with the help of some of the state's everyone who wants to help solve some of the state's pending problems, try to organize at Columbia University Thursday October 24.

In an effort to work within the existing educational and social system, students want to organize a public interest research group. Wofford, Furman, Presbyterian, Clemson, College of Charleston, Winthrop, and South Carolina in and Winthrop were all represented. Discrimination of a statewide petition drive will be organized.

Johnna Maddox, SGA president, commented, "I think that the progress has been organized. It will be dynamic. PIRG has been a valuable source for improvement in other states and certainly South Carolina needs as many action groups as it can get."

Kathy Vail, Barkley and Maddox attended an earlier organizational meeting at the USC meeting. The meeting was attended by students elected from similar boards setup individually.

Students will be able to vote in a campus-wide referendum on whether student fees would be increased. The next step will be to gain student legislative support and Board of Trustees approval.

Trustee approval

As for the concern about Trustees approval, English pointed out, "for a long time Trustees and policymakers have emphasized working through the system and basically this is in the effort to do so."

The idea initially came from Nader to expand the public interest movement and provide another vehicle for students to work on industry and government.

The public interest research group is a sister organization. This group, since it will attempt to involve students working on their own specialties.

Each participating campus will be represented by a local board elected from students on that campus. In turn, the local boards will elect a State Board of Directors.

The Board of Directors will adopt directives which specify issues of concern. These include the public interest of the state of South Carolina, and will serve the organization's position on these issues. These directives will serve the purposes for which the group is organized and will provide the basis for the "work of the state." - said the printed prospectus for PIRG.

Senate passes bill for frosh self-reg.

The third regular meeting of the Senate was held on Oct. 12.

Senate business included second reading and passage of bills extending the privileges of self-governing hours to second semester freshmen with parental permission and requiring freshmen to stay on campus only one weekend after the beginning of the semester. A bill revoking and clarifying the guest policy was approved by the Senate. It states that a non-student may be denied admission privileges if the campus hospitality is abused, and a student is still subject to disciplinary action while in another dorm.

Another clarification is that all parents—students and non-students—must be signed into the host dorm. These bills must pass Family-Student Senate Committee and be signed by President Davis before enactment.

Two recommendations to the Administration and the Board of Trustees concerning the drinking policy on campus were passed. One recommends that the privileges granted to students by South Carolina state laws be extended to Winthrop students.

The second recommendation concerns extending as students the privileges of buying and consuming beer in the Winthrop canteen.

Third reading was given to bills signed by President Davis. These bills included revocation of the sign-out procedure, the ban on Mid, and the elimination of the parental permission violations from the judicial Board offenses.

The next Senate meeting will be held October 27 at 6:30 p.m. in Didaco Auditorium.

Paperback committee revamped

The Paperback Selection Committee, formally called the Rental Planning to lease the College Stores on the first floor of the Dinkins, has been revamped this year. Previously the committee was composed mainly of faculty and was subject to staff; the students had no real vote in the selection of paperbacks for the rent-a-book program.

This year, however, the committee is composed completely of students. It is a student organization in the selection of titles.

Kailo parringer, Kathy Beach, Elizabeth Nichols, and Ann Owens are committee members, and Mr. Ralph Pennington is acting as chairman.

"Paperbacks are being considered for a way to increase the quality of books in the college's collection," said Owens. "We don't want the books to be too cheap, but we don't necessarily want them to be too expensive. We're trying to find books that are not too expensive in the college's collection," said Owens.

"We don't want most of these books to cost over $2.00," said Owens. "Some people can find just anything, but others are looking for something that is worthwhile. This year, we're trying to find books that are moderately priced, but not too expensive.

The cost of these paperbacks will be a factor in the selection of titles. We don't want to spend too much money on paperbacks, but we also don't want to spend too little.

Suggestion boxes are to be placed near the bulletin board in Dinkins and in other college stores. In each location, students are free to suggest titles for the book store.

Happening Sparks Halloween

by Phyllis McCall & Joan Appleby
"Fun, Frollicks, and Fortune" is the theme of Halloween Happening in Dinkins on Thursday, October 28, at 9:00 p.m.

Halloween Happening is an opportunity for students to enjoy the holiday spirit without the usual dry, tired atmosphere. The event will be open to all students and will feature music, raffles, and a costume contest.

