NOBODY ON TRIAL

IN MISSISSIPPI

Inquiry Will Be Conducted Accord- ingly. Young Woman Who is Suing Governor Will Appear Before Committee.

Jackson, Miss., March 14.—With the investigating committee in session, a statement issued by Thomas R. Foster, attorney for Miss Frances Birkhead, who is suing Gov. Lee M. Russell for $100,000 as damages based on a charge of seduction, stating that he had agreed to the young woman coming to Jackson to testify before a legislative investigation of charges made by the governor. "Against" what he characterized as "outlawed" fire insurance concerns, shared the center of the stage here today with another statement issued by the committee declaring that "nothing" is to be done merely to gratify the desire of either "curiosity or sensationalism."

The governor charges among other things that Miss Birkhead's suit was fostered by certain interests as an aftermath of antitrust proceedings against a number of fire insurance concerns.

Mr. Foster stated that he had given his consent to Miss Birkhead appearing before the committee. "With the distinct understanding that she was to be questioned only with regard to the charge that her suit was aided or abetted by fire insurance interests."

The statement was issued by Vice Chairman Walter Sillers after the committee was understood to have been prompted by several members one of which was that the committee had decided to request Governor Russell to appear as a witness and in the event he did not, a subpoena would be issued for him.

The statement said in part: "Nobody is on trial before this committee. Nothing will be done merely to gratify the desires of either curiosity or sensationalism. The investigation will continue until the committee shall have satisfied itself that it has exhausted every source of information available to its prosecution of all the facts essential to full, proper, honest and impartial conclusions on all the matters embraced within the scope of its inquiry."

Sessions of the committee were halted yesterday owing to the absence of Representative A. H. Stone, the chairman, who is called to the bedside of a relative, who was critically ill.

MRS. HUGGINS RELEASED.

Mrs. Effie Huggins, charged jointly with Albert Zimmerman with the murder of Pink Huggins, the woman's husband, on the Charlotte road near the Cannon Mill village, on Sunday night, November 6, of last year, has been released on bond of $300 signed by Robert Witherspoon and H. E. Nell of Yorkville. Mrs. Huggins called her release Saturday night and she is said to be wandering aimlessly around with no fixed place of abode since she left the Cannon Mill village. She was released when she came to them after being released from jail where she has been a prisoner since a short time after the finding of the dead body of her husband in a ditch off the Charlotte road early on the morning of November 7.

Albert Zimmerman, co-defendant in the case and alleged lover of Mrs. Huggins, remains a prisoner in the county jail and has made no attempt to obtain bond.

MUCH MARRIED MEN HAS POOR MEMORY

Can Only Recall Names of Eleven of His Fourteen or More Wives.

Indianapolis, March 14.—Some of the tangled threads in the matrimonial ventures of J. H. Moore, 82, chair-spring, chair worker and man of many wives and many aliases, held in jail here on charges of bigamy and embezzlement, were on the way to being unraveled today with receipt of reports from cities hearing evidence concerning some of his many marriages.

Moore is said by the police to have admitted he has at least 14 or 15 wives scattered throughout the country, but he has been able to remember the names of only 11 of them. The story of his matrimonial escapades has been verified in several instances and police believe information concerning the others will be forthcoming soon.

Moore waived preliminary examination in city court today and was held to the grand jury under $5,000 bond. He seemed to be highly nervous when he appeared in court. Later when questioned in his cell regarding his frequent marriages Moore said: "If I think it was all due to my nervous condition. It seems that as long as I was petted, and 'babied' my condition was improved. At other times I would feel depressed and lonely and want to run away. Then I would find some one else and fall in love with them."

HUSBANDS AROUSED

BY MIKED JURORS SLEEPING TOGETHER

Men and Women Locked in Same Room Bring Protest.

St. Paul, Minn.—What to do with mixed juries overnight? This question has started a furor at St. Paul following the story told by seven women and five men who were locked up for two nights while deliberating the fate of George Thomsen, accused of stealing an automobile and finally found guilty.

