education. It would take another lifetime to sincerely appreciate all the hard knocks and opportunities we have in the first one. Maybe it would take more than that to find out who we really want to do.

It is hard to decide the route that your boat should take on its road to success, because you have to firmly decide on the journey's end. Almost every man seems to think that there is only one career for a woman—that of the home—it is the ultimate goal of her life. Do you believe that happiness is merely a state of mind, or that it is transient? Either way all of us would be happy some of the time.

Just think, even if you were a butterfly with the softest wings, you might be unhappy because you could not plug. Adaptability is such a natural thing—even flowers do it—so why shouldn't people? They have enough chances. It is hard to think—so sooner or later, you'll succumb. The O. R.

The joke was about an old preacher who was reading in the Bible about Noah and Noah's wife and the ark, and preaching a sermon about how everybody ought to get into the ark before it rains. "And Noah's wife, read the old preacher—and here he turned two leaves instead of one and ill on a page which was telling about the ark, was 40 cubits long and 30 cubits wide and—"

It was too much for the old fellow. He stopped reading and lifted his eyes to Heaven and said proudly: "My dear friends," he said, "I don't remember ever having read this passage before, but it goes to show how fearfully and wonderfully we are made."

And, tomorrow, about three of my good friends will lend me out to one of the best! And Martha M. learns that "Love is blind"—Her's hoping he isn't now. "Glenie" has turned out to be a young "orthodoxist"—She likes a "blonde" and perfect "ingene"—witness the thrill! She probably will be soon—"It is if exams make her as "right-headed" as they make me. I think that's the cause of my verbosity today—it really isn't anxiety any more. Since things happened like they did—and still do—I don't even feel "dainty"—you can't even tell how long things like that will last. Spring holidays are far removed—but how far is what we'd all like to know! That, and a lot more.

His Luck "Here you are, sir," cried the lawyer, extending a bouquet. "Buy some nice flowers for your sweetheart." "Nothing doing," responded the young man. "I haven't got a sweetheart." "Buy some flowers for your wife, then." "Wrong again," was the answer. "I am not married." "Well, then, garçon, buy the blooming lot to celebrate your luck."

Why Should She? Conductor—Madam, you'll have to pay for that boy. Old Lady—But I never have before. Conductor (holly)—That don't matter to me. He's over 13 years old, and you'll have to pay his fare or I'll put him off the car. Old Lady—Put him off. What do I care? I never saw him before.

The First Lesson A Sunday school teacher was telling her class all about the cannibals and missionaries who went out to foreign countries. "What do you think would be the first thing the missionaries should teach the cannibals?" she asked the class. One bright little boy answered readily: "I know, teacher. They should teach them to be vegetarians."

His Whetstone "Johnny, how much is two and two?" asked the teacher. "I don't know," replied Johnny. "Well, if I laid two eggs on this desk, and two on that desk, what would it be?" "It would be a miracle. I don't believe you can do it."

Answer, Please She—"It is the women who pay—and pay—and pay, you know." He—"Then tell me—why is it that the men are always broke?" Underdog Repairs "Freddy hasn't taken a drink or been out for three weeks." "Turned over a new leaf, has he?" "Well, turned over a new car."

Fair Payment "So you want a job in the Mint, eh? What salary would suit you?" "Well, I'd be willing to pay about fifteen dollars a day."

Remed Confusion "And are you a professional saxophonist?" "Oh, no. I just play for my own amusement."

THE COLLEGE CAT Showhow or other as exams draw nearer, I can actually feel myself crawling from a cat into a book-worm. If I had any way I'd certainly find a hole and crawl in. Examinations are sufficient "exam bait" even in these days of Peace Propaganda and Disarmament conferences. By the way, another bit of evidence that all men don't prefer blondes—ask Mary how wonderful it is to be a "ravishing brunette!" She knows about that. And ask Myrtle what she thinks of "a letter a day". I think it must be love—or maybe it's a correspondence course. Anyhow, they're always long and thick, and in these depressing days before this that certainly would help a lot! Have you heard about the little acrobats who have among us? Just ask Sylvia and Kat what they threw out the window! It's quite a revelation of what one can do—and did you happen to see at Character? The one which was "L. T.?" Maybe from thinks it pays to advertise! Well, maybe it does—Lou has gone in for Mathematics—she's ahd and— and sometimes she "Bla" advise— sometimes too many times! And Dot is just about as much power as anybody—she's even inspired "love among the milkmaids" in these hard times. Somebody'll have a truth hearing and learn the secret of her success. Martha H. has decided that "To-blah David" is exceedingly tolerable—in fact one of the best! And Martha M. learns that "Love is blind"—Her's hoping he isn't now. "Glenie" has turned out to be a young "orthodoxist"—She likes a "blonde" and perfect "ingene"—witness the thrill! She probably will be soon—"It is if exams make her as "right-headed" as they make me. I think that's the cause of my verbosity today—it really isn't anxiety any more. Since things happened like they did—and still do—I don't even feel "dainty"—you can't even tell how long things like that will last. Spring holidays are far removed—but how far is what we'd all like to know! That, and a lot more.
