Go through the list of those who have made a success and you will find men that overcame the obstacles--the impossibilities, so called.

Few of them had the up-road paved for them in advance; instead they grew by using their judgment and doing things for themselves.

THE MAN BEHIND YOU.

By John Blake.

It is foolish to hold out your hands in order to block the path of the man behind you. If he is worth your salt he is going to get where you are to-day. He wants your job or one just as good; and contrive as you will, you will not keep him out of it provided he has the right stuff in him. If he hasn't, some man with the right stuff will soon step into his place and then you will be confronted with the same old problem.

There is a man behind every person who starts on the upward road, and many of those men behind are going to be men ahead before long. If you try to block their road they will slip into your place sooner or later, and there will be no place for you to go but back toward the rear.

Denying a man an opportunity to learn the duties of your job will not keep him out of that opportunity forever. The old carpenter or plumber who used to work in a corner so that apprentices could not "steal his trade" never dampened the ardor of any intelligent apprentice. They not only stole the trade, but they very frequently took the paying practice of it away from the man who had sought to hide it from them.

There is just one way to deal with the man behind that is safe for you and fair to him. That is to keep moving up so that he can get into your place when you leave it. If you are as talented as you probably believe you are you will some day come to a place which he cannot gain. Then you need not worry about him any more.

But as long as he is moving up you will have to move up too, or you will begin to move down. There is a room on one level for one man only. You must figure that the man behind you is just as ambitious as you are. If he also is just as intelligent and just as industrious you may say, as hard as you can to keep him from slipping into your position, but still without avail.

Every man desires to go forward. It is fortunate for the really ambitious that so few of them have the energy to keep at it. But it will always happen, in the case of the man behind you, that he will get into your place when you leave it. Then you will have to set a faster pace than you are setting.

There is only one thing to do in a case like that, and that is to keep your own pace and let him drop into the place you have vacated. By and by, as you get toward the top of the hill, you will know whether he is worth the place he can get to, and you will have to be completely fit to take his place.

CLYDE BROWN KILLED BY RURAL POLICEMAN

Was Fatally Wounded When He Tried to Take Officer's Gun From Him.

Sparksburg, S. C., Feb. 17.—Clyde Brown, of Pacolet, was shot and killed on the Innan road this afternoon by Furman Davis, rural policeman. From what could be learned of the affair it appears that Brown, in company with Eddie Up-ton, a young woman, passed the policeman, driving at a fast and reckless rate. The officer gave chase and passed Brown's car. When he did, Brown rammed Davis' car, wrecking it and leaving Davis standing by the road. Soon a high-powered car passed and Davis got in and gave chase. He again passed Brown's car. When he did so Brown is alleged to have run out of the road and to have thrown two jugs of whiskey out of his car. When Davis went to make an arrest Brown made an attack on the officer and made an effort to get his gun from him. Davis jerked loose from Brown and struck him with the pistol, and when he did so the gun went off, wounding Brown in the head. Brown was rushed to the General hospital, where he died in about an hour. The young woman was lodged in the county jail on a charge of transporting. The inquest will be held at 10:30 tomorrow morning.

The South Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.

By time the Blue Book of Southern Progress which The Manufacturers Record is compiling, along, the curiosity of the whole world will have been aroused. The Observer has made sample quotations of the information it is to contain in his most of the young men and women between 1800 and 1860.

"The greatest business achievement in the world between 1800 and 1860 was made by the South." This is the statement of a high school, as for the walls of a college, he had not been within miles of them. He was the standing joke of the whole town. But somehow in his boyhood he had met a man whose memory is a benediction to me.

But this man was an ignorant person. He had never finished the sixth grade. He had never seen the inside of a high school. As for the walls of a college, he had not been within miles of them. He was the standing joke of the whole town. But somehow in his boyhood he had met a man whose memory is a benediction to me.

"In some respects, the South between 1861 and 1865 maintained, considering adverse conditions, the greatest war against overwhelming odds in human history." "Between 1865 and 1876 the bolshavists which rushed into the South maintained in this section a condition far more disastrous than any part of Europe has suffered since the World War with the exception of Russia, and in many ways more so."

"The resources of the South against the imagination of the world." "The achievements since 1876 challenge the attention and the admiration of the world."

EXCURSIONS IN THOUGHT.

The Transforming Power of Association With Our Apparent Inferiors. R. N. Allen, Teacher Of Manual Training.