Irrate husbands of the women stormed the court and one of them was released from a charge of contempt of court by Judge Catlin because the court held that there were extenuating circumstances, and that the object was not in a rational frame of mind.

St. Paul citizens, including Gov. J. A. O. Prew, today sympathized with the frustrated husbands. Club women clamored for better treatment of the women.

The first night, according to the story told by Miss Grace Williams, the only unmarried woman on the jury, there wasn't even a curtain in the room the men and women had to use as sleeping quarters.

"We argued until three and finally a man yawned and said something about going to bed," she said. "It was very embarrassing. We had to get up the lights and get ready for bed in the dark. It was inconvenient, but we did it. Every little while the bailiff would come in and say that there were five men and five women in the room and finally a man yawned and said something about going to bed," she said. "It was very embarrassing. We had to get up the lights and get ready for bed in the dark. It was inconvenient, but we did it. Every little while the bailiff would come in and say that there were five men and five women in the room and finally a man yawned and said something about going to bed," she said.

"The second night we had a dinner table in the room and the men and women. It was not much better."

After the first night one of the women told her husband how she had to endure in the same room with five strange men and the light showing in from the moon, it was stated. This husband went to Judge Catlin, and according to the judge, "I used a full and unvarnished vocabulary in describing his feelings."

The second night was described by Mrs. Josephine Brown, another member of the jury.

"The curtain was transparent and we had no protection, and the men all faced the wall while some of us pulled sheets from the bed to protect the other women while they slept," she said. "We didn't sleep much, but that was mainly because of the men who were talking all night. The men snored on peacefully."

Jaller Hart said the women were "beter" sports than the men for "at least one of the male members of the jury who first demanded segregation. It was an intolerable situation," said Gov. Prew. "I certainly would not consent to my wife undergoing such an ordeal. This situation must not continue. Some provision must be made so that women jurors may have at least a little privacy."

The governor said that steps would be taken to see that men and women on juries are separated wherever it is necessary to lock them over night.

But there are hundreds of husbands here who say that this provision is unnecessary to lock their wives are never going to serve on the jury.

THE GOSPEL BY WIRELESS.

Preaching by wireless is more than a passing fad, for men who are assured, it has proved entirely practicable for a man to sit at home—even for that matter, to lie abed if he is so disposed—and hear to the minutest detail all that his parish could gather if he were actually present at the services. More than this, with the aid of a wireless outfit the preacher can reach those who are unable to go to church, and, we are told, it may prove to be an invaluable adjunct to the evangelist who would preach to an audience greater than the church roof can cover. The wireless telephone is now in use in both Pittsburgh and New York, according to several religious leaders, and the reading of scriptures, the pastoral prayer, the music of organ and choir, and every accent of the sermon are carried to the telephone ear of every listener who owns a wireless equipment and can adjust it to the proper wave length. A wireless outfit recently used by two Paulist Fathers who were conducting missionary services in Old Sacraments, Non-Catholics in cities 400 miles away wrote in for literature bearing upon the doctrines of the church. "Night after night," fathers addressed their unseen audience and invited them to send in questions by telegraph or mail, which they answered the next night by wireless telephone. One droil listener in Detroit heard everything except the passing of the plate, but he sent in his contribution by mail.

Does the wireless telephone mean, then, that the Christian congregation will eventually disappear? "The Con- tinent" (Presbyterian) thinks that possibly this question may soon be answered from semi-jocular banter of preachers and churches into a very grave problem of Christian organization. It has no doubt, however, that in the long run the apostolic injunction not to forsake the assembling of themselves together would justify its essential demands upon even the most modern of Christians.

REPUBLICANS WOULD LIKE TO FORGET THE ANTI-LYNCHING BILL, IT WILL NOT PASS IN THE SENATE

Old Feeling Aroused. All Federal Marshals Called To Try to Collect $100,000 Penalty. Who Seize County Court House or Jail at Auction? No One Would Buy.