Another feature will be the "Spook House," a haunted house sponsored by the Winthrop Baptist Student Fellowship. The house will be open from 9:00 p.m. to 11:00 p.m., and admission will be charged for entrance.

The event is co-sponsored by the Winthrop Student Council and the Winthrop Student Association. Admission is free to all students.

In addition to the main events, there will be a costume contest, a raffle, and a variety of other activities.

Infirmary asks ideas

By Paul But

The Infirmary committee is sponsoring a suggested project to make the infirmary more efficient.

The committee will have its first meeting on Wednesday, October 28. Margaret Coffey, a junior, is chairman of the Infirmary Committee.

"Our committee is meeting throughout the week," said Coffey. "We have a lot of ideas, but we need some suggestions before we can proceed."

Coffey said that the infirmary is currently underutilized and that there are many opportunities for improvement.

Coffey encouraged students to suggest ideas for improving the infirmary.

"We need your help," said Coffey. "We want to make the infirmary a more efficient and effective resource for students."

Coffey mentioned that some ideas for improvement include better signage, more staff, and improved facilities.

Coffey said that the committee will present its findings to the infirmary staff and that suggestions will be incorporated into the final report.

Federal funds running out

A Special Education project, titled "Learning Assistance," was approved by the Federal Government in the summer of 1970 and will expire on October 15.

"This project provided educational assistance for approximately 100 children who were otherwise not motivated to full potential in a regular classroom setting," said Dr. John Davis, president of the Department of Special Education.

The project proposes to establish a class for developmentally disabled children in eight school districts. Another objective is to develop a team approach on problems and to provide guidance for the utilities of emotionally disturbed children.

Nine graduate students at Wolfson State have been working on this project with the guidance of five outstanding teachers, working for their masters in Special Education, each year.

Three Wolfson State educators are helping with the project: Dr. Ed. T. Wilson, director of Special Education; Mrs. Ann Shurmer, director of Special Education; and Dr. John Davis, director of Special Education.

Another Special Education project, established in the summer of 1967, is the "Project for the Development of Students with Disabilities," which is designed to provide educational assistance to students who are emotionally disturbed.

The project involves a variety of programs, including consultant training, consultation services, and the development of special education programs for children with disabilities.
“Know thyself” via TJ

Recently in newspapers all across the country Ann Landers reprinted her famous "Know Thyself Questionnaire."

According to Miss Landers at least 5,000 kids had asked for the re-run of the test which was supplied to her by a teenage teenager for all those 12-year-olds the first time around.

The test itself asked such questions as: Ever been to bed? Ever parked more than an hour? Ever picked up a person you never saw before? Have you gone all the way? Do you smoke plain cigarettes? Ever passed out from drinking? In scoring your answers you fall into one of eight categories: very neat or something, pure as the driven snow, passionate but prudish, normal and decent, indecent, headed for terrible shape, or condemned.

Taking into consideration that at least 5,000 kids wrote Miss Landers and remembering that we ourselves filled out the dumb (alas our freshman year in high school), we decided that there must be something to this questionnaire idea.

So, assuming youpeople dig quizzes or the sort, we came up with a questionnaire designed for the Winthrop student.

Do you dress like the kind of guy you wouldn’t go out with?

If a girl saw a guy dressed in torn, dirty clothes, she'd think he looked seedy, sloppy and suspicious. And yet, if she wore the same clothes herself, she'd think she looked casual, comfortable and maybe even chic. Which goes to prove that people only see what they want to see.

At The Smart Shop, we can't see that at all. We think that a person can dress to please themselves and at the same time, please others.

To make it easy to do that, we carry thousands of fashions, for every age and every occasion. And we sell them at prices everyone can afford.

So if a girl persists in dressing like a guy she wouldn’t go out with, she’ll only have herself to blame. Because the guy she does want to go out with may not want to go out with her.
Hair styles
make the man

By Donna Davis

"Top knot" testing has been recognized as one way to interpret personality, but consider before it was created by the Swiss scientist Rorschach, one could get an idea of the kind of man one is from merely looking at his hair.

Today's long hair would have pleased the Biblical patriarchs—they squared long, flowing locks with masculinity. To "make baldness upon the head" was a sign of deep mourning among the ancient Hebrews, Cremona might have horrified them—much as they do many Winthrop students.

Many ancient cultures have had manners of dressing their hair that vary according to race, occupation, American Indians stripped their hair with bear grease, while Japanese samurai applied a special lacquer to their hair.

The long and the short of it

Hair today seems to be the fighting flag in a new type of class war.

The first of the most recent hair freaks were in California, but they were not hippies but surfers and hot-rodgers. Both groups wore their hair long, but the hot-reds alternately combed their hair back in pompadours while the surfers let their hair flow down.

The surfers wore their mainy middle class. The beatniks, the hair boys, were almost exclusively working class. But class was not what was really felt. It was status. The division line was whether one's father had a college education.

Feelings among the surfers that these beatniks wore "gossamer" or "foot our sort" on high.

Since the time of surfers and Hair Boys, the division has become more and more marked. Working class youths have become more resentful of long-haired middle class youths who seem to them to be "play actors."

Today's student radicals and hippies, like the surfers before them, wear their hair combed down or up and frequently in a "white Afro" style. The working class men often grew long hair themselves—but always combed back.

Combed with their poor-boy clothes—which are often expensive—the middle class youth's hair makes the working class youth feel as if the rich kids are dumbing their noses at them, as if they are being told that the working man's new influence, his protectors, his yearnings for middle class status, are nothing but a sick's delusions.

The status rift of middle class vs. working class hasn't been changed; it has only deepened. But the symbolism has been reversed—instead of surfers vs. gossamer it is now hippies vs. short hair.

It seems these two unde­niable men disagree on more than hair styles, (photo by Bryant Molinaro)

The Polyisian man would make his long hair into pigtais or long and shaved off part of his hair and were a complicated number out of the remaining

The Mayans of ancient Mexico would burn a buns spot on the top of their heads and build the rest of their hair around it in every fashion with a quirt dangling down his back.

But don't laugh that such class distinctions were made. These types of distinctions can be followed closely in history and can be seen in today's culture.

Hair today seems to be the fighting flag in a new type of class war.

Asked for interview

Patton defends infirmary

"There is a pre-formed idea in college students before they go to school that two things are lousy—the Infirmary and the food service."

Dr. Robert Patton, one of the two doctors at the Deford Infirmary, has been co-opted recently with the image of the Infirmary and how it can be changed. He contacted U.S. so that the following interview was arranged at his request.

INTERVIEWER: Why did you become interested in the Infirmary image or campus?

PATTON: These first few weeks of the school year are a difficult period of time. Freshmen are trying to settle, some of them attempting to use the Infirmary as a cover for their homesickness. Some are afraid to come to the Infirmary. We are not practicing Institutional Spanish torture. We are here to help serve the student and wish that students would not be afraid or worried to make use of these services. We have a good set-up, a good medical group.

INTERVIEWER: What bothers you the most about the use or lack of use of Infirmary services?

PATTON: That the freshmen are afraid of the Infirmary and the techniques. About it, I also bothers me that freshmen go to places like Beacon or Carolina with their boyfriends to find out if they are pregnant.

INTERVIEWER: Do many girls come to you because of pregnancy?

PATTON: We have had pregnancies over here this year—more than the entire last year.

INTERVIEWER: How many girls did you see this year?

PATTON: I don't have those figures.

INTERVIEWER: Do you tell those girls whether they are pregnant?

PATTON: Usually if a girl thinks she is pregnant, she will come around crying, complaining of stomach ache or something. I can usually tell if the girl thinks she is pregnant. I ask her about her periods, if she missed one, two, or more. I give her a pregnancy test. It lasts only two minutes and can be administered in the Infirmary. Although it (the test) can detect pregnancy ten days after gestation, it is often weak that soon. By the time most girls come over here, however, they are usually two or three months pregnant, and I can tell a physical examination.

INTERVIEWER: Who is informed that the girl is pregnant?

PATTON: Only the Infirmary technician and I know. I usually do not write it down. The student does not know.

INTERVIEWER: What do you tell these girls?

PATTON: I consider their adults. I tell them they are pregnant, then I give them the literature—pre-marital counseling, pregnancy test, abortion shortened, to get married, or to remain unmarried and have the baby.

INTERVIEWER: How many pregnancy tests do you administer this year?

PATTON: Around 300.

INTERVIEWER: What do you think these girls should do?

PATTON: They need a shoulder to cry on. Do not let your parents find out from someone else you are pregnant. Even though they may not approve of what you do, they love you. Do not pay any attention to what they don't say. Then shut down and talk.

INTERVIEWER: Why do you think the girls become pregnant?

PATTON: There are many reasons to get pregnant—ignorance or irresponsibility. Large number of the girls on campus are ignorant of the facts, if I can help the ignorant, I want to. The campus needs more information, and I hope to help get it to them. There is no excuse for you to get pregnant now! "NO!" is the best oral birth control.

INTERVIEWER: What does a pregnant student need?

PATTON: She needs someone to talk to. Long-term illnesses are reported. I will talk to girls when they say after I have taken care of other patients.

INTERVIEWER: What services are offered to students through the dispensary for long-term illnesses?

PATTON: We have some over-the-counter drugs. We also have prescription drugs and can fill prescriptions from other doctors if we have the necessary drugs here. We get drugs through the State Purchasing Agency and are able to furnish them at cost. All we want to do is break even.

INTERVIEWER: What kind of services do you offer to students getting pregnant?

PATTON: They are getting the same they get in my office. I work here on a part-time salary. No matter how many students I see, but I will always come back when something comes up and use one of the nurses calls.

INTERVIEWER: Do you think birth control can be or should be distributed by the Infirmary?

PATTON: If sanctioned by the college, I don't care, but we would run into static. There is a moral question involved. If I prescribe birth control it

No Spanish Torturer

Dr. Robert Patton, campus physician, discussed student pregnancy, counseling, birth control, and the dispensary, (Skeeter Swan photo)
Dear Editor,

I am beginning to wonder if anyone on this campus cares about anything. Oh, I know everyone is concerned about where they are going next weekend, but is that their only concern? I have never before seen so many self-centered students. There are over 104,000 people sleeping, eating, and doing over 184,000 things--yet when students were asked to give an hour of their time to these people not one showed concern. I have been going to Ann's Convalescent Home once a week. I must admit sometimes it's a challenge to get going but, once I get there I never want to leave. These people are put in the home by their families--the ones they gave up for anything for, struggled for, raised, and loved unconditionally. I can see reason why some are put there. Some cannot care for themselves and have nobody to care for them, but why are they so often forgotten about?

Maybe the students at Winthrop feel they should not bother if their own families don't. Just imagine what a sad state our world would be in today if everyone thought that way. Have you ever seen a woman of beauty cry because you, a stranger, came to see and talk to her? Because you gave her a little of yourself to her, it is a feeling you'll never forget. Maybe it's the self-satisfaction I get out of knowing I've done something for someone else that keeps me going.

I truly believe it is pitiful that at a time in our history when everything is geared to the younger generation that the youth cannot give anything in return. The people in that home are not asking much, I know there are ones who need you. After all, look how much they have given us.

Sincerely,

Louise McMillin

If you would like to make another person happy by giving a little of your time contact me in Bancroft or at Box 5608.

Thank you.

Winthrop students have the opportunity to become one of the 11.5 million newly eligible voters, a new influence which is destined to effect a change for the better by making their intelligence, motivation and concern felt.

As products of mass education and instant communication, we are eminently qualified to vote; we are among the best educated, the most widely informed, and the most aware generation in the history of our country.

We are qualified, but are we concerned? Certainly in forming grass-root groups to fight pollution, cleaning up slums, starting drug education programs, and teaching in the ghettos. Now we have another powerful means of turning our ideas into action—the vote.

But the registration boards are not coming to us; during mid-semester break this week it will be our responsibility to take the first step.

Registration requirements in South Carolina include residing in S. C. for at least six months, in the county for at least three months and the voting precinct for at least 30 days prior to any election. If you are newly enfranchised, or if you are 17 now and will be 18 in '72, find out where and how to register when you go home.

Eleven million additional voters might have made a big difference in 1960, when John F. Kennedy was barely elected President with 49.71 per cent of the popular vote to Richard Nixon's 49.55. Consider also 1966, when Nixon received 43.16 per cent to Humphrey's 42.73.

The pollsters are predicting that 1972 will be another close election. We, new voters can swing, it one way or another if we exercise our franchise.

As Ramsey Clark, former U. S. Attorney General, said, "All of us are looking for immediate achievement goals. Well, here's one for every young man and young woman in America. Find 20 or 30 eighteen-to-twenty-one-year-olds and persuade them to register and vote. If you can do this, I think the next election may be the most important in our history."

Finnie & Patten complain in behalf of WRA

Dear Editor,

We would like to make a complaint to the TJ staff for their lack of cooperation with the WRA Karate Association. WRA is currently sponsoring Karate lessons for all students. Before the program began, a lengthy article was written for the TJ to inform the students of the upcoming program. The article was cut off in paragraph and stuck with the "News Briefs." Two weeks ago another article was written on karate for the TJ. We were named the author of the article, as well as a Karate advertisement and an article on the WRA team. This week, there is no mention of the TJ. They never did.

We are now in full swing with the Karate program, but sadly enough, there hasn't been one word about it in the TJ. Before WRA decided to pay most of the bill, the cost would have been $10 per person for 8 lessons. With WRA's help it now costs only 55c per week for the student. WRA is obviously making money on these lessons, but that is the least of our worries. Our main concern now is the possibility of losing our Karate Instructor. If not enough students show up, the instructor could be grossly underpaid with the lack of participation.

Original guest policy no longer effective

Dear Editor,

As I understand the guest policy was passed because the idea of a "friend or guest" someone was turning into a friend living with someone. The rule was passed for the protection of the lessor as well as the lessee and/or subletters and other dorm dwellers. It was being implemented — particularly those living on the hill. During the passing of the bill, considerations were made concerning the "friend or guest" policy. We were helping the best to be able for a test or visit of guests who were outside of dorms. These situations were made by providing that extended visitations could be made upon permission of the dorm president and SGA.

Well, it has come to my attention that this rule is being misused. The total rules of the rule are being abided by, but the spirit of the rule is being broken. The extended guest resident could be staying 2 or more days in the dorm, clasping of not deliberately) Inconvenience among subletters, and hall residents. I would like to see it be legally solved—and if not I would like to see a revision of the rule come about. I'm completely in favor of other W, C. students spending nights to study, socialize, etc.—but off-campus non-student guest spending nights it seems a week every week is a little extreme.

Not as long ago a young girl got caught in a long space on a silent night. Walking away from the excitement of "away" her head became,面具 a quick one. Blonde hair fluttering in the wind with the wind. She made her appearance quite inconspicuous. She had a quiet grace and eloquence about her; her face was the incarnation of self-control and pride. Pride in the realization of an individual with very private emotions; humility in the knowledge that no one knew the truth. Very abruptly she stopped. As she dragged her head towards the platform and onto her chest, running down her face and forming a pleat on the ground which someone would later walk through, her eyes solemnly, still green color, she looked over the expanse before her. For a moment it appeared that she was considering the territory already crossed and the remaining journey ahead. She stood motionless for what seemed to be a long time carefully contemplating her next position: continuing on already made a decision. Relatives through the tears, a smile was born. Taking a brief glance forward, she then redirected her gaze to the direction in which she was facing. She shifted slightly and began walking again. Only this time she did not concentrate on the ground. There was a trace of a smile remaining on her face. Her expression was one of wisdom through tried and error. Perhaps the only thing in life we can really hold on to is the love we have for one another. Perhaps "we" first can be the only ones to know, and to live. Have you ever thought of your faith, your hope, your love for one person and how that can change the entire structure crumbling before your eyes? Helpless and alone, you are left to strive the best way you can. You have no idea of how much you have no idea. Those who do make it are the ones who are being anomalies. They are the people who count it all in the book, but who are never labeled as such. Perhaps, I believe this to be true, they have learned the definition of beauty. Sometimes, caught in the long spaces, we are only able to reach down on this flag on the day remaining at the time. Have you ever walked in one direction and got lost somewhere? Tears have a cold and bitter sting on winter days.

Shoot the piano player

French director François Truffaut’s film “Shoot the Piano Player” (1962) will be shown in Bynum October 25 at 8 p.m. The film is a parody of gangster films, prefacing “Bonnie and Clyde” about an ex-concert pianist who is persuaded by hoodlums.

It is a combination of tragedy, comedy, and melodrama about Charlie (Charles Aznavour), a heavy-handed pianist in a cheap cafe in Paris. Charlie, a meek and girlish guy, once had a promising career which was almost cut short by the accidental death of his wife. He wishes to be left alone in peace, but falls in love with a waitress (played by Jeanne Moreau) in love with him. An intimate scene is played in an open window as the traffic noise and music of Paris beam in.

But Charlie cannot fall in love because his older brothers, gay and casual gangsters, forbade him in their criminal adventures and escapades.

The timid pianist is frightened of violence, but seems to be constantly drawn into it. He himself is directly and indirectly responsible for several violent deaths, a crashing tragedy, results, having permanent effects.

The film is very gloomy, but somehow terribly funny with its Keystone Chases and photographic pans.

“Shoot the piano Player” is delightfully macabre.

 Council for Exceptional Children

COUNCIL FOR EXCEPTIONAL CHILDREN is planning for the future, said Tolllver.

She said that the membership, with projects and programs, is growing. The group needs to be aware of the need to provide more for the mentally retarded child.

Cathy Suggs, President of CEC, said that the group is working on a plan for the future. She added that the members are working on a plan for the future.

Calendar changes

Several changes have been made to the calendar of events. The council has decided to move the meetings to a different location. The next meeting will be held on October 29, at 7:30 p.m. in the library. The meetings will continue on a regular basis.

YARC successful

The York County Association for Retarded Children has been very successful in its efforts to help the mentally retarded.

Tolllver said, "It has been a wonderful experience for me to work with these children. I have never had the opportunity to work with such a dedicated group of people."
Sports day draws 5 teams

Winthrop College played host this past weekend to five visiting teams at the WRA-sponsored Hockey Sportsday. The Sportsday is held here annually. Teams participating this year were Catawba, Appalachian, Coker, Furman, and Winthrop.

Catawba defeated Winthrop 6-0 on Friday, but WC went down with a fight. A display of team cooperation put Winthrop on top Saturday when they beat Furman 3-1. In that game two goals were scored by Fredman Jane Obi and one was scored by Pam Aiken. Winthrops record now stands at 2 wins and 1 loss.

In other Sportsday games, Catawba defeated Appalachian, Coker beat Converse, Appalachian defeated Converse and Furman triumphed over Coker.

Along with the games an official clinic was sponsored by the Deep South Field Hockey Association. The principle of this clinic was to train and evaluate prospective officials. After passing a written and practical test, members of this past weekend's five state-awarded rating as officials.

Flag football - a W. C. first

Each dorm will sponsor a team which will compete for the campus championship. Sign-ups are in the rooms of the dorm chairman.

Informal games were held Monday, Oct. 11, and Wednesday, Oct. 13. Dorm competition will begin October 11 and will continue through November 17 each Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. on the athletic field. North campus games will be on Monday while south campus games will be on Wednesday.

The Championship game on November 22 will be between the north and south campus winners.

Co-chairmen for the football are Susan Shatzy and Gail Smith.

Help for riders

Person needing rides or riders may soon be aided by the Travel Committee and SGA, said Libby Goodman, Co-Chairman.

SGA will designate office space especially for the purpose of helping visiting students.

A future objective of the Committee is to organize a bus trip to Charlottesville every Saturday morning. The bus will run, at minimum cost, go to Smith Mountain Lake. The bus would be scheduled to return to the campus during lunch hour.

Good idea said that in the future the Committee plans to organize weekend ski trips to Boone and other major trips.

Reynolds raps about 714, Shakespeare, and others...

Interviewed by Harriet McLeod

Q. Could you explain what's going on in Theater 714, the purpose, the approach?

A. Well, it's both. It contains more cultural elements, some elements of some good, some good showcase for unified ideas, something new and exciting, and something old.

Q. Okay, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" is coming up November 15 right? A lot of people want you to change plays around, like making "Oedipus Rex" silly or using foreign actors in "As You Like It." So they are probably thinking that this is another kind of a way for the theater to gird up its feathers and try to catch the audience.

Q. Would you say something about Shakespeare's plot and theme in terms of what is going to come across in your production?

A. I'm going to draw out what Shakespeare intended not add what's not there. I'm trying to do it the way Shakespeare wanted it done--it's in the lines.

But I want the audience to take the story seriously even if the play is a comedy. You've got this teenage barea, Hermia, whose father is an authoritarian type trying to make her marry Demetrius, and willing to send her to a monastery or have her executed if she doesn't. This is a serious, relevant, common situation. A lot of parents are in this dictatorial role, "go to this school," "don't give us a penny!" Or be a doctor, go to law school. The story is believable. I'm trying to put forth this basis, widespread situation into Shakespeare is writing about.

May 25th: In Blagojevich's comedy, "The Natural," the natural impulses--such as having somebody instead of hating everybody--will go out.

Q. Could you give me some ideas about your Spring play?

A. We tentatively scheduled an original musical--subject to censorship. It's a happy mood with pretty girls, lovely costumes, Tony Senta, Tricia Nixon's wedding goes on. I want to learn the title. It's called "Romantic Harry's Guide to Health, Happiness and Welfare for Men, Women and Other People."

Q. Okay! How's for a nice broad, general question to wind up with--could you comment on, or kind of sum up, your approach to theater?

A. Let's see. How can I describe what I'm into now, I used to believe that shocking or breaking out the audience was good, this was a natural attitude. You can't force the audience to accept or believe something; you can't beat the audience over the head.

Good plays should be presented not merely for the educated, the elite, but to reach a lot of different kinds of people.

Book & Key initiates senators

Stewart, Computer science major from Newberry, Mrs. Donald C. Turner, English major from Chester, Emily B. White, math major from Pinckney, Mrs. Constance L. Wynn, English major from Rock Hill and Patricia J. Baxx, elementary education major from Rock Hill.

Book and Key officers for 1971-72 are Trudy Lynne Blackwell, president; Carol Elle Barrie, vice-president; and Rebecca Lois Fritz, secretary-treasurer.
WC delegation will push women's package

A package of bills, involving women, directly and indirectly, will be the Winthrop delegation's emphasis at the South Carolina State Student Legislature, November 13-15.

Vesdia Burkins, chairman of the WC delegation, said that delegates are still researching their bills. "If we can ignore the problems, I think that the bills will get a good reception at the legislature."

Two more sophomore and two freshman members have just been added to the delegation. Vicky Hall and Linda Loy are the sophomore members and Jan Appley and Susan Johnson are freshman members.

Most of the delegates seem to be enthusiastic about their individual bills and the entire package idea. Junior delegate, Linda Hubbard commented, "I think we can be more effective with a package than taking different unrelated bills. We'll also know more about each other's bills."

Another junior delegate, Kathy Rowe, thinks these bills will show that "we're not hot-maes who just want advantages, but want equal opportunities for women as well as for men."

She added, "I feel then the package will be considered seriously in Columbia."

The delegates have called their efforts a women's bill package — women's bill in a loose sense. "This package ought to have added impact coming from a women's school," said Joyce Poston, Sharon Davis, sophomore, and Janet Jones, junior, will sponsor two interlocking bills, fans' "bill would limit the $500 lifetime tax-exemption to ten children per family. Jones' bill would utilize the money saved by that limiting of exemptions to finance voluntary sterilization. In Jones' bill the state would pay for the sterilization of spousal females, married or unmarried, if they have two children.

Davis explained that her tax-exemption bill was patterned after one that was introduced into the U. S. Senate. The impetus for the sterilization bill came from a similar one that was introduced and shuttled into committee in the S. C. legislature this summer. Jones commented, "I hope that presenting sterilization at Student Legislature will trigger the state finance committee to bring their sterilization bill out again."

Linda Hubbard, Joyce Poston, and Linda Loy, acting as an alternate, are planning an abortion bill much like that of New York. This would be a liberalization of South Carolina's present law which permits abortion only to protect the mental or physical health of the mother or in cases of rape or incest. Their bill would legalize abortion until the 24th week of pregnancy, eliminating doctors' consents and a 90-day residency requirement.

Beverly Cooper and Kathy Rowe have outlined their bill. With its passage, marriage laws would be stricter, and divorce for childless couples would be less time-consuming and less expensive. Rowe explained that they will probably incorporate a waiting period requirement for marriages. These two delegates feel that stricter marriage laws might reduce the number of divorces.

Incontinent against women in professional schools in South Carolina will be the target of the bill co-sponsored by Beverly Carroll and Pati Kennedy. Their bill will require the USC law school and the Medical University of South Carolina to have a certain percentage of women in their freshman classes by 1975. Carroll and Kennedy hope to involve the state's commission on the Status of Women.

If a school didn't meet the required percentage, this commission would investigate it. BothEvatt will preside over the Senate as President Pro Tempore and Vesdia Burkins will function as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.