Who is there that we may call our inferior? What do we mean when we speak of one who is our superior? Rather should we not seek to speak instead of our equals? For real wisdom, true wisdom teaches a wise man that no one is his absolute superior and there is no soul which may be wistfully inferior to him. After all has been said and done, we are at least too glad to turn to even the lowest of our fellowmen for help and support in time of dire need.

There is one man whose memory is sacred to me. He was a simple-hearted old fellow, a homely-handed son of the soil who made his living doing odd jobs in the gardens of his neighbors. His lot was very hard. He was a man of a religious turn of mind. He felt that he was called to preach and he cherished the idea of collecting enough to enable him to secure a tent in which to preach the Gospel. He was the butt of ridicule and he was the object of scorn and just to which he was subjected must at last have contributed to the completion of his mind.

The poor fellow had a day's day of pillage. He was partly lame and his forehead was marked with a monstrous scar which he called a birthmark. He was a man of a religious turn of mind. He felt that he was called to preach and he cherished the idea of collecting enough to enable him to secure a tent in which to preach the Gospel. He was the butt of ridicule and he was the object of scorn and just to which he was subjected must at last have contributed to the completion of his mind.

The textile strikes in the New England States is of more or less interest to the people in our section in view of the fact that the cotton mills there use Southern cotton. It might also be of interest to our readers to know that seventy per cent of the population of Massachusetts are foreign born, or of the first generation of foreign born parents. This is the main reason that the "labor leader" can pull strikes so often in New England.

"Life's just one thing after another." For several weeks this in our community consists mainly of "one thing after another" trying to sell you something you do not want or do not need. And it is often a subscription to some cheap foreign publication that you perhaps never see after paying your subscription. Of course you lose nothing by not receiving the cheap paper or magazine. The loss was incurred when you let the shrewd agent sell you something you didn't want. One of the latest schemes is for a bunch of sports or ex-sports, to put it over on the philanthropic contention that it is a scheme they have adopted to help the college. A mighty good way to put one's self on some job that seems like work and stick to it and save money.

Said one of our subscribers, "I noticed that you had to say the other day in the paper about the many taxes they are trying to place on the automobile. I had thought of that myself and to think that a man who owns an automobile will have nine or ten different taxes to pay is ridiculous. This so-called tax reform we are hearing about is a joke. Our legislature is not hitting the right spot. What South Carolina needs to reduce taxes is to tax the invisible property. If all the property was on the tax books we could then reduce our tax and get through with it. It looks like the legislature is going to reduce the state levy to about five mills, but this will not do the taxpayers any good for the simple reason that every time they turn around they will have to pay taxes on something they operate, sell or buy. Personally, I would rather pay a state levy of 11 mills than to have this 'new stuff' made into law. This legislature is fixing to make us—poor folks—pay more taxes than we have ever paid before, only they are going to do it in a different way." And The News is about of the same opinion.

Said a well known Chester citizen to The News reporter a few days ago: "You know, I am interested in that trade-at-home stuff you are running in The News. The ad about what the Chester merchants spend in taxes, especially that part of which goes toward the education of our children, is very interesting. This one advertisement was a great appeal to Chester people to buy their goods at home and I can hardly see why anyone should order goods from other towns when such facts are made familiar to them."

York is tonight having its first real show in many years. In fact we doubt if York has ever had a musical comedy company to visit that town. Lately the new city hall, at York has been completed and parties in that town have been making frequent efforts to secure a show. They first tried to get Coburn's musical show but Mr. Coburn was afraid to visit a town the size of York with his large aggregation so passed it up. About two weeks ago the Advance Agent for "Rose of Washington Square" was in Chester to make a contract with the manager of the Chester Opera House and stated that he had no place to go on February 21st, but that he had been asked to come to York. The local manager advised him to visit York and look the situation over, stating that he believed it would be an excellent chance to "fill in" and that it was the first road show to visit York would doubtless be beneficial. The Agent went to York and made a contract, so for the first time York is to have a real show in their new city hall.

The friends in Orangeburg of J. T. Liles, former lieutenant-governor of South Carolina, are urging his candidacy for railroad commissioner in the seventh district. A bill has been introduced in the General Assembly which would give a railroad commissioner from each congressional district. The many friends of Mr. Liles, of Camden, of Chester, have mentioned him many times for office of railroad commissioner and we understand, an effort is going to be made to get him to enter the race, especially if the law is changed giving each congressional district a commissioner. Mr. Davidson is one of the best qualified men in the state for the office since he has had many years of actual railroad experience. He is well acquainted and has many friends throughout the entire state, and it is believed to enter the race he will certainly make the winner "run some."