Washington, D. C.—There are signs that the republicans wish they might be allowed to forget the Dyer bill, which makes lynching a crime against the federal government, and to punish it, and provides that the county where a lynching takes place shall pay a fine of $100,000 to the family of the victim. The bill, passed the house by a vote of roughly, 2 to 1, which is approximately the same as the republican majority. It is now in the judiciary committee of the senate. It may be doubted whether it will ever appear on the floor of the senate. If it does appear, it may even more safely be doubted whether it will pass, or even come to a vote.

There are democratic senators who feel so strongly about the bill that they will not hesitate to filibuster against it. And there are republicans who are so dubious about the merits of the bill that they will not feel resentful when it is passed. Certainly it will be made clear to the republican leaders that if they hope to get their program of major legislation, such as the tariff, the freights and the like, through this session they had better "not risk the loss of time certain to be incurred if the Dyer anti-lynching bill is brought out."

The bill has revived feelings that have been dormant in congress for thirty years or more. The democratic party is as of the same nature as the old "force" bills, fathered by Senator Lodge and others a generation ago, which provided for the presence of federal soldiers at elections in the southern states to compel those states to permit the negro to vote. It was thought the spirit behind these measures had been universally recognized as a mistake. That spirit was a survival of the "bitterness of the civil war" and the generation the more enlightened there has been that the race problem, which is a sad and difficult one under any circumstances, is best handled by the growth of the rest and wisdom in the local communities where it exists. That it is not helped, but on the contrary is made more acute and painful by attempts to interfere from the outside especially when the interference is accompanied by force, is accepted as the lesson of social experience.

Every person who opposes the Dyer bill deplores lynching, of course. Lynching has already been under a process of cure in the north by the natural growth of public

NEGRO FUGITIVE

BOUGHT BY POSSE

Tried to Burn Young Georgia Wood. Effective Use of Knife Followed by Leap Into Water to Escape.

Wrightsville, Ga., March 14.—Track dogs from two counties are on the trail of a strange negro who this morning slashed the clothing of a young widow near Kito and then poured gasoline over her body and set fire to her. The negro demanded money and the widow cut his face with a butcher knife.

The negro, a stranger in the community, fled on the arrival of a negro farm hand and the woman's brother. The woman had previously notified a woman on her street with a knife she had been using to cut broom grass. She leaped into a shallow pond to extinguish her blazing clothes, saving herself from serious burns.

The young widow had gone with her child to the edge of a nearby swamp to cut grass, she said, and her pocket contained seventy cents of the swamp, pointed a rusty pistol at her and first demanded money. He soon closed in on her and seized her, but she could not scream, but she slashed at him with a knife and drew blood from his throat.

In the struggle the assailant pulled a small bottle of gasoline from his pocket and drenched the woman's clothes, she said. Then he struck a match but the clothes failed to ignite until after the third match had been struck, she declared.

The appearance of the negro farm hand and the woman's brother, however, did not deter the woman's assailant to flee and with her clothing ablaze she jumped into a slough

MERCHANT MARINE.

Secret and insidious foreign influence by propaganda is seeking to destroy America's effort to build and maintain a merchant marine. Unless substantial aid is given American shipping our ships will be swept from the seas and the immense fleet constructed during and after the world war will just as well be scrapped with our battleship program of 1916 and our competitors placed in undisputed possession of our foreign commerce.

The proposition confronting the country is whether the nation is to have a merchant marine without aid or surrender to foreign flags without aid.

The Arms Conference has done a good thing in reducing armaments and navies but unless we maintain and operate our own merchant marine, which is a commercial navy in time of peace and a fighting unit in war, I think we are still paying the way to unpreparedness.

Many plans have been suggested in order to place our merchant marine on a firm foundation. Namely, requiring all immigrants who enter our ports of entry to sail on American ships and certain other favors, such as a limitation of duties on foreign goods when carried by American vessels. In subsidizing our merchant marine these vessels in time of war would be turned over to the national government and used as an auxiliary to the navy and troop ship for the army. All this could be done within 24 hours of a war was declared.

The subsidy by the government paid the merchant marine would offset any shortage in ocean freight and be a means of developing our foreign commerce.

Last year we paid three hundred million dollars to foreign ships as freight to handle our foreign commerce. Why should not the national government and used as an auxiliary to the navy and troop ship for the army. All this could be done within 24 hours of a war was declared.

STILL IN CAB THAT TOOK FATAL PLUNGE

Denver, Colo., March 15.—Engineer George Fouts is back at the throttle on No. 2534, Burlington locomotive that carried him into the flooded waters of the Platte river near Union, Colo., last June.

Fouts, on 2534, carefully piloted a long train of Pullmans through a rain storm from Alliance, Neb., to Colorado during the storms of last June that caused the disastrous Pueblo flood. Nearing the Platte river bridge at Union, Fouts slowed down his train until it was barely creeping. Out on the bridge crept the huge locomotive. There was a crash. The engine was precipitated into the stream. The broken air brake connection on the cars pulled the train and saved hundreds from drowning when the bridge collapsed.

Fouts and his fireman, Elmer Suedeker, went down with the locomotive. The engineer clung to a log and was rescued half a mile down the river.

Six months later, the locomotive was brought up from the river. Today it is pulling its regular train from Alliance to Denver. And Engineer Fouts is in the cab.

PSYCHOPATHIC HOSPITALS.

By H. Addington Bruce.

I have been asked to say something about psychopathic hospitals, and in especial to make clear the difference in a very few words. The subject, however, is as large as its name implies, an institution for the care and treatment of persons in an advanced state of mental disease. Psychopathic hospitals are a place where the mentally sick in general are received for diagnosis, observation and effort to prevent their malady from becoming an advanced and perhaps incurable state.

The psychopathic hospital, that is to say, represents an attempt to make hospitals for the insane. To do this is necessary, by affording timely provision for people who otherwise might drift helplessly to insanity.

And even more important—the psychopathic hospital aims to improve the mental health of the community in general by accepting for study and treatment not merely the potentially insane, but persons whose conduct in any way indicates that their mentality is not so vigorous or well ordered as it ought to be. Persons suffering from psychopathic conditions are suitable candidates for treatment in a psychopathic hospital. So are neurasthenics and the victims of hysterical affections. And, properly enough, the psychopathic hospital acts in conjunction with courts, schools and other agencies to ascertain the true condition of delinquents whose mental integrity has been called into question.

In some psychopathic hospitals, the patient is made to help mentally ill, but also those who, not only those who unmistakably are reported inability to take care of themselves, but also those who need mental reconditioning of some sort. And in all hospitals of this sort helpful effort is extended whenever necessary to the patient as well as to the patients themselves.

Again and again it has been found that the mental difficulties of patients are reported to ascertain the true condition of delinquents whose mental integrity has been called into question.

SPRING, 1922, OPENING

The Rodman - Brown Co.

Chester, South Carolina

Saturday, March 18th, Through Saturday, April 1st.

Springtime is here with all its rich and gorgeous splendor, and is hailed with a most hearty welcome from every one, following, as it does, the cold, dreary winter months which have been full of overflowing with rain, slush, sleet and snow, carrying with it its usual amount of gloom. With this era of spring bursting upon us, we throw off our despondent feeling and take on new life and hasten to keep step with Nature and all of its beauty around us, which wakes from its slumbers to unfold itself again in all its glory, surging forth to fill its place in the walks of life and bring with it balmy spring, new breezes and sunshine that is unknown to any other season. We human beings catch the spirit, look about us, eager to adorn ourselves in a manner in keeping with the atmosphere about us and cast about for such apparel that will satisfy our minds, and reflect our joy at this glorious season. We would feel that we were not true to you were we not mindful of your heart's longing desires at this time and have anticipated your fondest hopes by providing the largest and best selection of spring merchandise that has ever been your privilege to select from in this market, consisting of men's, women's and children's ready-to-wear garments, as well as the most delicate fabrics of every character that you can wish for to dress yourself from head to foot. "A contemporary, noting the story that the flappers are attaching tiny bells to the tops of their gophers, suggests a future device for concentrating attention on this article of feminine attire. Why not it asks, attach small electric light bulbs to the gophers—red and green light? The effect would be quite dazzling, especially at night. We pass the suggestion along to the flappers for what it is worth. They have the assurance that the lamp would not be affected by the state 'headlight law,' assures The Dawson News. Should it come under the traffic regulations we suppose the usual front and rear lights would be required.

AN EXPLANATION OF SLEEPING SICKNESS
Sleeping Sickness, Encephalitis Lethargica, Inflammation Of The Brain and Its Membranes.

There have been so many inquiries within the last few days in regard to this disease, it might be of interest to the public in general to give a brief description of it. The disease is usually preceded by headache, lasting for days, weeks, or months, before the characteristic symptoms of brain inflammation develop. There may or may not be a prodrome, but by temperature, but there is more or less delirium, always. During the spells of delirium, there is restlessness. Headache is complained of during the lucid periods, and profuse sweating occurs in about one third of the cases. Drowsiness is present during the periods between delirium, but the patients are easily awakened. In some of the cases, there is a prolonged sleep from the beginning. In all cases there is a constant salivation, with weak muscles, drooping eyelids, slowness of speech and toward the end, paralysis of the external muscles of the eye. In a certain percentage of cases, there are attacks of convulsions throughout the disease. The blood shows no signs of infection and the spinal fluids are normal. The diagnosis is based on the general character of the symptoms. The symptoms of early cases differ more or less from those of the later stages. The disease and lay as in a stupor from the beginning, while many others toss restlessly and mutter in delirium throughout the disease. Closely specific treatment for the disease: too cap treatment; absolute rest and quiet, both physical and mental, keeping the patient comfortable, and careful watching is all that can be done.

Twenty per cent of the cases die; the duration of the disease from onset to death averages from ten to twenty weeks. Those that recover suffer weakness for a long period, and many of these are afflicted with permanent mental defects.—Contributed.

FRIDAY, MARCH 27

Mrs. Ernestine Schumann-Heink opera contralto and one of the world's best known songbirds, is preparing to celebrate her 50th birthday anniversary this morning.

More important than her fame, greater than the plaudits of the cheering throngs, are her children and her home.

"Women should rule from the home," says the "Queen of Song," who will never rule the world from the home and the cradle, and who has always ruled it, and ruled it well.

"Take the mystery out of medicine and take the patient into the physician's confidence. There has been too much mystifying language used and too much whispering behind the patient's back."

HOW THEY BUY AND SELL. No development has yet been sufficient to discourage "investment" in wild cat oil stocks by the fellows who tumble to the chance to get rich.

Along the same lines is an article in the Indiana University School of Medicine, which emphasizes that the students must be thoroughly acquainted with the "value" of the medicine they are called to serve.

"The graduates of the medical colleges today are a pale, a colorless, prosaical, unimaginative set. He has been so filled with scientific facts that he has forgotten, in a large measure, the purpose of his calling is self-sacrifice and service to the community."

Deciding Where To Buy

The success of a business depends on its ability to analyze the mental operations of the public, and to determine at what points they should buy goods. The merchants who read the public mind most accurately get the business.

When one finds that he needs something, the question comes up where that article should be bought. From some source back in the mind the suggestion comes that such and such a place would be a good store to visit for that purpose.

In the majority of cases, it is created by the store that has made the most effort to impress its reputation on the public mind. People remember the things they hear about constantly and they forget other things that are rarely called to their attention.

It is of course true that while a store by advertising can always draw in a lot of new trade, it can't keep it unless it really does give good values. But advertising helps a store do that, notably in these two ways:
